Junta Invites Dominican Rebels to Leave Country

By LOUIS UCHITELLE

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The Dominican rebels have rejected a surrender invitation from the new military-civilian junta with a reply that they have the morale and manpower to withstand attack.

Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, president of the five-man junta, warned Sunday that his forces were ready "as of now" to move against the rebels. But he said no attack would be launched until every effort has been exhausted to avert bloodshed.

U.S. sources said Washington would counsel against any renewal of fighting between the opposing Dominican factions.

Imbert invited the rebels to lay down their arms and leave the country if they wanted to.

Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, the rebel chieftain, issued this reply from his headquarters in the rebel-held southeast portion of Santo Domingo:

"We have defeated their best troops and the best from the national police force. Do they think that with reserves from the interior they will be able to defeat a people whose morale is higher than it ever was?"

The rebels have charged that eight truckloads of Dominican troops were brought in from the countryside and are bivouacked in the zone occupied by U.S. troops.

Although there were no official figures available on the size of forces available to the junta, Imbert said his troops were capable of moving against the rebels.

Before the revolt, which deposed the civilian triumvirate headed by Donald Reid Cabral, the Dominican army was estimated at 25,000 to 30,000 men. Brig. Gen. Elias Wessin y Wessin, military strongman behind the junta, was said to command 1,500 troops and about 30 tanks, in addition to the Dominican air force.

Caamano's high command has estimated there are 20,000 civilians and 3,000 armed forces officers and enlisted men ready to defend the rebel cause.

The rebels are hemmed in by the L-shaped zone occupied by U.S. troops, and have their backs to the Caribbean Sea.

Units of the 4th U.S. Marine Expeditionary Force and 82nd Airborne Division installed 105mm howitzers in a field in front of the Embajador Hotel, the seaside resort in suburban Santo Domingo which has been an evacuation center and American headquarters area.

Bulldozers scooped out huge holes for the howitzer emplacements and the cannon were set up facing east — toward the rebel area. Access routes to the hotel also appeared to have more troops than usual.

The rebels returned three American Seabees they captured Friday. They were Mike D. Monk, 29, Vandemere, N.C.; Ellard C. Dana, 40, Virginia Beach, Va., and Donald E. Martin, 27, Wichita, Kan.

Dana said they got into rebel territory while trailing a lost Jeep. He said they were well fed, guarded part of the time by a teen-age girl with a machine gun and "invited to a big fiesta that will last for 30 days once this war is over."

Imbert announced that eight top-ranking military officers had been separated from their commands "for the good of the Eastern Nebraska Ripped by String of Tornadoes

PRIMROSE, Neb. (AP) — [illegible] by Gov. Frank Morrison's promise of all possible aid, National Guardsmen, volunteers and residents of this Nebraska community dug in today to clear the debris left by a tornado that ripped a 300-yard path along Main Street.

Bulldozers, dump trucks, front end loaders and chain saws operated by guardsmen ordered in by the governor have started the cleanup task.

A group of plumbers came in from Norfolk, Neb., to help restore water service and Forest Service officials were to look over trees to see which could be saved.

The governor visited the community Sunday during an air tour of the tornado-stricken area. He called the storms one of the worst in the history of the state.

The twister, one of at least 20 reported within a 100-mile radius of Norfolk in northeastern Nebraska, left four dead and nine injured in Primrose alone. No other deaths were recorded but as reports filtered in from more than a score of other communities, it appeared the injured list would be at least 25.

In this village of 120 persons 100 miles west of Omaha only 5 of 14 business buildings on Main Street were left standing. About 20 dwellings were demolished and 18 to 20 more were so badly damaged they appeared beyond repair.

The completeness of the devastation was expressed this way by George Adams, 73, son-in-law of one of the men who founded Primrose in [illegible]: "This town, like other small towns, was dying, but this tornado sealed the coffin. It can't be rebuilt."

William Davis, who estimated he lost a $50,000 investment represented by his home, two cars, three tractors and a feed lot, declared: "I've had it. I'm going to pile the family in a car and head west. A man would be nuts to live in tornado country."

"Before the tornado hit," said Davis, "I considered myself a fairly wealthy man. Now I haven't even got a shirt to call my own. I had to borrow one this morning."

Gilbert McBride, 47, a truck driver whose daughter, Sara, 9, was fatally injured, said the tornado was like a huge snow plow "going at its job of cleaning."

McBride, his wife and seven children were injured. Sara died several hours later in a hospital.

The other three dead were Mrs. Lorrell Lossen, about 62, who operated a creamery; her son, Wayne, 35, who had come from Omaha to spend Mother's Day with her, and [illegible], who was killed as she attempted to take refuge in a sidewalk culvert.

Members of the Safety Patrol and more than 150 National Guardsmen fanned out over the storm-swept area Sunday to make certain everyone was accounted for. The Red Cross sent supplies to a number of the stricken communities, many of them almost isolated by muddy roads after rains of up to seven inches.

Aside from Primrose, the principal damage was to farmsteads, power and telephone lines. The tornado alley reached from Hebron on the Kansas border to the South Dakota line on the northeast and was well over 100 miles wide.

Army Instructors Must Clean Up Their Language

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army instructors will have to clean up their language — that's an order from the top.

Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army chief of staff, recently circulated an order to this effect and told his commanders down to battalion level he was concerned that the continued use of off-color language would harm the Army's image.

Johnson, who has been known to rebuke aides who used even mild cusswords, said "I am fully conscious of the fact that we cannot regulate sin."

However, he added: "I do not believe that we need blink at or condone those instances where the impropriety of the actions of our leaders and instructors can be interpreted clearly as offensive to many of the individuals who are subordinate to them."

The Army chief of staff said he had witnessed during a recent trip a training demonstration in which the soldier-demonstrators used offensive language.

He said he had received expressions of concern from one senior commander "that many of our young instructors feel that it is smart to use suggestive or off color stories."

"The use of off color or suggestive stories has been justified to me as essential for establishing audience rapport or for rekindling interest in a presentation," Johnson said.

"I would only comment that any individual who must resort

Klan Leaders Stage Massive Alabama Rally

ANNISTON, Ala. (AP) — Ku Klux Klan leaders held a massive Mother's Day rally and parade in this northeast Alabama city and heard Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton declare that "segregation and purity of the races is God's law."

There were no disorders, nor arrests, as the klansmen and about 500 supporters met in the Municipal Auditorium and then paraded for 10 blocks under a warm sun through the downtown area.

The orderliness of the demonstration was in sharp contrast to Mother's Day in 1961 and 1963 and outbursts of racial violence here.

Joining Sunday's marchers were the three Klansmen charged with the March 25 slaying of Viola Liuzzo, a Detroit housewife who was shot to death near Lowndesboro while shuttling civil rights workers from Montgomery to Selma following a march to the capital.

The trio-Eugene Thomas, 43, William Orville Eaton, 42, and Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., 21, all of the Birmingham area — got a standing ovation when they were introduced by Shelton.

Shelton, imperial wizard of the United Klans of America, Inc., said the rally marked the beginning of a series of such meetings throughout the South. Shelton said rallies will be held in Natchez, Miss., and several Alabama cities such as Scottsboro, Plant City, Linden and Dothan, to counter what Shelton termed the Klan's adverse publicity.

The rally here coincided with the fourth anniversary of the Mother's Day, 1961, burning of a Greyhound bus, occupied by Negro and white "freedom riders."

On Mother's Day 1963 shotgun blasts were fired into a Negro church and into two Negro homes.

Rusk Denies U.S. Is Using Gunboat Diplomacy Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk has urged the American states to consider setting up standby military-political machinery which could tackle emergencies quickly pending more formal action by hemisphere governments.

Rusk also denied in an Associated Press interview that the United States had reverted to the gunboat diplomacy of earlier years when it rushed troops into Santo Domingo.

With local authorities unable to protect foreign nationals and asking for U.S. aid, he said, the United States had a well-recognized obligation to do what was needed to save American lives.

"Recent U.S. actions in the Dominican Republic have had nothing to do with 19th century forms of intervention for the purpose of collecting revenues, protecting concessions or changing governments," he said.

"We went in to save lives. We are there in support of the Organization of American States and inter-American system," he added.

New Red Revolts Expected In Latin America and Korea

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders are being warned that the "May Day" distress signal could be sounded at any moment in Guatemala, Haiti and South Korea.

In a series of backstage White House briefings, President Johnson and his military-intelligence advisers are alerting the legislators to possible Communist-instigated revolts or uprisings in one or all of these trouble spots at the same time.

They bluntly warn that Communist groups armed by Moscow, Peking, Havana and Algeria will soon have the capability of igniting open rebellions or guerrilla wars in a dozen other Latin Americans, African and Asian nations, including Colombia, Venezuela, Bolivia, Iran, Thailand and Kuwait.

According to their foreboding reports, the greatest danger period is between May 17 and July 4 — when the Soviet-supported Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops are expected to mount a series of major military actions in South Viet Nam.

South Korean authorities already have uncovered two Red plots in Seoul to incite a rebellion among opposition groups there during President Park's state visit to the S.S. at the end of this month.

Soviets Observe V-E Day With New Shot at Moon

By FRED W. COLEMAN

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union celebrated the 20th anniversary of V-E day Sunday with a new moon shot, a military display, an appeal for reunification of nuclear weapons and a new attack on U.S. policy.

The moon shot, Lunik 5, was a 3,254-pound electronic instrument package to gather and send back scientific information. The Soviet news agency Tass said it was launched from an artificial earth satellite put into orbit earlier in the day by a multistage rocket.

The exact time or place of the launching was not announced, but it presumably took place about the hour the Kremlin gave its first public display of the kind of rockets that have carried its manned space ships into orbit.

Tass said Lunik 5 was equipped with "measuring devices" but did not say what kind of information it would send back from its 250,000-mile journey.

Tass said the rocket at 10 p.m. Sunday was 70,000 miles from the earth and was close to its planned course.

There was no indication of any attempt to radio back photographs of the moon's surface. An earlier Lunik had photographed the dark side of the moon. There was no indication whether the rocket would hit the moon or go into orbit around it.

The U.S. Ranger 9, an 800-pound electronic package crammed with television cameras, sent back more than 5,000 pictures of the lunar surface before crashing into a moon crater March 24.

The Soviet display came during a military parade in Red Square. Soviet leaders and thousands of Muscovites saw in an 18-minute weapons show a pair of 110-foot, 3-stage rockets and four other weapons never seen in public before.

Tass said the giant rockets were solid-fueled and that their range was "unlimited." The agency added "they are similar" to the rockets that launched the Vostok and Voshkod manned space ships.

Western observers were skeptical of the claim that the rockets were solid-fueled. They noted that some exterior features were similar to those on liquid-fueled rockets used in the U.S. space program.

Other weapons not shown previously to the public were a six-rocket anti-tank system mounted on an armored reconnaissance vehicle, 20 new T62 medium tanks that have been in service since 1963, a medium-range missile mounted on a self-propelled launching platform and a three-stage intercontinental rocket, about 60 to 65 feet long.

Marshal Georgi Zhukov, one of the Soviet Union's top World War II commanders, appeared among the Soviet leaders. It was his first appearance at a Red Square parade since form-

The foundation, which manages the scientific program at Byrd Station, said Sunday the search is continuing. It said Disch was dressed very warmly, but that the temperature was last reported to be 45 degrees below zero Farhenheit with winds nearly 35 miles an hour and blowing snow.

Searchers followed his footprints for about four miles before losing them in the snow, the foundation said.

In Monroe, Disch's mother, Mrs. Leonard Disch, said, "I will not give up as long as there's hope."

Disch, unmarried, was graduated as an aeronautical engineer from Northrop Institute of Technology at Los Angeles. He has three brothers, Leonard Disch Jr., Clinton, N.Y.; the Rev. Walter Disch, Aberdeen, S.D.; and Harold Disch, Sun Prairie, Wis.

Junta Invites Dominican Rebels to Leave Country

By LOUIS UCHITELLE

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The Dominican rebels have rejected a surrender invitation from the new military-civilian junta with a reply that they have the morale and manpower to withstand attack.

Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, president of the five-man junta, warned Sunday that his forces were ready "as of now" to move against the rebels. But he said no attack would be launched until every effort has been exhausted to avert bloodshed.

U.S. sources said Washington would counsel against any renewal of fighting between the opposing Dominican factions.

Imbert invited the rebels to lay down their arms and leave the country if they wanted to.

Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, the rebel chieftain, issued this reply from his headquarters in the rebel-held southeast portion of Santo Domingo:

"We have defeated their best troops and the best from the national police force. Do they think that with reserves from the interior they will be able to defeat a people whose morale is higher than it ever was?"

The rebels have charged that eight truckloads of Dominican troops were brought in from the countryside and are bivouacked in the zone occupied by U.S. troops.

Although there were no official figures available on the size of forces available to the junta, Imbert said his troops were capable of moving against the rebels.

Before the revolt, which deposed the civilian triumvirate headed by Donald Reid Cabral, the Dominican army was estimated at 25,000 to 30,000 men. Brig. Gen. Elias Wessin y Wessin, military strongman behind the junta, was said to command 1,500 troops and about 30 tanks, in addition to the Dominican air force.

Caamano's high command has estimated there are 20,000 civilians and 3,000 armed forces officers and enlisted men ready to defend the rebel cause.

The rebels are hemmed in by the L-shaped zone occupied by U.S. troops, and have their backs to the Caribbean Sea.

Units of the 4th U.S. Marine Expeditionary Force and 82nd Airborne Division installed 105mm howitzers in a field in front of the Embajador Hotel, the seaside resort in suburban Santo Domingo which has been an evacuation center and American headquarters area.

Bulldozers scooped out huge holes for the howitzer emplacements and the cannon were set up facing east — toward the rebel area. Access routes to the hotel also appeared to have more troops than usual.

The rebels returned three American Seabees they captured Friday. They were Mike D. Monk, 29, Vandemere, N.C.; Ellard C. Dana, 40, Virginia Beach, Va., and Donald E. Martin, 27, Wichita, Kan.

Dana said they got into rebel territory while trailing a lost Jeep. He said they were well fed, guarded part of the time by a teen-age girl with a machine gun and "invited to a big fiesta that will last for 30 days once this war is over."

Shelton said rallies will be held in Natchez, Miss., and several Alabama cities such as Scottsboro, Plant City, Linden and Dothan, to counter what Shelton termed the Klan's adverse publicity.

The rally here coincided with the fourth anniversary of the Mother's Day, 1961, burning of a Greyhound bus, occupied by Negro and white "freedom riders."

On Mother's Day 1963 shotgun blasts were fired into a Negro church and into two Negro homes.

Shelton was joined by Klan

Rusk Denies U.S. Is Using Gunboat Diplomacy Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk has urged the American states to consider setting up standby military-political machinery which could tackle emergencies quickly pending more formal action by hemisphere governments.

Rusk also denied in an Associated Press interview that the United States had reverted to the gunboat diplomacy of earlier years when it rushed troops into Santo Domingo.

With local authorities unable to protect foreign nationals and asking for U.S. aid, he said, the United States had a well-recognized obligation to do what was needed to save American lives.

"Recent U.S. actions in the Dominican Republic have had nothing to do with 19th century forms of intervention for the purpose of collecting revenues, protecting concessions or changing governments," he said.

"We went in to save lives. We are there in support of the Organization of American States and inter-American system," he added.

In other weekend U.S-Dominican developments:

—An official document said members of the inter-American peace mission to the Dominican Republic were told by rebel leader Col. Francisco Caamano Deno that Communists had infiltrated but do not control his movement.

—Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said in a radio-television broadcast with Rep. Frank Horton, R-N.Y., that "we have to be prepared for some time in the future to have the Communist forces in the world test us every place where there is any weakness or any possibility of success."

—Jack H. Vaughn, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, also predicted fresh troubles ahead and said

Hit-Run Driver Kills Springs Pedestrian

A 46-year-old pedestrian was dead on arrival at St. Francis Hospital early this morning after being struck by a hit and run car just west of Cucharras Street and Tejon Street, police reported.

Lewis Earl Hall, 46, 909 W. Cheyenne Blvd., was taken to St. Francis Hospital by E & E Ambulance, but was dead on arrival. His body was transferred to Law Mortuary.

Police were searching this morning for what was described by witnesses to the brutal accident as a light-colored Ford Mustang. According to the two witnesses, they were crossing Cucharras Street just west of Tejon Street when a car westbound on Cucharras Street and traveling at a high rate of speed hit Hall. The witnesses said the car had a red light at Tejon Street, but ignored it. The impact knocked the victim approximately 150 feet west on Cucharras Street, and the car then speeded up and continued west on the street, witnesses said.

Hall's shoes were torn off by the impact and were recovered by police. The band and the front and back covers of the victim's wristwatch were also

New Red Revolts Expected In Latin America and Korea

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders are being warned that the "May Day" distress signal could be sounded at any moment in Guatemala, Haiti and South Korea.

In a series of backstage White House briefings, President Johnson and his military-intelligence advisers are alerting the legislators to possible Communist-instigated revolts or uprisings in one or all of these trouble spots at the same time.

They bluntly warn that Communist groups armed by Moscow, Peking, Havana and Algeria will soon have the capability of igniting open rebellions or guerrilla wars in a dozen other Latin Americans, African and Asian nations, including Colombia, Venezuela, Bolivia, Iran, Thailand and Kuwait.

According to their foreboding reports, the greatest danger period is between May 17 and July 4 — when the Soviet-supported Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops are expected to mount a series of major military actions in South Viet Nam.

South Korean authorities already have uncovered two Red plots in Seoul to incite a rebellion among opposition groups there during President Park's state visit to the S.S. at the end of this month.

They are stressing in their

Baker Secretary, Pilot Killed In Plane Crash

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — Federal Aviation probers picked up the search today for the sunken plane wreckage in which Carole Tyler, 26, who figured in the Bobby Baker investigation, lost her life on a Sunday joyride over the Atlantic Ocean.

Killed with the former Capitol Hill secretary was the pilot, Robert H. Davis, 43, of Huntington, W. Va.

Both had been staying at Baker's Carousel Motel, which is one of the plushest hostelries in Ocean City and stands about 1,000 yards from the scene of the crash.

Motel officials said Davis, who had spent a week at the Carousel, and Miss Tyler, who arrived last Friday to do some work for Baker, had just met. He invited her to see the beach

Two More U.S. Soldiers Killed in Viet Nam Fighting

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Two American soldiers have been killed and six wounded in a battle which has raged for two days between Vietnamese forces and Communist guerrillas 30 miles west of Saigon.

A third American, a Navy jet pilot who was killed Sunday when his plane failed to pull out of a strafing dive on a North Vietnamese truck.

The battle west of Saigon began early Sunday when a Communist mortar barrage descended on the capital of Hau Nghia Province.

The first of the Americans to die and one of the American wounded were advisers sent in by helicopter with a government relief force.

Viet Cong mortar barrages were mounted simultaneously on the Hau Nghia towns of Bao Trai, Duc Hoa and My Hanh. A Viet Cong infantry attack hit a ranger unit guarding a bridge near Duc Hoa.

Sunday evening, a bullet hit another U.S. Army adviser in the face, killing him. Two advisers were wounded and three U.S. Army helicopter crewmen were lightly wounded.

America's toll of combat dead stood at 366.

The operation had cost the South Vietnamese 20 dead, 53 wounded and 10 missing at last report. No information was available on Viet Cong casualties.

Taking advantage of good flying weather, U.S. and Vietnamese warplanes carried out the second consecutive day of heavy air strikes against the North Vietnamese Sunday.

Communist military targets and rolling stock were pounded by 127 fighters and bombers.

A Navy F8 Crusader crashed while attacking a camouflaged truck. The pilot was killed. Accompanying pilots said there had been no groundfire or enemy aircraft. The crash was listed as a probable accident.

Other attack squadrons reported damaging the Ba Binh racks compounds near Vinh Linh, and two bridges, 10 boxcars and one locomotive along six major routes.

The heaviest raid of the war to date was flown Saturday, when 242 planes carried out an assortment of strikes.

A Viet Cong statement broadcast by Hanoi radio said U.S. military forces in South Viet Nam would be crushed despite the recent arrival of fresh troops.

"The puppet troops and U.S. Marines cannot cope with the crushing blows of our armed forces and people," and to send in paratroopers "in an attempt to turn the tide is but an illusion," the Communist statement said.

South Korean Defense Minister Kim Sung-eun said in Seoul his government would send another 180 men to South Viet Nam. South Korea already has 2,000 troops assigned to engineering and transportation projects in South Viet Nam.

The additions will augment the self-defense infantry units assigned to protect the noncombatants and will reinforce South Korea's mobile surgical hospital company.

In Washington, a $1.6-million contract has been awarded the Ellicott Machine Corp. of Baltimore for five dredges as part of

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

A cheery smile is one of the assets of every waitress, but there are several other basic characteristics, too. For waitresses are supposed to be star sales girls. But many of them are poker faced and thoughtless about proper hygiene. So study the tips for waitresses listed below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE,
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE V-4[illegible]: Tony P., aged 3[illegible], operates a restaurant.

As I was dining with him recently in our Chicago Loop, a tray of dishes crashed with a bang.

"There go the profits," one of the customers sang out, as he recited that old adage.

Tony winced, doubly.

"Dr. Crane, he said, "many diners dislike the fact that the sales tax on their luncheon checks.

"But restaurants which use chinaware, must deduct 2½ cents out of every dollar of gross income, just to make up for such breakage!

"For our waitresses, plus the dishwashers, are often awkward or careless.

"Some restaurants are forced to replace 25 per cent of our coffee cups each year and almost 30 per cent of the saucers!

"Shifting to automatic dishwashers has helped cut down the breakage that used to occur in the dishpan.

"But we still suffer almost as much breakage by those who carry the dishes or clear off the tables.

"And that isn't all. We have trouble finding really competent waitresses.

"Many of the younger girls are lazy or violators of the Golden Rule.

"They fail to realize that their own pay check depends on the success of the restaurant.

"So they ignore our warning about how to handle dishes.

"Dr. Crane, please repeat some of your advice that you gave at our restaurant convention."

Waitresses, you are supposed to be sales experts, not poker faced order - takers!

So smile, for that is the first task of every sales person or worker who "fronts" before the public for his company.

If you are carrying food to a table whose patrons have already ordered, at least nod to the newcomers who have just sat down nearby and say:

"Hello, I'll be with you in a minute!"

For nothing alienates customers faster than to be ignored!

And don't use your greasy fingers to reach inside a clean drinking glass!

Please avoid touching the bowl end of teaspoons with your fingers. The same goes for the prongs of a fork.

Spoons and forks have HANDLES! These are to be touched — not the ends that go in the diner's mouth.

If you pick up butter patties or doughnuts and sweet rolls, use tongs instead of your fingers.

This is doubly true if you also act as cashier and thus handle dirty money, which literally contains millions of germs!

And when you have served the dessert, lay the check on the table at once, for many busy patrons, especially at the noon hour, resent waiting 5 minutes to catch your eye and get their check.

Send for my booklet, "The New Advertising and Sales Psychology," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents. Waitresses are supposed to be star sales people, so get hep!

Over Quarter Million Dollars Spending Okayed

DENVER (AP)—The Colorado Legislature authorized the spending of more than a quarter of a billion dollars during its recent session—equivalent to more than $[illegible] for every man, woman and child in the state.

The figures were compiled by the Colorado Public Expenditure Council, privately-financed taxpayers organization on the basis of a combined tabulation of appropriations made by its legislative analyst, E. E. Vallejo.

The total appropriated by the lawmakers during the 1[illegible] days they met was $[illegible], the council study showed. This included $[illegible] from the state general fund, $24,[illegible] from the capital construction fund for new buildings, and $[illegible] from special funds which include such items as game and fish licenses and university and college tuition payments.

The amounts authorized are to carry the state government through the fiscal year starting next July 1, except for $[illegible] in supplemental appropriations which may be spent before the end of June this year.

The study showed public schools will receive $[illegible] for the foundation act program, transportation and special payments of $[illegible] per pupil which can be used to reduce local property taxes if the individual school boards desire.

Junior college payments will total $[illegible] under the program.

Wife Was Not Heiress, Says California Judge

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A judge whose bride of four days disappeared at sea has disclosed that two months ago they formed a charitable foundation involving total financial holdings of each.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Thomas C. Yager described the arrangement Friday as a Coast Guard plane made a final, fruitless search for some trace of the former Eileen Kelleher-Jeffers, 61.

Mrs. Yager disappeared from the bridge of a 36-foot cabin cruiser midway in the 23-mile Catalina Channel Thursday morning as the couple was returning to the mainland from a honeymoon cruise to Santa Catalina Island.

Yager, 47, said he was below decks at the time.

"I would give up my judgeship, everything I have — everything — if I could have my sweetheart back," he told newsmen.

He was interviewed in his memento-filled apartment.

Referring to reports in which Mrs. Yager was described as an heiress, the judge said, "She would laugh at that 'heiress' business."

Mrs. Yager was the adopted daughter of the late William M. Jeffers, retired president of the Union Pacific Railroad. She inherited the bulk of his estate, valued at $[illegible], when Jeffers died in 1953.

Yager, who earns $25,000 annually for his judicial duties, said, "My income was far greater than hers. My contributions to charity were far greater than hers."

The Yagers were married Sunday. It was the first marriage for each.

Six CC Coeds To Give Recital

Six piano students at Colorado College will present a recital at 8 p.m. Thursday in Rastall Center on the campus.

The free public recital is the final one of the academic year for the college music department.

Miss Lee Prater, a junior from Denver, will perform the Piano Concerto No. 1 in E flat Major by Liszt in a duet with Henry Margolinski, adjunct professor of piano.

Miss Jane Humphrey, a senior from Mullen, Neb., will perform the first movement of Beethoven's Concerto No. 3 in C Minor in a duet with Prof. Max Lanner, chairman of the music department.

Four others will perform piano solos. They are Misses Judith Floyd and Janis Metcalfe, both freshmen from Denver; Miss Linda Marshall, a sophomore from Boulder, and Miss Richelle Husted, a freshman, also from Boulder.

Miss Floyd will play Bach's French Suite No. 5 in G Major, and Miss Metcalfe will perform Poulenc's Mouvements Perpetuels.

Miss Marshall will perform the first movement of Beethoven's Sonata op. 49 No. 2 in G. Major, and Schubert's Scherzo in B flat Major.

Report Claims Officer Right To Shoot Dog

DENVER (AP) — A six-page report from the Game, Fish and Parks Commission to Gov. John A. Love declares that a wildlife officer is free of blame in the shooting of a dog near Boulder March 3.

The report was prepared in response to a request from the dog's owners, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Moore of Boulder, for a further investigation after a hearing before the commission April 8.

It backed up earlier findings by the Fish, Game and Parks Department director, Harry R. Woodward, that the dog was shot to protect a deer that it was chasing.

The Moores had contended that the 170-pound St. Bernard was shot without reason by Brownlee Guyer, an employe of the Wildlife Conservation Office.

The report did recommend that an officer who kills a dog should attempt to notify the owner. It said the use of tranquilizers on dogs was impractical because of variation in dog sizes. The Moores had suggested tranquilizers as an alternative to killing an animal.

The report quoted two highway department employes as saying they had observed the dog, Monk, chasing the deer and had called Guyer. It said Guyer "acted within his assigned responsibilities."

Tornado-Struck Homes Guarded From Looters

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — National Guardsmen protected the ruins of fashionable lakeshore homes from looters today and workers searched for more bodies in the wake of a tornado which killed at least 13 persons.

Gov. Karl F. Rolvaag said 19 persons were still unaccounted for. More than 400 were injured by the twisters which attacked two suburban areas Thursday night.

The Red Cross said an aerial survey showed the tornadoes destroyed 312 homes, 20 farm buildings, 200 house trailers, several businesses, six apartment buildings under construction, one resort, one bowling alley and many boats.

Damage was estimated at more than $30 million. It was the worst tornado disaster to strike Minnesota since a 1919 series of twisters claimed 59 lives in the state's western section.

Aid, in the form of money and manpower, continued pouring into the lake shore areas west of Minneapolis and suburban areas north of the city.

The stricken area was added to the flood disaster areas of the state declared eligible for federal aid by President Johnson.

Vice President Hubert Humphrey planned on Sunday to inspect the path of the tornadoes which passed only about 10 miles east of his Waverly, Minn., lakeside home.

National Guard troops patrolled the residential areas to guard against looters and sightseers, helped clear wreckage and aided in the search for more bodies.

Fowler Warns Against Deficit Payment Hopes

By STERLING GREEN

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler issued a stern warning today against "premature visions of victory in the fight against the payments deficit."

In a speech prepared for the Business Council, whose industrialist-member contribute to a multibillion-dollar share of U.S. foreign trade, Fowler verified payment surpluses apparently were achieved in March and April.

"I am disturbed, however, by the undue note of elation over these results that I detect in some quarters," he told the 100 corporation heads.

"Let there be no mistake: these figures are no more than preliminary indications of a brief respite from the intense pressures created by a prolonged deficit — some seven successive years of serious deficits in our balance of payments."

The voluntary curbs on foreign investment and lending asked of industry by President Johnson are bringing good results, the secretary said.

But he cautioned: "I want to emphasize with all the vigor I can muster the danger of early or excessive optimism. Early optimism could lead to premature relaxation.

"We can allow no let-up. Indeed we must continue to redouble all our efforts until we have restored our international payments to balance once again, and until we have maintained that balance not for one or two quarters, but for a sufficient time to demonstrate our strength and determination, and to allow a more permanent solution to take hold."

Fowler said that the projected gain of $1.2 billion from industry's voluntary plans to curb foreign payments and enlarge exports does not take into account such trends as may develop in tourist outlays, imports or military spending.

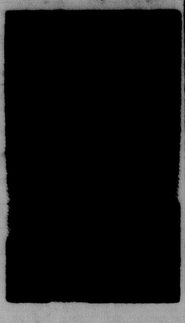
"The $1.2 billion therefore cannot validly be deducted from last year's deficit of $3.1 billion as a means of projecting this year's deficit," he said.

The Cabinet officer also renewed his plea for restraint in any excise tax reduction. Johnson's plan to trim the taxes $1.75 billion is a prudent one, Fowler said, "designed to furnish the economic stimulus we need without seriously impeding our progress toward balance in our budget."

PROGRESS STOPS

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — The Greater Jackson Chamber of Commerce was conducting a tour of the city to look at the community's progress. But the "progress" came to a sudden halt. The [illegible] Jackson Public Transportation bus broke down.

H. L. Hunt Writes



America is not only the youngest of all the great nations but often seems to have the shortest memory.

A case in point is the enormous Russian crop failure of 1963, the most convincing proof in 46 years of the utter inability of a communist regime to feed its own people, and our consummate folly in helping the Kremlin escape the consequenc of this disaster. Another great communist crop failure could happen at any time. Yet the lesson of the one that occurred so recently will often be ignored and forgotten.

Another example is the murder of President Diem of South Viet Nam, which some believe American officials actually connived at and which certainly they did nothing to prevent. Diem is dead and nothing can bring him back to life. But we have never admitted the gigantic error as well as the deep moral stain of our policy toward him. There are and will be other Diems but if our memories are too short, we will make the same mistakes and perhaps commit the same follies in dealing with them.

The Second World War, which ended just twenty years ago, provides some of the most inspiring examples of heroism in all our history. But few of our children today even know the names of the great encounters where those heroes found their glory.

We need to remember both the good and the bad, so as to do more of the one and less of the other.

STAGE SIT DOWN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of demonstrators conducted a sit down Friday in front of the main entrance of the State Department to urge withdrawal of U. S. troops from the Dominican Republic and South Viet Nam. The 14 young persons attempted to enter the building but were blocked by security officers.

Ambassador Taylor Visits Paratroops

By JOHN T. WHEELER

VUNG TAU, South Viet Nam, (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor today visited a newly arrived American paratroop brigade, the one which he commanded in Korea.

Taylor warned, "I don't want any paratroopers shooting each other like Marines did." He referred to an incident when an edgy Marine at Da Nang air base fired on his buddies thinking they were a Viet Cong patrol, killing two and wounding a third.

Taylor, accompanied by the 173rd Airborne Brigade commander, Brig. Gen. Ellis Williamson, paid helicopter visits to airborne positions at this sea coast town and at Bien Hoa air base to the north.

Taylor stooped low to get into one camouflaged machine-gun position and talked to Staff Sgt. Joseph B. Castile, Manchester, Ga., and Pfc. Timothy W. Aikey, Williamsport, Pa.

Lt. Col Richard H. Boland, Quincy, Mass., commander of the 1st Battalion, said, "Anyone who comes in here has trouble." His battalion is ranged along the edge of a swamp near Vung Tau air strip.

Revision of Foreign Program Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Foreign Affairs Committee stood pat Friday, advising against any drastic revision in the foreign program.

Previously, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee had recommended that the administration submit a new approach to foreign aid by the middle of next year. Its chairman, Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., wants the economic and military portions of the bill separated.

Said the House group: "We cannot agree that it would be desirable, or possible, to terminate the program in the near future."

Said the House group: "We cannot agree that it would be desirable, or possible, to terminate the program in the near future. Nor do we believe that it is advisable to establish a commission, no matter how distinguished its membership, to undertake still another survey of foreign aid."

The House Committee said the military and economic portions are interdependent, and cannot be divided without some harm.

Robert Kennedy Says U.S. Should Have Consulted

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy says the United States should have consulted the Organization of American States before sending troops to the Dominican Republic, the New York Times reported today.

A Washington dispatch by John D. Morris said the senator, in an interview, expressed deep concern over the administration's unilateral intervention in the Dominican Republic.

Kennedy recalled that his late brother, President John F. Kennedy, had the concurrence of the OAS in moving to force the removal of Soviet missiles from Cuba in 1962.

"I think there should have been consultation prior to any action we would take in the Dominican situation," Kennedy was quoted as saying. "I don't think we addressed ourselves to the implications of what we did."

One such implication, he said, was the possible undermining of relations with friendly Latin-American governments.

Kennedy was elaborating on a theme he sounded in a Senate speech Thursday in connection with passage of a special $700-million military appropriation Johnson had asked primarily for use in Viet Nam. He said then the OAS was not properly notified about U.S. moves in the Dominican situation.

He said every senator agrees with Johnson's determination to prevent establishment of a new Communist state in this hemisphere.

"But this cannot mean that we plan to act on our own without regard to our friends and allies in the Organization of American States," he said.

Russian Audience Applauds Zhukov

MOSCOW, (AP) — A Russian audience in the Kremlin burst into applause today for Russia's late dictator, Joseph Stalin, and his top military commander, Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, who emerged from eight years of obscurity.

The manifestation of sentiment for the two wartime leaders occurred at a meeting in the Kremlin to celebrate the 20th anniversary of V-E Day.

Zhukov, resplendent in full parade uniform and bearing a chest full of medals, made his first public appearance since 1957 when former Premier Khrushchev dismissed him as defense minister in the midst of a party row.

The audience broke into applause when Zhukov and other leaders appeared on the stage. Zhukov took a seat in the front rank of Communist party, government and military figures. He has been credited with some of the greatest Soviet victories in World War II, including Stalingrad and Berlin, but after his 1957 ouster his military role was downgraded.

California Man Discovers Way to Hold False Teeth

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. — A new discovery called Acryline is big news. Users say it fits plates so beautifully they can't believe it. Acryline uses a startling new vacuum principle. It flows on plates and forms an air tight seal. Users say this feels akin to natural teeth. This wonderful feeling lasts six months before a new application is necessary. Acryline is available at all drug counters.

Wife Was Not Heiress, Says California Judge

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A judge whose bride of four days disappeared at sea has disclosed that two months ago they formed a charitable foundation involving total financial holdings of each.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Thomas C. Yager described the arrangement Friday as a Coast Guard plane made a final, fruitless search for some trace of the former Eileen Keliher-Jeffers. 61.

Mrs. Yager disappeared from the bridge of a 36-foot cabin cruiser midway in the 32-mile Catalina Channel Thursday morning as the couple was returning to the mainland from a honeymoon cruise to Santa Catalina Island.

Yager, 47, said he was below decks at the time.

"I would give up my judgeship, everything I have — everything — if I could have my sweetheart back," he told newsmen.

He was interviewed in his memento-filled apartment.

Referring to reports in which Mrs. Yager was described as an heiress, the judge said, "She would laugh at that 'heiress' business."

Mrs. Yager was the aopted daughter of the late William M. Jeffers, retired president of the Union Pacific Railroad. She inherited the bulk of his estate, valued at $500,000, when Jeffers died in 1953.

Yager, who earns $25,000 annually for his judicial duties, said, "My income was far greater than hers. My contributions to charity were far greater than hers."

The Yagers were married Sunday. It was the first marriage for each.

Report Claims Officer Right To Shoot Dog

DENVER (AP) — A six-page report from the Game, Fish and Parks Commission to Gov. John A. Love declares that a wildlife officer is free of blame in the shooting of a dog near Boulder March 3.

The report was prepared in response to a request from the dog's owners, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Moore of Boulder, for a further investigation after a hearing before the commission April 8.

It backed up earlier findings by the Fish, Game and Parks Department director, Harry R. Woodward, that the dog was shot to protect a deer that it was chasing.

The Moores had contended that the 170-pound St. Bernard was shot without reason by Brownlee Guyer, an employe of the Wildlife Conservation Office.

The report did recommend that an officer who kills a dog should attempt to notify the owner. It said the use of tranquilizers on dogs was impractical because of variation in dog sizes. The Moores had suggested transquilizers as an alternative to killing an animal

The report quoted two highway department employes as saying they had observed the dog, Monk, chasing the deer and had called Guyer. It said Guyer "acted within his assigned responsibilities."

Tornado-Struck Homes Guarded From Looters

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — National Guardsmen protected the ruins of fashionable lakeshore homes from looters today and workers searched for more bodies in the wake of a tornado which killed at least 13 persons.

Gov. Karl F. Rolvaag said 19 persons were still unaccounted for. More than 400 were injured by the twisters which attacked two suburban areas Thursday night.

The Red Cross said an aerial survey showed the tornadoes destroyed 312 homes, 20 farm buildings, 200 house trailers, several businesses, six apartment buildings under construction, one resort, one bowling alley and many boats.

Damage was estimated at more than $10 million. It was the worst tornado disaster to strike Minnesota since a 1919 series of twisters claimed 50 lives in the state's western section.

Aid, in the form of money and manpower, continued moving into the lake shore areas west of Minneapolis and suburban areas north of the city.

The stricken area was added to the flood disaster areas of the state declared eligible for federal aid by President Johnson.

Vice President Hubert Humphrey planned on Sunday to inspect the path of the tornadoes which passed only about 10 miles east of his Waverly, Minn., lakeside home.

National Guard troops patrolled the residential areas to guard against looters and sightseers, helped clear wreckage and aided in the search for more bodies.

Fowler Warns Against Deficit Payment Hopes

By STERLING GREEN

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler issued a stern warning today against "premature visions of victory in the fight against the payments deficit."

In a speech prepared for the Business Council, whose industrialist-member contribute to a multibillion-dollar share of U.S. foreign trade, Fowler verified payment surpluses apparently were achieved in March and April.

"I am disturbed, however, by the undue note of elation over these results that I detect in some quarters," he told the 100 corporation heads.

"Let there be no mistake: these figures are no more than preliminary indications of a brief respite from the intense pressures created by a prolonged deficit — some seven successive years of serious deficits in our balance of payments."

The voluntary curbs on foreign investment and lending asked of industry by President Johnson are bringing good results, the secretary said.

But he cautioned: "I want to emphasize with all the vigor I can muster the danger of early or excessive optimism. Early optimism could lead to premature relaxation.

"We can allow no let-up. Indeed we must continue to redouble all our efforts until we have restored our international payments to balance once again, and until we have maintained that balance not for one or two quarters, but for a sufficient time to demonstrate our strength and determination, and to allow a more permanent solution to take hold."

Fowler said that the projected gain of $1.2 billion from industry's voluntary plans to curb foreign payments and enlarge exports does not take into account such trends as may develop in tourist outlays, imports or military spending.

"The $1.2 billion therefore cannot validly be deducted from last year's deficit of $3.1 billion as a means of projecting this year's deficit," he said.

The Cabinet officer also renewed his plea for restraint in any excise tax reduction. Johnsons plan to trim the taxes $1.75 billion is a prudent one, Fowler said, "designed to furnish the economic stimulus we need without seriously impending our progress toward balance in our budget."

H. L. Hunt Writes

America is not only the youngest of all the great nations but often seems to have the shortest memory.

A case in point is the enormous Russian crop failure of 1963, the most convincing proof in 46 years of the utter inability of a communist regime to feed its own people, and our consummate folly in helping the Kremlin escape the consequenc of this disaster. Another great communist crop failure could happen at any time. Yet the lesson of the one that occurred so recently will often be ignored and forgotten.

Another example is the murder of President Diem of South Viet Nam, which some believe American officials actually connived at and which certainly they did nothing to prevent. Diem is dead and nothing can bring him back to life. But we have never admitted the gigantic error as well as the deep moral stain of our policy toward him. There are and will be other Diems but if our memories are too short, we will make the same mistakes and perhaps commit the same follies in dealing with them.

The Second World War, which ended just twenty years ago, provides some of the most inspiring examples of heroism in all our history. But few of our children today even know the names of the great encounters where those heroes found their glory.

We need to remember both the good and the bad, so as to do more of the one and less of the other.

Ambassador Taylor Visits Paratroops

By JOHN T. WHEELER

VUNG TAU, South Viet Nam, (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor today visited a newly arrived American paratroop brigade, the one which he commanded in Korea.

Taylor warned, "I don't want any paratroopers shooting each other like Marines did." He referred to an incident when an edgy Marine at Da Nang air base fired on his buddies thinking they were a Viet Cong patrol, killing two and wounding a third.

Taylor, accompanied by the 173rd Airborne Brigade commander, Brig. Gen. Ellis Williamson, paid helicopter visits to airborne positions at this sea coast town and at Bien Hoa air base to the north.

Taylor stooped low to get into one camouflaged machine-gun position and talked to Staff Sgt. Joseph B. Castile, Manchester, Ga., and Pfc. Timothy W. Aikey, Williamsport, Pa.

Lt. Col Richard H. Boland, Quincy, Mass., commander of the 1st Battalion, said, "Anyone who comes in here has trouble." His battalion is ranged along the edge of a swamp near Vung Tau air strip.

Revision of Foreign Program Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Foreign Affairs Committee stood pat Friday, advising against any drastic revision in the foreign program.

Previously, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee had recommended that the administration submit a new approach to foreign aid by the middle of next year. Its chairman, Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., wants the economic and military portions of the bill separated.

Said the House group: "We cannot agree that it would be desirable, or possible, to terminate the program in the near future."

Said the House group: "We cannot agree that it would be desirable, or possible, to terminate the program in the near future. Nor do we believe that it is advisable to establish a commission, no matter how distinguished its membership, to undertake still another survey of foreign aid."

The House Committee said the military and economic portions are interdependent, and cannot be divided without some harm.

Robert Kennedy Says U.S. Should Have Consulted

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy says the United States should have consulted the Organization of American States before sending troops to the Dominican Republic, the New York Times reported today.

A Washington dispatch by John D. Morris said the senator, in an interview, expressed deep concern over the administration's unilateral intervention in the Dominican Republic.

Kennedy recalled that his late brother, President John F. Kennedy, had the concurrence of the OAS in moving to force the removal of Soviet missiles from Cuba in 1962.

"I think there should have been consultation prior to any action we would take in the Dominican situation," Kennedy was quoted as saying. "I don't think we addressed ourselves to the implications of what we did."

One such implication, he said, was the possible undermining of relations with friendly Latin-American governments.

Kennedy was elaborating on a theme he sounded in a Senate speech Thursday in connection with passage of a special $700-million military appropriation Johnson had asked primarily for use in Viet Nam. He said then the OAS was not properly notified about U.S. moves in the Dominican situation.

He said every senator agrees with Johnson's determination to prevent establishment of a new Communist state in this hemisphere.

"But this cannot mean that we plan to act on our own without regard to our friends and allies in the Organization of American States," he said.

Russian Audience Applauds Zhukov

MOSCOW, (AP) — A Russian audience in the Kremlin burst into applause today for Russia's late dictator, Joseph Stalin, and his top military commander, Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, who emerged from eight years of obscurity.

The manifestation of sentiment for the two wartime leaders occurred at a meeting in the Kremlin to celebrate the 20th anniversary of V-E Day.

Zhukov, resplendent in full parade uniform and bearing a chest full of medals, made his first public appearance since 1957 when former Premier Khrushchev dismissed him as defense minister in the midst of a party row.

The audience broke into applause when Zhukov and other leaders appeared on the stage. Zhukov took a seat in the front rank of Communist party, government and military figures. He has been credited with some of the greatest Soviet victories in World War II, including Stalingrad and Berlin, but after his 1957 ouster his military role was downgraded.

Baker Secretary, Pilot Killed In Plane Crash

resort from the air with him, they said.

Davis, a commercial pilot for a West Virginia coal company, had flown the plane from Huntington and kept it at the Ocean City airport. Witnesses said they saw the single-engine biplane sweep along the Atlantic beach, turn suddenly up and out to sea, then plunge into the water.

Sam Borzymowski, 18, an office worker from Baltimore, said the plane was "flying sort of low." He and some friends were among thousands sunning themselves on the beach at the time.

"It did an inside loop and it came almost straight down," said Borzymowski. "It came to the crest of the loop, and then went down and sank on impact with the water."

Police Sgt. John Quinn, a friend of Davis, saw the crash while driving along the Ocean Highway. Quinn said he had planned to go aloft with Davis about 30 minutes later, when he was to be relieved from duty.

"They were making a turn about 100 feet off the water, and suddenly they just dropped," Quinn said.

Coast Guardmen searched the area over the 23-foot depth until nearly dark, then withdrew after finding only a tire and an oil slick.

Ocean City officials said the Civil Aeronautics Board had stepped into the investigation today.

"This is a tragedy," said Baker after arriving at Ocean City 3½ hours after the crash. "I can't say any more."

He had come from Washington in a chartered plane upon hearing first reports of the crash. After confirming that Miss Tyler had been aboard the craft, he made arrangements to claim the body, a city official said.

Miss Tyler, a former high school beauty queen from Lenoir City, Tenn., had worked for Baker when he was secretary to the Senate Democratic majority. After he quit because of the Senate investigation into his outside business activities, she remained in his employ.

During the probe she was called as a witness. She invoked the Fifth Amendment in refusing to testify about his purchase and transfer to her and her roommate of a $28,800 Washington town house.

She told newsmen last January, nearly a year after her Senate appearance, that Baker merely had lent his name to the transaction because she and the roommate could not qualify for a federal housing loan.

The Carousel also was prominently mentioned in the Senate investigation as the probers tried to trace methods used by Baker and his partners to finance the venture.

Both men said they believed the car was light-colored, and was a late-model Ford Mustang.

New Red Revolts Forecast In Latin America, Korea

reports to U.S. officials that Communist infiltration from the north by sea is at an all-time high since the end of the Korean war, indicating that the Reds are preparing to reopen guerrilla warfare in South Korea.

In Guatemala and Haiti, increasing numbers of local Communists trained in Havana are returning with large clandestine shipments of Russian-made weapons from Castro's bulging arsenal.

The long, unguarded coastlines of both Caribbean nations and their nearness to Cuba make it almost impossible for Guatemalan or Haitian authorities to halt this well-organized infiltration by Castro.

They contend that only a drum-tight U.S. naval blockade of Cuba, center of this subversion, could choke off this growing threat to their security. So far, U.S. officials have evinced no signs of wanting to take this drastic action against Castro.

Salvation Army Burglarized Of $125 Cash

The Salvation Army Store, 17 W. Colorado Ave., was burglarized of $125 in cash and a number of blank checks between 12 noon Saturday and 5:45 a.m. Monday, police reported.

An employe of the store said the burglars also did approximately $162 damage to a floor safe in the building.

Police said the thieves gained entrance to the store by pushing open an overhead sliding door at the rear of the building. The door to the office, from which the money was taken, is located approximately in the center of the building, police said. The door to the office was pried open by the thieves, who then tipped over the safe and pried and peeled off the door.

Employes of the store said another safe in the front of the building containing $800 in cash was not disturbed by the intruders.

Man Rolled in Alley Today Loses $47

A man was rolled early this morning and $47 in cash was taken from his billfold, police reported.

Ward D. Huffman, 50, 819 N. Wahsatch Ave., told police he went to the Young Men's Social Club, 25 S. Burns Alley, and was refused admittance at approximately 3:10 a.m. today. As he left, four other men followed him from the club, and when they reached an alley a fight began. The four men apparently took $47 in cash from Huffman's billfold, ran to a car parked nearby and drove off.

A witness to the incident said the car used by Huffman's assailants was a late model Pontiac, white with a red stripe on the side.

The four men were described as negro, and one of them was "unusually tall and slim," according to a witness.

Carson Soldier Stabbed in Neck Saturday

A Ft. Carson soldier was stabbed in the neck and left arm at approximately 8:30 p.m. Saturday in the 00 block of West Colorado Ave., police reported.

Robert L. Eiss, 22, Ft. Carson, was taken to Ft. Carson hospital following the incident, and was reported in good condition this morning.

According to Eiss, he and two of his buddies were walking west in the 00 block of West Colorado Avenue when they approached five men standing on the sidewalk. Eiss said that as they passed the group, one of them asked what they were doing there. At this time one of the men with Eiss was struck and knocked to the ground. Another party struck Eiss and knocked him down, and when he got up one of the five men stabbed him.

The two men with Eiss ran across the street to a gas station and then contacted Patrolman James Hermansen.

Eiss and his two friends told police they were going to a roller skating rink, and added they could not identify the five men who attacked them.

er Premier Nikita Khrushchev ousted him as defense minister in 1957. He made his first public appearance in eight years at a Kremlin rally Saturday.

In New York, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Allied commander in chief in World War II, said the time had come for the Soviet Union to "rehabilitate" Zhukov.

"He was a very good soldier," Eisenhower said, "and he tried his best to make things work in Berlin."

Most of the Atlantic alliance ambassadors skipped the parade by what some diplomatic sources said was prior agreement. Only the French and Icelandic ambassadors attended.

The reason for the boycott was reported to be an article in Saturday's Pravda by Soviet Defense Minister Rodion Malinovsky, accusing Western nations of combining to suppress national liberation movements.

Most of the alliance's ambassadors showed up for a Kremlin reception later, but U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler and West Germany's Horst Groepper stayed home then, too.

Malinovsky in a Red Square speech charged that the United States and other Western nations "are again threatening mankind with war."

Thunderstorms Continue in Wide Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Skies were clear over much of the nation today, but thunderstorms continued to plague sections of the Midwest and Plains states through which tornadoes passed in recent days.

Thunderstorm activity was reported from Texas to Michigan, with the heaviest activity from northern Texas and Arkansas.

At Little Rock, Ark., more than an inch and a half of rain fell in a six-hour period Sunday night. A similar dousing was reported near Longview, Tex.

Hail and heavy rain pelted Wichita Falls, Tex., today. Scattered showers fell in parts of Georgia and Florida. Eastern North Dakota and Minnesota also received rain.

Rain might have been welcome in west central South Dakota where a snowfall that started Saturday morning and lasted until noon Sunday caught residents by surprise.

A depth of 31 inches was recorded at Lead near Deadwood, S.D. Drifts were six to seven feet deep in places. City traffic was snarled and persons in fishing cabins were trapped when roads were clogged.

Today's rain was expected to have little effect on the flooding Mississippi which has slowly been dropping in flooded areas after reaching record crests in Iowa, Illinois and Missouri.

The water level at St. Louis today was 25.5 feet, down from a peak of 25.6 feet reached Saturday. Flood stage there is 30 feet.

The level at Quincy, Ill., was 22 feet today, still five feet above flood stage. Hannibal had 22.4 feet, more than six feet above flood stage.

The U.S. Weather Bureau predicted the river will be below flood stage Sunday at Quincy and next Monday at Hannibal. It is expected to be within its banks at all points north of St. Louis by May 18, the bureau said.

Through much of the Western states temperatures remained below normal although warm air hovered over the area from Texas to Michigan and east to the Atlantic.

Vandals Use Paint To Damage House

Vandals caused approximately $500 damage over the weekend when they splashed paint on the inside of a house under construction on Pioneer Lane, police reported.

Dan Howells, owner of Dan Howells and Son Construction Co., told police he discovered the vandalism Sunday morning.

He said the persons who did the damage entered the house from the basement window on the east side of the building. They took a can of paint from the utility room next to the entrance to the house, then went upstairs where they painted several closet doors and two regular doors orange. Obscene names were painted on the walls and a green rug had orange paint spilled on it, according to Howells.

More Rebels Give Up in Laos Strife

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Another 60 army rebels led by a captain surrendered to loyal forces Sunday and the vice chief of staff, Gen. Kouprasith Abhay, said: "That is the end of the Paksane rebellion."

Rebellious remnants came over to government troops a few days after their chief, Col. Khamkeo, was killed May 3.

The rebellion at Paksane, 100 miles east of Vientiane, broke out in mid-April when Col. Khamsao deserted with 200 troops.

Toronto Papers, Union Come To Agreement

TORONTO (AP) — Mailing-room employes who refused to cross printers' picket lines at Toronto's three daily newspapers for 10 months said Friday they have accepted contract terms laid down by the papers and will begin returning to work May 25.

The 225 mailers, members of the Toronto Mailers Union and affiliated with the International Typographical Union, accepted an agreement that fixes wages at the old rate of $146 a week for the next five years and eliminates their traditional closed shop, under which only union members were employed.

The agreement also provides a lifetime guarantee for each mailer against layoff stemming from automation.

The 680 printers, members of Local 91 of the Toronto Typographical Union, went on strike last July 9 and no settlement is in sight. The papers, The Star, The Telegram and The Globe and Mail, have published since the strike started.

The mailers' contract was reached last week by a union committee empowered by the membership to reach an agreement that would get them back to work.

The mailers also accepted a longer work week—35 hours instead of 33¾ — for night-shift workers at the old rate of $153 a week. They received several improvements, including four weeks' vacation after 13 years of service and a new sick benefit and disability plan.

Representatives of the printers and the papers are to meet separately with Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree of Ontario Monday in an effort to get contract talks started again. Negotiations collapsed Aug. 27.

Pivotal issue in the immediate prestrike stage was jurisdiction over multipurpose computers the papers installed to do jobs for different departments — including processing of punched tape, mainly justifying lines, for typesetting.

The union claimed computer jurisdiction while the machines were on composing-room work. The newspapers said this was impossible because of split-second shifts from one type of work to another. This issue was settled on terms essentially the same as those proposed by the publishers.

Imbert said De Los Santos was remaining. He said Wessin would not be a part of the junta but that no consideration had been given to his removal as commander of the armed forces training center.

In San Juan, exiled ex-President Juan Bosch said U.S. military intervention in the Dominican Republic created more Latin-American Communists in a week than the Russians, Red Chinese and Cubans could make in five years.

Bosch said in an interview that U.S. forces, "instead of stopping another Cuba, will make another Cuba."

Referring scornfully to a U.S. list of 53 Communists said to be inside the pro-Bosch revolt, Bosch said: "There are going to be 53,000 Communists in the Dominican Republic because of the Marine intervention, and they will be U.S.-made Communists."

South Dakota Brings Out Its Snowplows

DEADWOOD, S.D. (AP) — Snowplows pulled out of what was supposed to be summer storage were back on the highways today, attacking drifts left by a 31-inch snowfall in the west central South Dakota mountain country.

The snow started Saturday morning and didn't let up until noon Sunday. Deadwood had 30 inches and Lead, less than a mile away, measured 31 inches.

The snow drifted six to seven feet high in places.

People who had gone to their fishing cabins Friday found themselves trapped by snow-clogged roads.

Eight couples who had attended a dinner at a country club five miles from Lead shoveled and pushed their cars for 9½ hours before getting home.

Thawing temperatures followed the snow.

"It isn't as bad now," said a Deadwood resident. "The drifts were over our heads, but now it's below our shoulders."

Four Injured In Two-Car Accident

Four persons were injured Sunday in a two-car crash at Nevada and Willamette Avenues, police reported.

Two passengers in his car received the following injuries: Gary Imus, age unlisted, nose and chin lacerations; and Larry Hemker, 24, laceration above right eye. Both were Ft. Carson soldiers.

Jan Thomas Dudzinski, 44, of 2313 N. 7th St., received a concussion and neck injuries. He was driver of the second vehicle.

Police said the Griffitt car was eastbound on Willamette, apparently failed to stop for a stop sign at the southwest corner of the intersection and collided with the Dudzinski vehicle which was southbound on Nevada.

Griffitt was ticketed for careless driving.

The soldiers were taken to St. Francis Hospital by E & E Ambulance and later transferred to Ft. Carson Hospital. Dudzinski was also taken to St. Francis.

leaders Bob Creel, of Birmingham, grand dragon in Alabama, and Calvin Craig, KKK leader from Atlanta, Ga. Another speaker at the rally was Edward Fields, of Birmingham, information director of the National States Rights party.

Shelton told the audience to "fight for purity of our children" against what he called a Communist conspiracy. He said that the Klan "is battling socialism and the anti-Christs," and that a massive network of Communist conspiracy has taken hold of the federal government.

He attacked President Johnson. He said he would welcome an investigation of the KKK.

If such a probe was carried through, Shelton said, "these Communist groups would have to be investigated, too."

Many of the Klan leaders were dressed in business suits when they paraded but their followers were garbed in KKK robes. Some women were seen pushing baby carriages as they went.

The paraders were watched by an estimated 1,000 curious citizens. Only one Negro was seen on the street. The marchers had received a parade permit and were not bothered by police.

resort from the air with him, they said.

Davis, a commercial pilot for a West Virginia coal company, had flown the plane from Huntington and kept it at the Ocean City airport. Witnesses said they saw the single-engine biplane swoop along the Atlantic beach, turn suddenly up and out to sea, then plunge into the water.

Sam Borzymowski, 18, an office worker from Baltimore, said the plane was "flying sort of low." He and some friends were among thousands sunning themselves on the beach at the time.

"It did an inside loop and it came almost straight down," said Borzymowski. "It came to the crest of the loop, and then went down and sank on impact with the water."

Police Sgt. John Quinn, a friend of Davis, saw the crash while driving along the Ocean Highway. Quinn said he had planned to go aloft with Davis about 30 minutes later, when he was to be relieved from duty.

"They were making a turn about 100 feet off the water, and suddenly they just dropped," Quinn said.

Coast Guardmen searched the area over the 23-foot depth until nearly dark, then withdrew after finding only a tire and an oil slick.

Ocean City officials said the Civil Aeronautics Board had stepped into the investigation today.

"This is a tragedy," said Baker after arriving at Ocean City 3½ hours after the crash. "I can't say any more."

He had come from Washington in a chartered plane upon hearing first reports of the crash. After confirming that Miss Tyler had been aboard the craft, he made arrangements to claim the body, a city official said.

Miss Tyler, a former high school beauty queen from Lenoir City, Tenn., had worked for Baker when he was secretary to the Senate Democratic majority. After he quit because of the Senate investigation into his outside business activities, she remained in his employ.

During the probe she was called as a witness. She invoked the Fifth Amendment in refusing to testify about his purchase and transfer to her and her roommate of a $28,800 Washington town house.

She told newsmen last January, nearly a year after her Senate appearance, that Baker merely had lent his name to the transaction because she and the roommate could not qualify for a federal housing loan.

The Carousel also was prominently mentioned in the Senate investigation as the probers tried to trace methods used by Baker and his partners to finance the venture.

Cpl. Edward Roebken and Patrolman Neal Stratton reported they were sitting in their patrol car parked on Cucharras Street near the scene of the accident. They said they didn't see the accident but upon hearing it they gave chase to the hit and run vehicle, losing it in an area near Cucharras Street and Sahwatch Street. Both men said they believed the car was light-colored, and was a late-model Ford Mustang.

A radio aerial found at the scene of the accident was believed to belong to the hit and run vehicle. Police said the car probably had some front end damage, but they weren't sure how much.

In Guatemala and Haiti, increasing numbers of local Communists trained in Havana are returning with large clandestine shipments of Russian-made weapons from Castro's bulging arsenal.

The long, unguarded coastlines of both Caribbean nations and their nearness to Cuba make it almost impossible for Guatemalan or Haitian authorities to halt this well-organized infiltration by Castro.

They contend that only a drum-tight U.S. naval blockade of Cuba, center of this subversion, could choke off this growing threat to their security. So far, U.S. officials have evinced no signs of wanting to take this drastic action against Castro.

Salvation Army Burglarized Of $125 Cash

The Salvation Army Store, 17 W. Colorado Ave., was burglarized of $125 in cash and a number of blank checks between 12 noon Saturday and 5:45 a.m. Monday, police reported.

An employe of the store said the burglars also did approximately $102 damage to a floor safe in the building.

Police said the thieves gained entrance to the store by pushing open an overhead sliding door at the rear of the building. The door to the office, from which the money was taken, is located approximately in the center of the building, police said. The door to the office was pried open by the thieves, who then tipped over the safe and pried and peeled off the door.

Employes of the store said another safe in the front of the building containing $600 in cash was not disturbed by the intruders.

Man Rolled in Alley Today Loses $47

A man was rolled early this morning and $47 in cash was taken from his billfold, police reported.

Ward D. Huffman, 50, 819 N. Wahsatch Ave., told police he went to the Young Men's Social Club, 25 S. Burns Alley, and was refused admittance at approximately 3:10 a.m. today. As he left, four other men followed him from the club, and when they reached an alley a fight began. The four men apparently took $47 in cash from Huffman's billfold, ran to a car parked nearby and drove off.

A witness to the incident said the car used by Huffman's assailants was a late model Pontiac, white with a red stripe on the side.

The four men were described as negro, and one of them was "unusually tall and slim," according to a witness.

Four Persons Killed In Kashmir Rioting

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Four persons were killed and a number arrested during a weekend of rioting in Kashmir over India's sending Sheik Mohammed Abdullah into exile.

An Indian government spokesman blamed the strife on nationalist groups and the Awami action committee, which wants the accession of Kashmir to Pakistan.

Supporters of Abdullah, 60-year-old "Lion of Kashmir," claimed at least 14 persons have been killed and that about 400 persons have been seized. Police denied the arrest figure.

Carson Soldier Stabbed in Neck Saturday

A Ft. Carson soldier was stabbed in the neck and left arm at approximately 8:30 p.m. Saturday in the 00 block of West Colorado Ave., police reported.

Robert L. Eiss, 22, Ft. Carson, was taken to Ft. Carson hospital following the incident, and was reported in good condition this morning.

According to Eiss, he and two of his buddies were walking west in the 00 block of West Colorado Avenue when they approached five men standing on the sidewalk. Eiss said that as they passed the group, one of them asked what they were doing there. At this time one of the men with Eiss was struck and knocked to the ground. Another party struck Eiss and knocked him down, and when he got up one of the five men stabbed him.

The two men with Eiss ran across the street to a gas station and then contacted Patrolman James Hermansen.

Eiss and his two friends told police they were going to a roller skating rink, and added they could not identify the five men who attacked them.

er Premier Nikita Khrushchev ousted him as defense minister in 1957. He made his first public appearance in eight years at a Kremlin rally Saturday.

In New York, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Allied commander in chief in World War II, said the time had come for the Soviet Union to "rehabilitate" Zhukov.

"He was a very good soldier," Eisenhower said, "and he tried his best to make things work in Berlin."

Most of the Atlantic alliance ambassadors skipped the parade by what some diplomatic sources said was prior agreement. Only the French and Icelandic ambassadors attended.

The reason for the boycott was reported to be an article in Saturday's Pravda by Soviet Defense Minister Rodion Malinovsky, accusing Western nations of combining to suppress national liberation movements.

Most of the alliance's ambassadors showed up for a Kremlin reception later, but U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler and West Germany's Horst Groepper stayed home then, too.

Malinovsky in a Red Square speech charged that the United States and other Western nations "are again threatening mankind with war."

But Westerners here considered the speech less harsh in tone than others he has made and more in keeping with the moderate approach to the United States taken by Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev Saturday.

The Soviet leaders also called on "all nuclear powers solemnly to announce to all the world their renunciation of the use of nuclear weapons."

The appeal was contained in a lengthy peace appeal "to all countries" reiterating the frequent Soviet calls for general disarmament.

"The year of the 20th anniversary of the victory over Hitlerism must be marked by an intensification of the struggle for liquidation of the hotbeds of war," the statement said.

First, it said, "it is necessary to halt the U.S. aggression in Viet Nam."

Colonial wars must be ended, it asserted, listing the Dominican Republic, the Congo, Angola and Mozambique as examples.

Two Accidents With Injuries Reported Here

Two accidents with injuries were reported by the State Patrol over the weekend.

The first occurred at 12:15 p.m. Sunday in Monument.

Wolfgang Mannweiler, 16, 2616 Mt. Vernon St., suffered a fractured lower right leg when his motorcycle plunged off 3rd Street in Monument. Mannweiler was eastbound on 3rd Street at the time and ran off the road on the right side. He went into a three foot deep ditch and fell over, breaking his leg. He was taken to Penrose Hospital by private vehicle following the accident.

The second accident occurred at 2:10 a.m. Sunday morning, when a car driven by Thomas F. Gillette, 27, Manitou Springs, ran off a ramp leading to nIterstate 25, just east of Nevada Avenue.

Gillette suffered a bruised left leg, and was released at the scene.

According to the report, Gillette was eastbound on the ramp leading to northbound Interstate 25, and was making a 90 degree turn to the right. His car was apparently going too fast for the curve, and he skidded off the roadway to the left, rolling over once.

The car, a 1962 model Austin-Healey, was a total loss with approximately $2,300 damage, according to the patrol.

Thunderstorms Continue in Wide Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Skies were clear over much of the nation today, but thunderstorms continued to plague sections of the Midwest and Plains states through which tornadoes passed in recent days.

Thunderstorm activity was reported from Texas to Michigan, with the heaviest activity from northern Texas and Arkansas.

At Little Rock, Ark., more than an inch and a half of rain fell in a six-hour period Sunday night. A similar dousing was reported near Longview, Tex.

Hail and heavy rain pelted Wichita Falls, Tex., today. Scattered showers fell in parts of Georgia and Florida. Eastern North Dakota and Minnesota also received rain.

Rain might have been welcome in west central South Dakota where a snowfall that started Saturday morning and lasted until noon Sunday caught residents by surprise.

A depth of 31 inches was recorded at Lead near Deadwood, S.D. Drifts were six to seven feet deep in places. City traffic was snarled and persons in fishing cabins were trapped when roeds were clogged.

Today's rain was expected to have little effect on the flooding Mississippi which has slowly been dropping in flooded areas after reaching record crests in Iowa, Illinois and Missouri.

The water level at St. Louis today was 25.5 feet, down from a peak of 25.6 feet reached Saturday. Flood stage there is 30 feet.

The level at Quincy, Ill., was 22 feet today, still five feet above flood stage. Hannibal had 22.4 feet, more than six feet above flood stage.

The U.S. Weather Bureau predicted the river will be below flood stage Sunday at Quincy and next Monday at Hannibal. It is expected to be within its banks at all points north of St. Louis by May 18, the bureau said.

Through much of the Western states temperatures remained below normal although warm air hovered over the area from Texas to Michigan and east to the Atlantic.

Vandals Use Paint To Damage House

Vandals caused approximately $500 damage over the weekend when they splashed paint on the inside of a house under construction on Pioneer Lane, police reported.

Dan Howells, owner of Dan Howells and Son Construction Co., told police he discovered the vandalism Sunday morning.

He said the persons who did the damage entered the house from the basement window on the east side of the building. They took a can of paint from the utility room next to the entrance to the house, then went upstairs where they painted several closet doors and two regular doors orange. Obscene names were painted on the walls and a green rug had orange paint spilled on it, according to Howells.

More Rebels Give Up in Laos Strife

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Another 60 army rebels led by a captain surrendered to loyal forces Sunday and the vice chief of staff, Gen. Kouprasith Abhay, said: "That is the end of the Paksane rebellion."

Rebellious remnants came over to government troops a few days after their chief, Col. Khapkeo, was killed May 3.

The rebellion at Paksane, 100 miles east of Vientiane, broke out in mid-April when Col. Khamsao deserted with 200 troops.

The general staff estimated a total of 800 men was eventually involved in the rebellion, which was sparked by officers seeking the return of ousted Gen. Phoumi Nosavan.

They were declared persona non grata in a government note to Soviet Ambassador Ivan Shpedko Tuesday. They left Canada Friday.

"We hope that by awarding these certificates," he said, "we may help the FTA sponsors in their work and encourage the best students to enter the teaching profession."

Palmer to Hold Orientation Meet

Palmer High School will hold its annual orientation meeting for incoming sophomores and their parents at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The program will begin with a general meeting in the auditorium where student officers will talk about the student government, clubs, and other extra-curricular activities. The new students will then go to sponsor group meetings. Teachers will explain the daily schedule and the school's academic requirements.

Parents are invited to accompany their children to the meeting to acquaint themselves with the school and its requirements.

Four Injured In Two-Car Accident

Four persons were injured Sunday in a two-car crash at Nevada and Willamette Avenues. police reported.

Two passengers in his car received the following injuries: Gary Imus, age unlisted, nose and chin lacerations; and Larry Hemker, 24, laceration above right eye. Both were Ft. Carson soldiers.

Jan Thomas Dudzinski, 44, of 2313 N. 7th St., received a concussion and neck injuries. He was driver of the second vehicle.

Police said the Griffitt car was eastbound on Willamette, apparently failed to stop for a stop sign at the southwest corner of the intersection and collided with the Dudzinski vehicle which was southbound on Nevada.

Griffitt was ticketed for careless driving.

The soldiers were taken to St. Francis Hospital by E & E Ambulance and later transferred to Ft. Carson Hospital. Dudzinski was also taken to St. Francis.

Klan Leaders Stage Massive Alabama Rally

leaders Bob Creel, of Birmingham, grand dragon in Alabama, and Calvin Craig, KKK leader from Atlanta, Ga. Another speaker at the rally was Edward Fields, of Birmingham, information director of the National States Rights party.

Shelton told the audience to "fight for purity of our children" against what he called a Communist conspiracy. He said that the Klan "is battling socialism and the anti-Christs," and that a massive network of Communist conspiracy has taken hold of the federal government.

He attacked President Johnson. He said he would welcome an investigation of the KKK.

If such a probe was carried through, Shelton said, "some Communist groups would have to be investigated, too."

Many of the Klan leaders were dressed in business suits when they paraded but other followers were garbed in Klan robes. Some women were seen pushing baby carriages as they went.

The paraders were watched by an estimated 1,000 curious citizens. Only one Negro was seen on the street. The marchers had received a parade permit and were not bothered by police.

Rusk Denies U.S. Is Using Gunboat Diplomacy Again

the Communists have a priority list of Latin-American governments that they hope to subvert and overthrow. He named no nations. Vaughn appeared on a taped television interview with Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La.

—Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance said on ABC's "Issues and Answers" radio-television program that "from a military standpoint we are prepared to handle such contingencies as may arise."

—Two Republican senators, Nebraska's Roman L. Hruska and Colorado's Gordon Allott, said on a taped radio-television program that President Johnson should maintain military forces in the Dominican Republic to prevent a Communist takeover. Two other Republicans, Sen. Clifford P. Case of New Jersey and House GOP Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan, also expressed support for Johnson's Dominican policy.

In his AP interview Saturday, Rusk said time factors were crucial as U.S. Marines hurried ashore at Santo Domingo April 28 "just in time to avoid a major calamity." He said there had been no opportunity to take this up with the OAS in advance.

He said "as soon as the action was taken, ambassadors to the OAS were informed and a meeting was called to enable the OAS to take jurisdiction.

"Given the circumstances and the necessity for OAS ambassadors to obtain instructions from their governments, OAS action has been prompt.

"However, the pace of events in this case does indicate that the OAS should consider standby forces and political arrangements that would enable that organization to make decisions and to take action in any future emergency with a speed required by the course of events.

Young readers constantly write in to complain about their lack of home privacy.

"Why are parents so snoopy? Why do they have to know everything? After I come home from a date, my mother always quizzes me the next day. Where did we go, what did we do, who did we go with, who did we see, what did we eat? If I hesitate or get angry at her questions, she accuses me of doing something wrong!

"Even when I'm just sitting in my own room, reading or thinking, my parents want to know what I'm doing. They barge right in, without knocking and then they get upset and think I'm sick-minded or something because I like to lock my door."

Just how much privacy should a young person be entitled to at home?

Why do parents ask: "Who is that letter from?" "What's in it?" "Where did you go last night?" "What did you do with all your money?" "Why are you doing that?" "Who called just now; what did he want?"

One parent summed things concisely. "We want to be included in our children's lives so we can guide them properly and protect them, if necessary, from trouble and unhappiness."

"The motive's fine, and we appreciate it," protested one high school senior, "but many parents fail to realize that they can't go on protecting and hovering over us forever and ever. As we grow older, we should be allowed more freedom to think and act as we think proper. There should be a little more trust and a little less third degree each time we move!"

A psychiatrist agreed and explained, "When a child gets to about the eighth grade, he begins to break away from his parents. He wants increased areas of privacy; he doesn't want to share as much as he used to.

"Parents start feeling left out and the young folks feel guilty about keeping secrets from their parents, but this is necessary for them to become independent. This is a perfectly normal stage in the growing-up process.

"A wise man once said, 'Supervise youth; accept them; believe in them — but don't put them in a small cage where you can watch them all the time.' These are words parents should keep in mind."

We asked a group of young people what they felt should be forbidden areas to parents. Two replies were unanimous choices: Mail and phone calls.

"Whenever I get a letter, my parents ask who it is from, and what is in it," said an irate male, "and sometimes, they want to read it. I don't open or ask to read their private mail, and they shouldn't ask me to permit that either."

"Parents are violating unspoken agreements if they snoop around their offspring's mail," nodded a girl in agreement. "We're people, just like grown-ups and if parents expect us to act like adults, they'll have to treat us like adults, too!

"If a parent suspects that we've done something wrong, he shouldn't snoop around letters to find evidence; he should ask first and then if answers don't satisfy him, then maybe it's OK for him to demand to see the letter. But regular letters from friends are harmless and shouldn't be checked by parents."

While they felt that parents had rights to place restrictions on the use of the phone, the group agreed that parents had no right to listen in on their phone calls.

"What gets me," began a young high school girl, "is when my folks start asking me a million questions after a phone call. They have to know exactly who called, what he said, why he called, etc. They are not satisfied until they have a detailed report on my entire conversation."

"When I want to take a phone call in another more private room, they get suspicious and wonder why I have to be so secretive," said a male student. "They don't seem to understand that sometimes a guy likes to talk with his buddies alone — not that we're planning anything bad."

"If a teen-ager has his own room, that should be private, too," many pointed out. "Just as parents like us to knock before we enter their room, we appreciate that courtesy extended to us, too. We just want to be alone sometimes and to feel that the room is strictly ours, not the family living room."

"If it is impossible to consider the entire room as off-limits for parents, then there are special areas in the room or special things in the room that can be, such as a diary, a desk, drawers, boxes, etc. Parents should respect their children's requests about not fussing with certain things."

One person was distressed about privacy in the bathroom. "This should certainly be private, even if the door is not locked. As long as the door is closed, this should mean 'keep out' or 'please knock first.' Of course, the considerate person doesn't overstay in the bathroom if someone is eagerly waiting. The point is: people shouldn't barge right into the bathroom if someone is already in, even a teen-ager, without first asking for permission."

The group disagreed when it came to books. One faction insisted that parents had no right to interfere in the selection of their children's reading matter. "Smart parents encourage good books, instead of trying to outlaw bad books."

But an articulate spokesman for the other position said "Books are the building blocks in a person's intellectual development. Certain books are more destructive; they warp a person's way of thinking. This is definitely an area that should be checked by parents periodically. When the individual is mentally mature, then he can read material of his own choosing."

One male student complained that his parents checked the car mileage gauge after his weekend driving. But the majority of the gang supported the parents' actions.

"If a teen goes out with the car simply to burn gas, he could get into trouble, and if he does, the parents would be held responsible. So the parent should check the mileage gauge if he suspects trouble."

A far-sighted teen-ager summed up, "Parents are testing us out by asking all these questions. If we keep out of trouble, if we can show them that we're sensible and responsible enough to steer clear of mischief, they'll probably stop worrying about us and start respecting our privacy. In other words, we have to earn our privacy by showing them that we're mature enough to act properly." (A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature)

A COLUMNIST REPORTS ON HOLLYWOOD GOLFERS

HOLLYWOOD — In golf circles they call Arnold Palmer's fans "Arnie's Army." CBS sent a man up to the Las Vegas tournament to see how well Frank Sinatra did with the crowd. They now call him the Pied Piper. Speaking of golf, Jackie Gleason phoned from New York in high good humor to say, "I just trimmed your pal, Bob Hope, out of $5,000 in our match." He was ecstatic about the possibility of doing "The Odd Couple" on screen.

I wonder if Lorne Greene saw the TV show, "The Real West," which Gary Cooper did just before he rode off into the sunset. That was the real west and if Greene had seen it, I don't believe he would have attempted another. As for singing, he should leave that to singers. While I'm at it, isn't the Ponderosa supposed to be a ranch? I've never seen any of those big hunks of men do a lick of work.

Lynda Bird Johnson saw "Les Poupees de Paris' at the World's fair, fell in love with the Mae West puppet, so Marty Krofft had one made for her. This must be a first for a puppet show. They'll have a national company. It breaks in for two weeks at Harvey's in Tahoe, then opens at Tommy Fung's new theater at Fisherman's wharf, San Francisco.

What with the earthquake in Alaska last year and in Washington last week, Ganna Walska is fearful that we are long overdue, so she'll auction off some of her beautiful possessions in Santa Barbara. Which gave Robert Q. Lewis the idea of selling his wonderful collection of Victorian glass.

The ball started rolling about Charlie Chaplin's returning to the United States. A letter from Mrs. Dinah Kaplan, whose husband is financial secretary of Free Sons of Israel: "I'm with you a hundred per cent. We forgive too quickly. Chaplin loves our money but hates our country. I was born in England. He should never be allowed in here again; nor should he take one American dollar out. Let's also try to stop the showing of his movies. Let him stay near his commie friends."

Mario Lanza fans write me his "Toast of New Orleans" and "Great Caruso" are smash hits in Russia. Why not? The Russian people always worshiped art. Still do.

Jim Nabors shared the spotlight with Kay Starr at Harrah's, and got a standing ovation when he sang opera. He's signed for three weeks with his own show in June, '66. As soon as he finishes up there, he'll join Producer Aaron Ruben in London and scout around for locations to shoot some episodes of Gomer Pyle. They're thinking of having Gomer guard our embassy.

Art Linkletter got the Exemplary Manhood award at Brigham Young university in Provo, Utah. The winner last year was George Romney. It's the highest medal the Mormons bestow on a non-Mormon. After three weeks in Australia, Art returns to take over Red Skelton's hour this summer for a talent show.

Alfred Chadbourn showed his paintings of Red Skelton, Ray Burr, Jackie Gleason, Richard Crenna, the cast of Gilligan's Island, Walter Cronkite, and others at the Hilton hotel. Chadbourn brought his family along — his mother, wife, and five children. The youngest is two — she's adorable. Also with him was the Armenian nurse who took care of him when he was a baby and his father was ambassador to Turkey. A mad dog attacked Chadbourn; the nurse threw herself in front of him and saved his life. She still bears the scars — and she's still with them.

More than 25 members of the press from all over attended the showing, as did Jim Bowling and many CBS affiliates. Also Susan Oliver with her mother, Ruth, a charmer and fine astrologer who was named for Ruth Hale Broun. Susan leaves for New York soon to appear in "A Remedy for Winter," Freddie Brisson's new. They'll tour New England before going to New York.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

It Figures!

DEAR ABBY: I have a very dear friend who has a fabulous figure, but she seems to be ashamed of it. She is 38-24-36, and wears her clothes a couple of sizes too big for her in an effort to hide this fabulous figure of hers. She is 26 years old and teaches school. She's unmarried, and at the rate she's going she never wil be. Is there anything I can do to help her? She is on the quiet side, "churchy," and I am sure she could have men flocking around her in droves if she would only show what she's got. —A VERY DEAR FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: If your 'fabulously figured friend is living a contented, rewarding life, how do you figure in the role of matchmaker? What a girl does with her statistics is her business. And if you expect to keep her as a "very dear friend," enjoy her as she is.

DEAR ABBY: I am just like any other high school freshman. I want to be popular, but the boys want too much. I don't want a reputation as a "goody-goody," but you just can't keep giving a boy more and more without getting into trouble. What does a girl do when she gives a guy a finger and he wants a whole hand? —DEBBIE

DEAR DEBBIE: If she's smart, she compromises. She gives him the BACK of her hand.

DEAR ABBY: We have a little summer cottage on a lake where we entertain week-end guests. It's nothing fancy. We can sleep six—no more. I invited my sister's daughter, a college freshman, for the weekend. She asked if she could bring a friend along, and I said certainly. I also invited four other college girls — nieces on my husband's side. When my sister's daughter arrived with her "friend"—we were floored. The friend turned out to be an associate professor from her college. It upset our sleeping arrangements. My husband had to sleep with the professor and I slept with the girls. I didn't like the obvious familiarity between my niece and her friend at all. Feeling responsible for anything that might take place under my roof, I made sure either my husband or I was there every minute. And we stayed up until everyone had gone to bed. My niece resented it, but I didn't care. Should I tell her mother about this episode? My husband says no. —CONCERNED AUNT

DEAR AUNT: If she were YOUR daughter, would you want to know?

DEAR ABBY: My sister-in-law is the world's worst housekeeper. I do love her, and she has many good qualities, but if you ever saw the way her house looks you wouldn't believe it. She does have four kids, and only one of them is in school, but that's no excuse.

Well, she's outgrown her present house and she and my brother are moving into a brand new one that's bigger. The family wants to get together and buy her a house gift. Everything she has is beat-up, so she can use almost anything. What can you suggest for about $50? —MAGGIE

DEAR MAGGIE: Buy her a lamp. Maybe it will throw a little light on the subject.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Ladies:

About a year ago, a woman wrote and told us to grate cheese as soon as we bring it home from the store and put it in plastic bags in our freezer. I have found that this is a wonderful idea.

The grandest thing about it is that you can always remove the exact amount you need. The cheese doesn't stick together when frozen and it thaws instantly. So why dirty your grater each time you need a bit of cheese when you can shred it all at once?

I think I have uses for this grated cheese that you will all love, especially when you are on a tight budget.

Try sprinkling some on a lettuce and tomato sandwich. All you do is spread some mustard or mayonnaise (and if you mix the two, it's even better) on some bread or toast. Add your sliced tomato and lettuce and some grated cheese. Then add anything else you want . . . such as pickles or a dash of celery salt.

Make it thick!

And know what else?

You can also spread the mustard mixture on a piece of bread, put sliced pickles on it, add a couple of slices of tomato and broil it for a few minutes. Pile some grated cheese on top of the broiled tomato.

At this time, lay a topper (that's another piece of bread) in the broiler so it will toast on one side, and as soon as the grated cheese melts, put the topper on . . . toasted side down. Easier to eat! It's marvelous.

Here are some variations you can use with cooked, leftover sausage, ham or breakfast bacon. If you have only one or two pieces of bacon, cut them up and sprinkle the pieces over the tomato. Just cook under broiler with everything except the cheese. Then toss the finely grated cheese on top.

Another thing I have found is that the grated cheese makes a wonderful cold lunch for those who carry lunches.

Here's how to do it:

Put mustard, butter (I use oleo) or mayonnaise on your bread, add a piece of lettuce, then add that frozen grated cheese and pile it high! By the time noon comes, the cheese is thawed. Oh, it's so different. The sandwich will stand up twice as high. It's light, puffy and invigorating . . . nothing like a plain slice of cheese.

Try it —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I wonder how many folks have found it hard to get string for their tomato vines that will not slip down on the stakes or rot.

I have found that the tops of old nylon stockings, cut in one-inch strips, are just perfect.

The stockings give just enough to keep the vines from choking, are strong enough to last (if tied in a single or double bow knot), and they are easy to remove when it comes time to pull up the stakes.

These strips can be rolled into a ball and used next season. —Mrs. J. C. Davidson

Dear Heloise:

My husband burned a hole in a pair of slacks, so he got this smart idea.

He cut a piece of the material from an inside seam of the pants, then used a piece of iron-on tape over this material (on the inside of the slacks).

I couldn't find where he had mended the burned hole, and the patch is holding out so far. —Mary Ann Paul

Dear Heloise:

I keep a new, small paint-brush just for brushing the crumbs out of my electric toaster.

The brush does a much better and quicker job than anything else I have tried. —Harriet

Heloise welcomes all mail, especially household hints which she can pass on to readers in her column. However, because of the tremendous volume of mail she receives daily, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will answer readers' questions in her column whenever possible.

Goren on Bridge

By CHARLES H. GOREN

Q. 1—As South you hold:
Spades, A-Q-10-4; Hearts, K-Q-10-6; Diamonds, A-3-2; Clubs, 10-4.

The bidding has preceded:

South	West	North	East
1 Spd.	Pass	1 N.T.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Two hearts. Although a balanced holding of more or less minimum proportions normally calls for a pass when partner has responded with one notrump, an exception is to be noted when the opening bidder has both majors. This is to allow for those hands where the responder has a heart suit that he was not strong enough to bid at the two level. If there should prove to be a good fit, game is not entirely out of the question.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
Spades, K-Q-8-4-3; Hearts, 7-5-2; Diamonds, 8-4; Clubs, K-10-3.

The bidding has preceded:

North	East	South
1 N.T.	Pass	?

What is your response?

A.—Two clubs. With a five card spade suit and a worthless doubleton, some effort should be made to probe for a suit contract. Since an immediate response of two spades to one notrump is now employed to designate a week hand, you must bid two clubs first. If partner says two spades, you will raise to three. If he says either two diamonds or two hearts, you will then bid two spades inviting him to go on.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
Spades, A-8-5; Hearts, K-Q; Diamonds, Q-J-10-5-2; Clubs, A-J-9.

The bidding has precedd:

South	West	North	East
1 N.T.	Pass	2 Cb.	Pass
2 Dia.	Pass	2 Spds.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades. Although partner's two spade bid is not forcing, you have more than a minimum notrump and should make an attempt to reach game. With normal trump support and a doubleton, a spade raise is preferred to a rebid of two notrump.

Q.4—As dealer you hold:
Spades, J-10-8-4-2; Hearts, K-Q; Diamonds, 9-3; Clubs, A-K-9-4.

What is your opening bid?

A.—For the sake of convenience all week five card suits should be treated as four carders. On this basis the proper opening would be one club. This allows for much greater convenience on the rebid and it is no hardship to have partner proceed upon the belief that your spades are only four cards long.

.Q 5—As South you hold:
Spades, J-8-3; Hearts, Q-9-8; Diamonds, K-2; Clubs, 9-6-5-3-2.

The bidding has preceded:

North	East	South	West
1 Dia.	Pass	1 N.T.	2 Spds.
3 Hrts.	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A. — Partner's bid of three hearts was of a highly aggressive character and, although at the time you made your response your hand was minimum for the purpose, the bidding has shown that you have two key cards in the red suits. It, therefore, behooves you not to pass. The suggested call is four diamonds, returning to partner's longer suit. If it should develop that partner has six diamonds and five hearts, he will be in a position to rebid hearts and clarify the situation.

Q. 6—As South you hold:
Spades, J-4; Hearts, A-10-5; Diamonds, Q-8-4-2; Clubs, J-10-6-2.

The bidding has preceded:

North	East	South	West
1 Spd.	Pass	1 N.T.	Pass
3 Hrts.	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A. — Having already performed your full duty, you should withdraw in the comfort of having reached a superior contract. If partner had enough to produce game opposite your bidding he would have jumped to three hearts.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
Spades, A-10; Hearts, A-J; Diamonds, A-K-Q-7-5; Clubs, J-9-8-3.

The bidding has preceded:

North	East	South
1 Spd.	Pass	?

What is your response?

A.—An immediate jump shift is clearly indicated, for this hand has obvious slam potentialities. The only acceptable answer, therefore, is three diamonds.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
Spades, A; Hearts, J-4-2; Diamonds, K-J-8-5; Clubs, A-K-J-10-3.

The bidding has preceded:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 Cb.
1 Spd.	2 Dia.	2 Spds.	?

What do you bid now?

A. — Despite partner's previous pass, the outlook for slam is very bright. All he needs to produce a reasonable play for slam is a good diamond suit and no more than one losing heart. The better to discover the possibilities of the hand, an immediate game forcing bid of three spades should be made. If partner happens to show the heart control you may contract for slam. In the absence of such showing, you will support diamonds vigorously on the next round and if he has a singleton heart, he may be able to proceed to slam.

Tunisian President Defies Arab Bloc

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia says he is certain other Arab countries will join him in retaining diplomatic relations with West Germany once it establishes official ties with Israel.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic has called on all Arab states for a diplomatic break with Bonn.

"I continue to hold the opinion that friendship with Germany must be maintained," Bourguiba told the Munich newspaper Sueddeutsche Zeitung in an interview published Sunday.

"Among the allies I have found in this opinion, Libya and Morocco have openly sided with me. Several other states, which are also on my line, so far have not taken it in public."

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Ladies:

About a year ago, a woman wrote and told us to grate cheese as soon as we bring it home from the store and put it in plastic bags in our freezer. I have found that this is a wonderful idea.

The grandest thing about it is that you can always remove the exact amount you need. The cheese doesn't stick together when frozen and it thaws instantly. So why dirty your grater each time you need a bit of cheese when you can shred it all at once?

I think I have uses for this grated cheese that you will all love, especially when you are on a tight budget.

Try sprinkling some on a lettuce and tomato sandwich. All you do is spread some mustard or mayonnaise (and if you mix the two, it's even better) on some bread or toast Add your sliced tomato and lettuce and some grated cheese. Then add anything else you want . . . such as pickles or a dash of celery salt.

Make it thick!

And know what else?

You can also spread the mustard mixture on a piece of bread, put sliced pickles on it, add a couple of slices of tomato and broil it for a few minutes. Pile some grated cheese on top of the broiled tomato.

At this time lay a topper (that's another piece of bread) in the broiler so it will toast on one side, and as soon as the grated cheese melts, put the topper on . . . toasted side down. Easier to eat! It's marvelous.

Here are some variations you can use with cooked, leftover sausage, ham or breakfast bacon. If you have only one or two pieces of bacon, cut them up and sprinkle the pieces over the tomato. Just cook under broiler with everything except the cheese. Then toss the finely grated cheese on top.

Another thing I have found is that the grated cheese makes a wonderful cold lunch for those who carry lunches.

Here's how to do it:

Put mustard, butter (I use oleo) or mayonnaise on your bread, add a piece of lettuce, then add that frozen grated cheese and pile it high! By the time noon comes, the cheese is thawed. Oh, it's so different. The sandwich will stand up twice as high. It's light, puffy and invigorating . . . nothing like a plain slice of cheese.

Try it —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I wonder how many folks have found it hard to get string for their tomato vines that will not slip down on the stakes or rot.

I have found that the tops of old nylon stockings, cut in one-inch strips, are just perfect.

The stockings give just enough to keep the vines from choking, are strong enough to last (if tied in a single or double bow knot), and they are easy to remove when it comes time to pull up the stakes.

These strips can be rolled into a ball and used next season. —Mrs. J. C. Davidson

Dear Heloise:

My husband burned a hole in a pair of slacks, so he got this smart idea.

He cut a piece of the material from an inside seam of the pants, then used a piece of iron on tape over this material (on the inside of the slacks).

I couldn't find where he had mended the burned hole, and the patch is holding out so far. —Mary Ann Paul

Dear Heloise:

I keep a new, small paintbrush just for brushing the crumbs out of my electric toaster.

The brush does a much better and quicker job than anything else I have tried. —Harriet

Heloise welcomes all mail, especially household hints which she can pass on to readers as space permits. However, because of the tremendous volume of mail she receives daily, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will answer readers' questions in her column whenever possible.

Goren on Bridge

By CHARLES H. GOREN

Q. 1—As South you hold: Spades, A-Q-10-5; Hearts, K-Q-10-9; Diamonds, A-3-2; Clubs, 10-9.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East

What do you bid now?

A.—Two hearts. Although a balanced holding of more or less minimum proportions normally calls for a pass when partner has responded with one notrump, an exception is to be noted when the opening bidder has both majors. This is to allow for those hands where the responder has a heart suit that he was not strong enough to bid at the two level. If there should prove to be a good fit, game is not entirely out of the question.

Q. 2—As South you hold: Spades, K-Q-9-4-3; Hearts, 7-5-2; Diamonds, 8-4; Clubs, K-10-3.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 N.T.	Pass	?

What is your response?

A.—Two clubs. With a five card spade suit and a worthless doubleton, some effort should be made to probe for a suit contract. Since an immediate response of two spades to one notrump is now employed to designate a weak hand, you must bid two clubs first. If partner says two spades, you will raise to three. If he says either two diamonds or two hearts, you will then bid two spades inviting him to go on.

Q. 3—As South you hold: Spades, A-8-5; Hearts, K-Q; Diamonds, Q-J-10-5-2; Clubs, A-J-9.

The bidding has procedd:

South	West	North	East
1 N.T.	Pass	2 Clb.	Pass
2 Dia.	Pass	2 Spds.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades. Although partner's two spade bid is not forcing, you have more than a minimum notrump and should make an attempt to reach game. With normal trump support and a doubleton, a spade raise is preferred to a rebid of two notrump.

Q.4—As dealer you hold: Spades, J-10-8-4-2; Hearts, K-Q; Diamonds, 9-3; Clubs, A-K-9-4.

What is your opening bid?

A.—For the sake of convenience all weak five card suits should be treated as four carders. On this basis the proper opening would be one club. This allows for much greater convenience on the rebid and it is no hardship to have partner proceed upon the belief that your spades are only four cards long.

.Q 5—As South you hold: Spades, J-8-3; Hearts, Q-9-8; Diamonds, K-2; Clubs, 9-6-5-3-2.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 Dia.	Pass	1 N.T.	2 Spds.
3 Hrts.	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A. — Partner's bid of three hearts was of a highly aggressive character and, although at the time you made your response your hand was minimum for the purpose, the bidding has shown that you have two key cards in the red suits. It, therefore, behooves you not to pass. The suggested call is four diamonds, returning to partner's longer suit. If it should devlop that partner has six diamonds and five hearts, he will be in a position to rebid hearts and clarify the situation.

Q. 6—As South you hold: Spades, J-4; Hearts, A-10-5; Diamonds, Q-6-4-2; Clubs, J-10-6-3.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 Spd.	Pass	1 N.T.	Pass
2 Hrts.	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A. — Having already performed your full duty, you should withdraw in the comfort of having reached a superior contract. If partner had enough to produce game opposite your holding he would have jumped to three hearts.

Q. 7—As South you hold: Spades, A-10; Hearts, A-J; Diamonds, A-K-Q-7-5; Clubs, J-9-8-3.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 Spd.	Pass	?

What is your response?

A.—An immediate jump shift is clearly indicated, for this hand has obvious slam potentialities. The only acceptable answer, therefore, is three diamonds.

Q. 8—As South you hold: Spades, A; Hearts, J-4-2; Diamonds, K-J-8-5; Clubs, A-K-J-10-3.

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 Clb.
1 Spd.	2 Dia.	2 Spds.	?

What do you bid now?

A. — Despite partner's previous pass, the outlook for slam is very bright. All he needs to produce a reasonable play for slam is a good diamond suit and no more than one losing heart. The better to discover the possibilities of the hand, an immediate game forcing bid of three spades should be made. If partner happens to show the heart control you may contract for slam. In the absence of such showing, you will support diamonds vigorously on the next round and if he has a singleton heart, he may be able to proceed to slam.

Tunisian President Defies Arab Bloc

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia says he is certain other Arab countries will join him in retaining diplomatic relations with West Germany once it establishes official ties with Israel.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic has called on all Arab states for a diplomatic break with Bonn.

"I continue to hold the opinion that friendship with Germany must be maintained," Bourguiba told the Munich newspaper Sueddeutsche Zeitung in an interview published Sunday.

"Among the allies I have found in this opinion, Libya and Morocco have openly sided with me. Several other states, which are also on my line, so far have not taken it in public."

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Asper hosted a buffet dinner for the many relatives: Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Gaynor of Haigler, Neb.; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Kenyon, Bogue, Kan.; Miss Aileen Newquist, Beloit, Kan., Mr. and Mrs. Merwin Moxter and three children, Cawker City, Kan., Miss Metta Asper, Kansas City, Mo.; Miss Coral Caldwell, Denver; Mr. and Mrs. Merle Asper, Greeley; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bishop and three children, Portales, N.M.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Benjamin and two children, Simla, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Asper and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Asper of Ramah.

Churchwomen to Meet For Lunch, Book Review

The next meeting of Churchwomen of the Chapel of Our Saviour will be held Wednesday in the parish house. All guests are welcome, and reservations for the luncheon, served immediately following the meeting, can be made through the church office, 633-4178, by Tuesday.

The humorous satire by Charles Merrill Smith, "How to Become a Bishop Without Being Religious," will be reviewed by the guest speaker, Mrs. Harold Whitney. Mrs. Whitney has had experience in this field as a member of the Cheyenne Mountain Book Club.

The author of the book is a popular pastor in Bloomington, Ill. He writes about the general low down on every practical aspect of running a "standard-brand" parish, "how to select the correct wife, the ecclesiastical climber's wardrobe, how to live with the Sunday school, and in short, how to avoid problems, controversy, difficulties, and responsibilities while striving toward the top."

Bishop James A. Pike wrote of the book: "It is satire at its best — indeed the book is hilarious — and deals with a topic as to which people need very much to be stabbed awake. . . It will help clergy understand themselves. . .but even more, it will cause laymen to look more critically at what 'goes on' in many a parish."

Osteopathic Auxiliary To Hold State Conference

Twenty-fifth anniversary festivities will highlight meetings of the Auxiliary to Colorado Association, when the annual spring conference is held at the Broadmoor Hotel in Colorado Springs, Thursday through Sunday.

Mrs. Victor C. Hoefner Jr., Montrose, president of the ACOA, has announced that special anniversary commemorative awards will be presented during the Friday evening dinner-dance honoring members who have served the Auxiliary.

The birthday will also set the theme for such activities as the fashion show and luncheon on Thursday and the Friday luncheon and installation program.

The Auxiliary was organized in October, 1940 with Mrs. C. A. Tedrick as first president. Immediately, members began to fulfill the twins aims of service to the osteopathic profession and to the communities of the state.

The Auxiliary and its affiliated local and district organizations have presented educational programs for members, helping to keep them advised of current public health and related community problems. These informative programs have enabled auxiliary members to lend valuable assistance in community services, such as, school and general public inoculation programs.

During its first quarter century the Auxiliary has raised national programs such as the several thousands dollars for national programs such as the Osteopathic Progress Fund, Student Loan and Research Fund and the nationwide scholarship program. Through these funds many young men and women have been able to continue and complete their medical education.

The ACOA, by sponsoring a variety of social activities for members of the profession and their families, has also contributed greatly to the good fellowship that exists among osteopathic physicians and surgeons of the state.

Osteopathic Auxiliary To Hold State Conference

Twenty-fifth anniversary festivities will highlight meetings of the Auxiliary to Colorado Association, when the annual spring conference is held at the Broadmoor Hotel in Colorado Springs, Thursday through Sunday.

Mrs. Victor C. Hoefner Jr., Montrose, president of the ACOA, has announced that special anniversary commemorative awards will be presented during the Friday evening dinner-dance honoring members who have served the Auxiliary.

The birthday will also set the theme for such activities as the fashion show and luncheon on Thursday and the Friday luncheon and installation program.

The Auxiliary was organized in October, 1940 with Mrs. C. A. Tedrick as first president. Immediately, members began to fulfill the twins aims of service to the osteopathic profession and to the communities of the state.

The Auxiliary and its affiliated local and district organizations have presented educational programs for members, helping to keep them advised of current public health and related community problems. These informative programs have enabled auxiliary members to lend valuable assistance in community services, such as, school and general public inoculation programs.

During its first quarter century the Auxiliary has raised national programs such as the several thousands dollars for national programs such as the Osteopathic Progress Fund, Student Loan and Research Fund and the nationwide scholarship program. Through these funds many young men and women have been able to continue and complete their medical education.

The ACOA, by sponsoring a variety of social activities for members of the profession and their families, has also contributed greatly to the good fellowship that exists among osteopathic physicians and surgeons of the state.

VFW Auxiliary Meeting Held At Post Home

The Auxiliary to the Pikes Peak Post 4051, Veterans of Foreign Wars, held a business meeting at the post home May 3 with Mrs. Garvan B. Harris presiding. Of special interest to members was the official visit of Miss Zelma Warden, of Woodland Park, president of District 5 Auxiliary, Department of Colorado. Other District 5 officers from Woodland Park were Miss Jean Rae Ernsberger, patriotic instructor and Mrs. Iva Kelly, banner bearer.

Membership in the Auxiliary now stands at 111 paid members, the largest membership attained in the history of the local auxiliary. Mrs. Ethel McIntosh, new candidate, was initiated into the auxiliary.

There will not be an auxiliary meeting on the third Monday in May as the District posts and auxiliaries are meeting at VFW 4051 Post for the District Convention. All members are urged to attend.

This meeting was followed by a social hour in the club lounge with Mrs. Vincent Denboske and Mrs. Franklin T. Ripley, hostesses.

Your Freedom Newspaper

Each striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Minimum Wage Laws

Wages are not set by government order. They are set in the market place. Wages must be produced by the worker. There must be enough production in any business or industry so that, besides the wages of the employes, there will be left over a profit for the company or the stockholders who furnish the tools of production and enough for repairs and replacements on machinery.

If production per worker rises, the employes should get a reasonable wage raise, but they are not entitled to the entire benfits of the increase, which is usually brought about by the introduction of better machinery or tools.

Wages boosted beyond those established in a free and open market are spurious and inflationary. They cause prices to rise and employment to drop. When the government sets a minimum wage, or raises the one it has set previously, it causes an adjustment upward in the whole economy, a new inflationary spiral is launched and the marginal wage earners, that the new raise was supposed to help, are the first ones to suffer. The ranks of the unemployed are increased in direct ratio to the amount of the increase of the minimum wage.

An increase in any "minimum" wage is a signal for the unions to start demanding increases for the skilled workers. When these demands are met, the unions immediately set about pressuring the government to boost the minimum wages again. This gives them a new excuse to start pressure for higher wage scales in the higher brackets, and so the old spiral continues to go 'round and 'round and ever upward. Many small businessmen, who depend upon marginal labor for their own survival, are often forced themselves to swell the ranks of the unemployed, they go broke trying to keep up with the bigger outfits that can "hang on a little longer."

In the end, they will all go broke. Few people manage to make money during a run-away inflation.

Business and industry have more than enough to contend with just carrying the tremendous and ever increasing tax burden, let alone having the government setting arbitrary minimum wage rates that tend to push all wages above and beyond their true market value.

Regardless of the well founded, but false, idea that the government or the unions can "set" the wages, the market place operates inexorably and in complete disregard of government or union edicts or pressures.

One of the chief causes of automation that the unions profess to fear is the unions' successful efforts, aided and abetted by the government, to push wages beyond the point of no return (on their investment) for the employers. In self defense and in order to survive and furnish any jobs at all, the employers resort to more and more automation. This, in itself, is not bad, but is a visible good, although its immediate visibility may be obscured by opposition of both unions and government and by the belief of many plain Joe Citizens who have accepted the propaganda line that "automation causes unemployment."

The true and only causes of unemployment are governmental and union interference with the free and open competition of the market place.

The Rule Stands

It has been said that the Golden Rule is not an adequate moral standard by which men may measure and judge their day-to-day actions. The argument, now being used with increasing frequency, goes something like this:

The thief, using the Golden Rule as a guide, could very well rationalize the practice of theft by reasoning that if HE had two automobiles, he would be quite willing to have the person without an automobile take one of them.

The argument fails.

For while it is true that the thief, or anyone, with two automobiles might be willing to GIVE one of them to a less fortunate person, no one, repeat no one, thief or otherwise, would be willing to have anything, much less an automobile, TAKEN from them. "Take" connotes the absence of consent.

The Golden Rule reigns supreme.

Productivity Comparison

We'd like to run a little comparison respecting the relative standards of living in four major countries. These countries are: the United States, Canada, West Germany and Japan.

We have selected these countries because, in a close examination, the amount of freedom enjoyed in these countries and the length of time that freedom has been enjoyed, is rather well known.

America leads the way. The entire nation was conceived as a land of liberty and, even before our government was formed, took giant strides in the direction of individual freedom, self-responsibility, private ownership of property, and so on.

Canada is next. [illegible]

Next consider the number of letters mailed per person during the year. This is a revealing figure, for it tends to show not only the personal relationships possible, but reveals the extent of literacy: U.S.: 364; Canada: 198; West Germany: 130; Japan: 76.

What about housing? The way this is figured is to consider the number of rooms available for human occupancy. In the U.S., the figure is .7 persons per room. The same figure pertains in Canada. In West Germany the figure stands at 1.1; Japan about 1.4 persons per room.

tivity is high and standards of living are high. Where freedom is sporadic or relatively new, the disparity is clearly visible.

In actual fact, the real problem we have in the United States relates to our ability to handle ourselves in terms of the material things of life. The abundance we have produced has tended to make us soft, lax, apathetic. We want the good things and certainly intend to continue to produce them. But we must learn to acquire the virtues of personal character so that we continue to improve our situation and not simply fritter away our opportunities through incorrect usage of our time, money and brains.

Most important is our willingness to understand the meaning of freedom and to support concepts of liberty, private property, personal integrity.

Our high standards are only high relatively. Compared to what we could do if we valued our freedom and insisted on retaining it, all that has happened up to now is mere prelude.

WE ARE AT WAR

To the Editor:

With whom are we at war? We are fighting at North Viet Nam at present. The chances are that other countries, which are many, may join in against us. A few years ago we had many friends aligned on our side, all promised to help in time of trouble, but now they are not so many, and some of them such as France and England seem to be against us, and many others are not so positive as to their allegiance to us.

We may think we are fighting a minor power, when Russia growls at us, and China makes dire threats, and no one knows how many others who owe us much money, and for many favors, no one knows how many of them will turn against us.

The money we loan, and favors we have done may turn them against us, as is often the case. A banker is often unpopular when he tries to collect, as he often has to do, when his own debt reaches $320,000,000,000. We are in no condition to wage a war. McNamara has so depleted our air force by his economies, that we have few if any bombers under construction now to take the place of those we will lose. It takes a long time to construct them, if you start from scratch. Why don't we have the men in charge of this war, those who have a military education, graduates from West Point that have had experience in previous wars, and Annapolis Naval Academy who have had years on ships, and real war experience; and air force generals who know what an airplane carrier can do.

It seems that our advisers in this war are McGeorge Bundy, Dean Rusk, and Robt. McNamara, none of whom have had much war experience. The Joint Chiefs of Staff, whom we seldom hear named are, President Earle G. Wheeler, Army, Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army, Admiral David L. McDonald, Navy, Gen. J. P. McConnell, Airforce, and Gen. Wallace M. Greene, Marine Corps. Why those able men are never mentioned may be because they so often disagree with McNamara and Pres. Johnson. It may be that they are not as soft on communism as the other four are.

The President insists that the Russians shall visit the U.S. even when he knows that they are all spies on every trip they make. They have one object in life and that is to overthrow the United States. If he doesn't know this by now, he will never learn. Their whole embassy in this country is a pack of spies, as well as all their U.N. members in New York. He has been told that by the FBI, in many ways and many times. They will get him just as they did Pres. Kennedy as soon as they think the time is ripe. Some of those congressmen that are soft on Communism, think they will prosper from a take-over, but the helpers of Communism are the first ones to be shot, for the commies know how crooked they are. They want men to be square with them.

FRANK S. [illegible]
[illegible] W. [illegible]

To the Editor:

It was so nice to have your letter when we returned from our two-week trip [illegible] GAZETTE TELEGRAPHS were piled several feet high but, as of now, I'm "caught up" and anxiously awaiting the one I'll get in today's mail.

I read all of your columns and enjoy them but I believe my favorite was "Store Teeth in [illegible]" — It was the best description I've ever read of our so-called laws! Once upon a time I used to try to read the different bills before Congress and decided I was plain dumb cause I couldn't catch on! Now, I know why.

Enclosed are two columns you may or may not have read — they are from our Minneapolis Star. The one by Eric Sevareid is too priceless for you to miss — what does he say? He obviously is in favor of all this "you - know - what" but he warns us in the last paragraph (not with a positive statement, of course!) that these new programs might be involved "in some fearful bureaucratic snarls" — but he "expects" they will succeed in the end. I "expect" you'll have a dandy description of this drivel! The article by James Kilpatrick does give food for thought. Is this public apathy a good or bad sign? In your April 24 edition, Mr. Boardman applauds the public apathy and backs it up with good reasoning. I hope he's right. I honestly don't know what we can do about the mess we're in right now. I'm still trying to follow your good advice: "Get through by example and reasoning." I just hope people wake up before there is complete darkness. I, personally, really don't have to worry 'cause if the IDIOTS do take over fully, I'll be among the first to be shot!

Have you ever felt as if a great burden had been lifted from your shoulders? I'm sure you have. That's the way I've felt lately — because I have finally realized that thoughts and ideas I've had all my life are right. How can I explain? I used to wonder why successful people felt a little embarrassed by their success — now I know that somewhere along the line we were "brainwashed" into thinking that money and success were a little shameful. I also wondered why I couldn't feel a little more pity for some kind of refugees in remote corners of the globe. Now, I figure that maybe if they're left alone, they might work out their problems. Then I used to think I was a little hard because I felt a sort of contempt for people who wallowed in self - pity. Now, I know the more you sympathize, the deeper they "wallow."

Certainly, I've been in "the depths of despair" but I always knew that I and I alone could get me out of it. There are so many people with real troubles and sorrow and my heart goes out to them — but I've noticed they are the very ones who don't want pity. I wish I had the proper "words" at my command to better explain what I feel, but somehow, I think you understand. In other words, life is wonderful — there's even joy in such menial tasks as putting away the groceries and dusting. (I already know the retaliation I'd get from the majority to that last statement — "there are millions who can't afford to buy groceries to put away.")

Are you leaving the paper in [illegible] I hope you will [illegible] to write a daily column.

P.S.: I doubt if you or I would ever win any medals on our ability as typists!

I got so carried away I forgot to mention that this feeling of "well being" I have, I attribute largely to your Editorial Page. It's a real comfort to find someone who shares your beliefs — and your paper has helped bring my beliefs to the surface. Now I can practice what I believe to be right — well — almost! You have much less spare time than I have, I'm certain, but I would like hearing from you again.

J.M.K.

Editor's Note: The above letter was written to Rufus Porter. He will continue with his daily column as well as write some local editorials when he leaves the position as Editor of the Editorial Page May 15.

ONE WAR

ONE WAR — not two separate wars — I am speaking of the war in Korea, which the United States Government walked out on in 1953, and the war in Viet Nam which is now being fought, because we retreated on the first battle-ground. The war in Korea was between the United States, representing the idea of freedom, and Communist forces, representing the idea of a controlled people; we not only fought the same ideology in Korea that we are fighting now, but even the same physical forces then as now. Listen to this letter which I wrote in 1953, and which appeared in a newspaper on August 10, of that year, under the heading, "NO FAITH IN TRUCE."

"Newscasters have expressed some wonder at the mild reception given the announcement of the signing of a truce in Korea; comparing it to the joyful acclaim given the news of similar truce agreements of recent years. What is behind this mute reception by the public? An analysis of any average American's reactions should give an insight into what all are thinking and feeling; something it might be well for the officials to note.

"First, we do not have any faith in this truce. To us it is merely a postponement of the reckoning which seems inevitable. Second, we do not see that we have "won" a truce; but rather, we have conceded it. Third, there is a nagging feeling of shame that we are acting dishonorably in being a party to such a truce; this can only partially be attributed to our admiration of the courageous stand of Syngman Rhee.

"Remembering that he was educated in America, we are inclined [illegible]

Self-Appointed Critics

By RUFUS L. PORTER

It appears that the SPABA didn't find as many "self-appointed critics" of the Castle concrete company and its operations as they had hoped for, or had expected. The members were told they could quickly obtain 30,000 signatures to their petitions, but 2800 seems to be all they could corral. And, according to reports, quite a few of those were signatures of school kids. They broadcast their propaganda over the intercom system of at least one high school and then asked for signatures afterward.

Now, 2800 signatures, even if they were all adult taxpayers, the only ones that should be valid in a question of this sort, is still only a small minority of the population of the area. The vast majority voted no to their proposition by withholding their signatures.

If the SPABA wanted to buy the concrete company's land and hold it for posterity, there could be no objections raised by any right-thinking people. It would be a legal and a moral transaction and perhaps praiseworthy, so long as the needed rock and gravel could be obtained as cheaply from other sources. If they couldn't be so obtained, the action would come nearer to being folly. But it would still be legal and moral.

It is the threat of the use of governmental force that gives their petitions an immoral character, even though it could be termed legal if the government accedes to their desires. "Legal" and "moral" are not the synonyms many people seem to consider them.

WILD FLOWER EXCURSIONS

For many years the old Midland Railroad ran wild flower excursions from Colorado Springs up Ute Pass through Divide, Florissant and up scenic Eleven Mile Canon to South Park. Wild Flowers grew in such profusion along the way that tourists and natives alike came back with great armfuls of them. In fact they picked so many, and pulled so many up by the roots that they very nearly pushed some species to extinction in the areas adjacent to the railroad.

I do not know when the excursions were discontinued, but they were still going, to the best of my recollection, in 1916. I first visited the area in 1914 and they ran a year or two after that. All the Midland was pulled out and scrapped during World War One or thereabouts except the Midland Terminal which ran from the Springs through Divide to Cripple Creek and Victor until February, 1949.

After the railroad was scrapped the bed, from Divide up through 11 Mile Canon was converted into a highway. The old highway had gone over Wilkerson Pass, as the new one does now since 11 Mile Dam was built. The drive up through 11 Mile Canon to South Park was one of the finest scenic drives in the area. It follows the South Platte River, the grades are easy and the canon abounds in lovely picnic spots. It is still possible to drive up as far as the mighty Denver water dam. But the last several miles of beautiful scenery are now buried under 11 Mile Lake.

But, in a good year (a wet one) it is possible to take your own wild flower excursion up Ute Pass, through Woodland Park, Divide, Florissant, Lake George and over Wilkerson Pass. If it is a good season for flowers, you will see more acres of beautiful blooms than you ever dreamed of. The best way to "pick" them is to take along a camera and plenty of color film. If they are really picked, they wilt before you can get home with them, but on film they last indefinitely and there is no danger of "picking" too many" and there will [illegible] be wild flowers.

I have color pictures of [illegible] right here in Colorado taken in a "good" year that are so beautiful that you wouldn't believe they were real unless you saw the flowers for yourself.

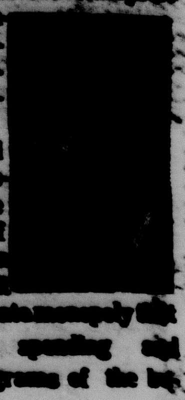
Let's Bury The Federal Reserve Myth

By HARRY BROWNE



It's time to try to rout the myth that the Federal Reserve System is a private enterprise agency, owned and operated by "international bankers."

The Federal Reserve System is the right arm of the Washington bureau-crats. It is a coercive state monopoly that facilitates the spending and regulatory programs of the bureaucracy.

The U. S. Government Organization Manual states that the federally-chartered banks of the country are coercively required to join the system. Their investment in the FRS is prescribed by law and their annual return on that investment is limited to only 6 per cent. Earnings of the FRS above that figure are turned over to the U. S. Treasury. In fact, since 1947, the FRS has diverted over $7 billion of earnings to the Treasury.

The Board of Governors who run the system are appointed by the President, and this board has extraordinary powers over the U. S. banking system. For example, the FRS . . .

1. Sets the reserve requirements for banks, thereby dictating to what extent the banks can inflate the money supply;
2. Determines how much credit can be obtained on stock market purchases;
3. Examines all member banks and supervises their operations;
4. Has the power of approval or disapproval over mergers and new branches for existing banks;
5. Fixes interest rates for member banks on loans to customers; and
6. Has the power to remove bank officers.

On top of this, through the issuance of "Federal Reserve Notes," the FRS inflates the currency supply of the nation — the chief cause of inflation.

Is this a private enterprise? Of course not. It is an arm of the state, coercively dictating to its citizens the manner in which they will handle their monetary affairs.

It is important to recognize that the Federal Reserve System has been in operation since 1913. It was "needed" to control dishonest practices by banks, and to prevent depressions — or so the sales talk went.

The result has been just the opposite. It has, in effect, legalized the inflationary practices of banks, and thereby led people to believe that dishonest banking could be controlled and made beneficial. The recent failure of a San Francisco bank under the FRS wing has proved the fallacy of that.

In addition, the FRS not only did not prevent the 1929 depression, the evidence clearly proves that it was the chief cause. It promoted bank inflation that misled businessmen into making unrealistic long-term investments that could not pay off. When the inflationary spiral reached the point where it had to be leveled off, the malinvestments were recognized and businesses failed right and left.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence

Wages are not set by government order. They are set in the market place. Wages must be produced by the worker. There must be enough production in any business or industry so that, besides the wages of the employes, there will be left over a profit for the company or the stockholders who furnish the tools of production and enough for repairs and replacements on machinery.

If production per worker rises, the employes should get a reasonable wage raise, but they are not entitled to the entire benfits of the increase, which is usually brought about by the introduction of better machinery or tools.

Wages boosted beyond those established in a free and open market are spurious and inflationary. They cause prices to rise and employment to drop. When the government sets a minimum wage, or raises the one it has set previously, it causes an adjustment upward in the whole economy, a new inflationary spiral is launched and the marginal wage earners, that the new raise was supposed to help, are the first ones to suffer The ranks of the unemployed are increased in direct ratio to the amount of the increase of the minimum wage.

An increase in any "minimum" wage is a signal for the unions to start demanding increases for the skilled workers. When these demands are met, the unions immediately set about pressuring the government to boost the minimum wages again. This gives them a new excuse to start pressure for higher wage scales in the higher brackets, and so the old spiral continues to go 'round and 'round and ever upward. Many small businessmen, who depend upon marginal labor for their own survival, are often forced themselves to swell the ranks of the unemployed, they go broke trying to keep up with the bigger outfits that can "hang on a little longer."

In the end, they will all go broke. Few people manage to make money during a run-away inflation.

Business and industry have more than enough to contend with just carrying the tremendous and ever increasing tax burden, let alone having the government setting arbitrary minimum wage rates that tend to push all wages above and beyond their true market value.

Regardless of the well founded, but false, idea that the government or the unions can "set" the wages, the market place operates inexorably and in complete disregard of government or union edicts or pressures.

One of the chief causes of automation that the unions profess to fear is the unions' successful efforts, aided and abetted by the government, to push wages beyond the point of no return (on their investment) for the employers. In self defense and in order to survive and furnish any jobs at all, the employers resort to more and more automation. This, in itself, is not bad, but is a visible good, although its immediate visibility may be obscured by opposition of both unions and government and by the belief of many plain Joe Citizens who have accepted the propaganda line that "automation causes unemployment."

The true and only causes of unemployment are governmental and union interference with the free and open competition of the market place.

The Rule Stands

It has been said that the Golden Rule is not an adequate moral standard by which men may measure and judge their day-to-day actions. The argument, now being used with increasing frequency, goes something like this:

The thief, using the Golden Rule as a guide, could very well rationalize the practice of theft by reasoning that if HE had two automobiles, he would be quite willing to have the person without an automobile take one of them.

The argument fails.

For while it is true that the thief, or anyone, with two automobiles might be willing to GIVE one of them to a less fortunate person, no one, repeat no one, thief or otherwise, would be willing to have anything, much less an automobile, TAKEN from them. "Take" connotes the absence of consent.

The Golden Rule reigns supreme.

Productivity Comparison

We'd like to run a little comparison respecting the relative standards of living in four major countries. These countries are: the United States, Canada, West Germany and Japan.

We have selected these countries because, in a close examination, the amount of freedom enjoyed in these countries and the length of time that freedom has been enjoyed, is rather well known.

America leads the way. The entire nation was conceived as a land of liberty and, even before our government was formed, took giant strides in the direction of individual freedom, self-responsibility, private ownership of property, and so on.

Canada is next. The great dominion has enjoyed a major amount of freedom for a long time.

Then comes West Germany. The history of Germany in respect to freedom is spotty. There have been times in the past when Germans were among the freest in the world. But these periods have been interrupted by sudden growth of government and emergence of tyrants.

And finally, Japan. Until the post World War II period, Japan knew little if any freedom. Today, this nation is beginning to emerge.

Now, let us examine some figures.

The output per person (productivity) per year, in each country is as follows: U.S.: [illegible]; Canada: [illegible]; West Germany: [illegible]; Japan, [illegible].

What is the population per square mile? U.S.: 51; Canada: [illegible]; West Germany: [illegible]; Japan: [illegible].

Now consider the consumption of electricity. Per person annual kilowatt consumption is as follows: U.S. 4,648; Canada 6,022; West Germany 2,257; Japan 1,378.

Next consider the number of letters mailed per person during the year. This is a revealing figure, for it tends to show not only the personal relationships possible, but reveals the extent of literacy: U.S.: 344; Canada: 196; West Germany: 150; Japan: 76.

What about housing? The way this is figured is to consider the number of rooms available for human occupancy. In the U.S., the figure is .7 persons per room. The same figure pertains in Canada. In West Germany the figure stands at 1.0. Japan shows 1.4 persons per room.

How about automobiles? In the U.S. there are 342 automobiles for every 1,000 persons, nearly one per family as a national average. In Canada the figure is 238 per thousand. West Germany has 86 per 1,000. Japan automobile owners are sparse, only 7 out of a thousand.

Americans have more than one telephone per household on the average. Some 388 phones are in use per 1,000 of population. In Canada the figure is 300 per thousand. West Germany has 100 telephones per thousand; Japan has 32.

Finally, consider television sets. In the U.S. there are [illegible] TV sets in use per 1,000 population. That is nearly one per home. Canada has 216 per thousand; West Germany 107 per thousand; Japan 93 per thousand.

Thus is clearly demonstrated the relationship between freedom and personal well-being. Where there is great freedom, or where freedom has been enjoyed for a long time, productivity is high and standards of living are high. Where freedom is sporadic or relatively new, the disparity is clearly visible.

In actual fact, the real problem we have in the United States relates to our ability to handle ourselves in terms of the material things of life. The abundance we have produced has tended to make us soft, lax, apathetic. We want the good things and certainly intend to continue to produce them. But we must learn to acquire the virtues of personal character so that we continue to improve our situation and not simply fritter away our opportunities through incorrect usage of our time, money and brains.

Most important is our willingness to understand the meaning of freedom and to support concepts of liberty, private property, personal integrity.

Our high standards are only high relatively. Compared to what we could do if we valued our freedom and insisted on retaining it, all that has happened up to now is mere prelude.

WE ARE AT WAR

To the Editor:

With whom are we at war? We are shooting at North Vietnam at present. The chances are that other enemies, which are many, may join in against us. A few years ago we had many friends aligned on our side, all promised to help in time of trouble, but now they are not so many, and some of them such as France and England seem to be against us, and many others are not so positive as to their allegiance to us.

We may think we are fighting a minor power, when Russia growls at us, and China makes dire threats, and no one knows how many others who owe us much money, and for many favors, no one knows how many of them will turn against us.

The money we loan, and favors we have done may turn them against us, as is often the case. A banker is often unpopular when he tries to collect, as he often has to do, when his own debt reaches $320,000,000,000. We are in no condition to wage a war. McNamara has so depleted our air force by his economies, that we have few if any bombers under construction now to take the place of those we will lose. It takes a long time to construct them, if you start from scratch. Why don't we have the men in charge of this war, those who have a military education, graduates from West Point that have had experience in previous wars, and Annapolis Naval Academy who have had years on ships, and real war experience; and air force generals who know what an airplane carrier can do.

It seems that our advisers in this war are McGeorge Bundy, Dean Rusk, and Robt. McNamara, none of whom have had much war experience. The Joint Chiefs of Staff, whom we seldom hear named are, President Earle G. Wheeler, Army, Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army, Admiral David L. McDonald, Navy, Gen. J. P. McConnell, Airforce, and Gen. Wallace M. Greene, Marine Corps. Why these able men are never mentioned may be because they so often disagree with McNamara and Pres. Johnson. It may be that they are not as soft on communism as the other four are.

LIKES G.T.

To the Editor:

It was so nice to have your letter when we returned from our two-week trip down south. GAZETTE TELEGRAPHS were piled several feet high but, as of now, I'm "caught up" and anxiously awaiting the one I'll get in today's mail.

I read all of your columns and enjoy them but I believe my favorite was "Store Teeth in Billboard Bill" — It was the best description I've ever read of our so-called laws! Once upon a time I used to try to read the different bills before Congress and decided I was plain dumb cause I couldn't catch on! Now, I know why.

Enclosed are two columns you may or may not have read — they are from our Minneapolis Star. The one by Eric Sevareid is too priceless for you to miss — what does he say? He obviously is in favor of all this "you - know - what" but he warns us in the last paragraph (not with a positive statement, of course!) that these new programs might be involved "in some fearful bureaucratic snarls" — but he "expects" they will succeed in the end. I "expect" you'll have a dandy description of this drivel! The article by James Kilpatrick does give food for thought. Is this public apathy a good or bad sign? In your April 24 edition, Mr. Boardman applauds the public apathy and backs it up with good reasoning. I hope he's right. I honestly don't know what we can do about the mess we're in right now. I'm still trying to follow your good advice: "Get through by example and reasoning." I just hope people wake up before there is complete darkness. I, personally, really don't have to worry 'cause if the IDIOTS do take over fully, I'll be among the first to be shot!

Have you ever felt as if a great burden had been lifted from your shoulders? I'm sure you have. That's the way I've felt lately — because I have finally realized that thoughts and ideas I've had all my life are right. How can I explain? I used to wonder why successful people felt a little embarrassed by their success — now I know that somewhere along the line we were "brainwashed" into thinking that money and success were a little shameful. I also wondered why I couldn't feel a little more pity for some kind of refugees in remote corners of the globe. Now, I figure that maybe if they're left alone, they might work out their problems. Then I used to think I was a little hard because I felt a sort of contempt for people who wallowed in self - pity. Now, I know the more you sympathize, the deeper they "wallow."

Certainly, I've been in "the depths of despair" but I always knew that I and I alone could get me out of it. There are so many people with real trouble and sorrow and my heart goes out to them — but I've noticed they are the very ones who don't want pity. I wish I had the proper "lyrics" at my disposal to better explain what I feel, but somehow, I think you understand. In other words, life is wonderful — there's even joy in such menial tasks as putting away the groceries and dusting! (I already know the retaliation I'd get from the majority to that last statement — "there are millions who can't afford to buy groceries to put away.")

Are you leaving the paper in May? I hope you still intend to write a daily column.

P.S.: I doubt if you or I would ever win any medals on our ability as typists!

I got so carried away I forgot to mention that this feeling of "well being" I have, I attribute largely to your Editorial Page. It's a real comfort to find someone who shares your beliefs — and your paper has helped bring my beliefs to the surface. Now I can practice what I believe to be right — well — almost! You have much less spare time than I have, I'm certain, but I would like hearing from you again.

ONE WAR

ONE WAR — not two separate wars — I am speaking of the war in Korea, which the United States Government walked out on in 1953, and the war in Viet Nam which is now being fought, because we retreated on the first battle - ground. The war in Korea was between the United States, representing the idea of freedom, and Communist forces, representing the idea of a controlled people; we not only fought the same ideology in Korea that we are fighting now, but even the same physical forces then as now. Listen to this letter which I wrote in 1953, and which appeared in a newspaper on August 10, of that year, under the heading, "NO FAITH IN TRUCE."

"Newscasters have expressed some wonder at the mild reception given the announcement of the signing of a truce in Korea; comparing it to the joyful acclaim given the news of similar truce agreements of recent years. What is behind this mute reception by the public? An analysis of any average American's reactions should give an insight into what all are thinking and feeling; something it might be well for the officials to note.

"First, we do not have any faith in this truce. To us it is merely a postponement of the reckoning which seems inevitable. Second, we do not see that we have "won" a truce; but rather, we have conceded it. Third, there is a nagging feeling of shame that we are acting dishonorably in being a party to such a truce; this can only partially be attributed to our admiration of the courageous stand of Syngman Rhee.

"Remembering that he was educated in America, we are inclined to feel that he acted according to the finest traditions of America, in opposing overpowering forces by action, when words were to no avail. We remember that, the United States was one of two great countries who devastated the little nation of Korea to prevent such devastation of our own homeland; when it seemed we were gaining nothing there, we withdrew, leaving a ravished country to her own depleted resources.

"Glad though we are to see sons and husbands returned to their families, we cannot help feeling that they will soon be replaced, on the battlefield, by younger brothers, or sons, of those returning.

"We know, in our hearts, that the battle is not yet won. How can we cheer, with these burdens on our minds and consciences?"

Early Christians were thrown to the lions in the Colosseums of Rome by the early Caesars, are we, as a nation, repeating history in using the nations of freedom - loving peoples that are a part of our own strength, to stave off the inevitable facing up to our responsibilities? If we do, will we not sell our heritage for a mess of pottage, even as they? (Caesar — L., the hairy one; cf. Czar, Kaiser, also Esau).

ENVIRONMENT

To the Editor:

Secretary Wirtz's proposal to cut down on births among the depressed is superior to the objection of the religious under secretary [illegible] who apparently believes in an increase in the population in spite of the fact there are so many children [illegible] Christ, the teaching of the scriptures that is the inspired word of God.

There are some married couples who do not have children. It would be for the betterment of the country if they never got a chance to influence any child. But because of so many illegitimate children being born, they are thrown under their environment which brings on an increase of crime.

The omnipotent God, through floods and other upheavals, is without doubt trying to open people's eyes to the fact that there is something more important to this transitory life than the temporarily material things they are attached to.

If God is not the most important to one, the scriptures teach He is nothing to them. God's people found this out in their young life while the masses apparently will never agree to this fact.

The Local Scene

By RUFUS L. PORTER

It appears that the SPABA didn't find as many "self-appointed critics" of the Castle concrete company and its operations as they had hoped for, or had expected. The members were told they could quickly obtain 30,000 signatures to their petitions, but 8000 seems to be all they could corral. And, according to reports, quite a few of these were signatures of school kids. They broadcast their propaganda over the intercom system of at least one high school and then asked for signatures afterward.

Now, 8000 signatures, even if they were all adult taxpayers, the only ones that should be valid in a question of this sort, is still only a small minority of the population of the area. The vast majority voted no to their proposition by withholding their signatures.

If the SPABA wanted to buy the concrete company's land and hold it for posterity, there could be no objections raised by any right-thinking people. It would be a legal and a moral transaction and perhaps praiseworthy, so long as the needed rock and gravel could be obtained as cheaply from other sources, if they couldn't be so obtained, the action would come nearer to being folly. But it would still be legal and moral.

It is the threat of the use of governmental force that gives their petitions an immoral character, even though it could be termed legal if the government accedes to their desires. "Legal" and "moral" are not the synonyms many people seem to consider them.

WILD FLOWER EXCURSIONS

For many years the old Midland Railroad ran wild flower excursions from Colorado Springs up Ute Pass through Divide, Florissant and up scenic Eleven Mile Canon to South Park. Wild Flowers grew in such profusion along the way that tourists and natives alike came back with great armfuls of them. In fact they picked so many, and pulled so many up by the roots that they very nearly pushed some species to extinction in the areas adjacent to the railroad.

I do not know when the excursions were discontinued, but they were still going, to the best of my recollection, in 1916. I first visited the area in 1914 and they ran a year or two after that. All the Midland was pulled out and scrapped during World War One or thereabouts except the Midland Terminal which ran from the Springs through Divide to Cripple Creek and Victor until February, 1949.

After the railroad was scrapped the bed, from Divide up through 11 Mile Canon was converted into a highway. The old highway had gone over Wilkerson Pass, as the new one does now since 11 Mile Dam was built. The drive up through 11 Mile Canon to South Park was one of the finest scenic drives in the area. It follows the South Platte River, the grades are easy and the canon abounds in lovely picnic spots. It is still possible to drive up as far as the mighty Denver water dam. But the last several miles of beautiful scenery are now buried under 11 Mile Lake.

But, in a good year (a wet one) it is possible to take your own wild flower excursion up Ute Pass, through Woodland Park, Divide, Florissant, Lake George and over Wilkerson Pass. If it is a good season for flowers, you will see more acres of beautiful blooms than you ever dreamed of. The best way to "pick" them is to take along a camera and plenty of color film. If they are really picked, they wilt before you can get home with them, but on film they last indefinitely and there is no danger of "picking too many" and there will always be wild flowers.

I have color pictures of Blue Mesa and Pyramid Mountain, right here in Cascade taken in a "good" year that are so beautiful that you wouldn't believe they were real unless you saw the flowers for yourself.

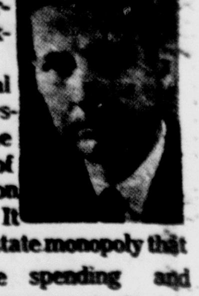
The American Way

Let's Bury The Federal Reserve Myth

By HARRY BROWNE



It's time to lay to rest the myth that the Federal Reserve System is a private enterprise agency, owned and operated by "international bankers."

The Federal Reserve System is the right arm of the Washington bureau-crats. It is a coercive state monopoly that facilitates the spending and regulatory programs of the bureaucracy.

The U. S. Government Organization Manual states that the federally-chartered banks of the country are coercively required to join the system. Their investment in the FRS is prescribed by law and their annual return on that investment is limited to only 6 per cent. Earnings of the FRS above that figure are turned over to the U. S. Treasury. In fact, since 1947, the FRS has diverted over $7 billion of earnings to the Treasury.

The Board of Governors who run the system are appointed by the President, and this board has extraordinary powers over the U. S. banking system. For example, the FRS. . .

1. Sets the reserve requirements for banks, thereby dictating to what extent the banks can inflate the money supply;
2. Determines how much credit can be obtained on stock market purchases;
3. Examines all member banks and supervises their operations;
4. Has the power of approval or disapproval over mergers and new branches for existing banks;
5. Fixes interest rates for member banks on loans to customers; and
6. Has the power to remove bank officers.

On top of this, through the issuance of "Federal Reserve Notes," the FRS inflates the currency supply of the nation — the chief cause of inflation.

Is this a private enterprise? Of course not. It is an arm of the state, coercively dictating to its citizens the manner in which they will handle their monetary affairs.

It is important to recognize that the Federal Reserve System has been in operation since 1913. It was "needed" to control dishonest practices by banks, and to prevent depressions — or so the sales talk went.

The result has been just the opposite. It has, in effect, legalized the inflationary practices of banks, and thereby led people to believe that dishonest banking could be controlled and made beneficial. The recent failure of a San Francisco bank under the FRS wing has proved the fallacy of that.

In addition, the FRS not only did not prevent the 1929 depression, the evidence clearly proves that it was the chief cause. It promoted bank inflation that misled businessmen into making unrealistic long-term investments that could not pay off. When the inflationary spiral reached the point where it had to be leveled off, the malinvestments were recognized and businesses failed right and left.

The American consumer doesn't need a Federal Reserve System. He will automatically, in his own self-interest, assure the competence of the bank he deals with — provided the government doesn't mislead him into believing his interests are already protected!

Should Congress "buy back" the FRS? Should Congress "sell" the FRS? No — the Federal Reserve System should be eliminated entirely. Citizens should have the right to own gold and establish their own prices on it. All currency should be backed 100 per cent by gold or silver; and banks should be required to compete in the free market to gain their reputations.

That would be free enterprise. What we have today is the exact opposite.

Man Loses in Court For S.O.B. Talk

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An appeal court studied the words often abbreviated as "s.o.b." and concluded they can be used in a jovial, endearing manner.

But not when they're applied to a used car dealer in the midst of a live television pitch.

White's car lot was next door to Valenta's plastic bag factory, and one of the dealer's cars was on Valenta's property — blocking Valenta's own auto.

White said he was on camera doing a live television commercial when Valenta raced up and shouted: "You — — - —, get your car off my lot."

White sued him and won.

Valenta's attorney sought to convince the District Court of Appeal Friday that the words can be said in a downright friendly way.

The court agreed but upheld the judgment.

"It seems clear," the court said, "that the appellant did not intend to be endearing."

The Galapagos Islands belong to Ecuador.

By SAM CAMPBELL

A few years ago, the trade-with-Red-China line was being spouted by a few professional campus [illegible] and such pillars of society as the ILWU's Harry Bridges and Archie Brown. Now the president of the United States Chamber of Commerce has taken up the cry.

I suppose it would be a dull world without a due quota of wall-eyed collectivists. Perhaps, also, in the nature of things, it is a good thing for college students to be able to adventure with an occasional lapse into Sillyville. But really adults are supposed to set an example.

When, therefore, men in responsible position shrink to the emotional size of a juvenile, where then is the guidance, the character, the moral fiber without which the whole country becomes a historic footnote?

"Trade With Red China" is a falsehood and a fraud on its very face. For the fact is, the Chinese Reds don't have anything to trade with. They've starving. They're broke. They exist now by cannibalizing the capital of previous regimes and by Free World credits smuggled through the satellite bloc.

To speak of trade with Red China makes as much sense as it would for Bullock's department store to distribute advertising in the hobo jungle under the railroad bridge at the Santa Ana River. The jungle residents don't have anything to trade with. Neither do the Red Chinese.

So assuming the president of the U.S. Chamber is not completely unaware of the facts, what he really means is that the U.S. Federal Authority should levy a tax on the American taxpayer in order to subsidize shipments of goods to Communists who are killing the taxpayer's sons in Viet Nam. The so-called wheat sale to the Soviet Union was just such a rigged deal and is the pattern for what is now transpiring.

Of course the chamber president doesn't ask for this one-way "trade" at first. Rather he says the United States should "open up the lines of communication." The idea artfully wrapped in that phrase is diplomatic recognition, because how can one country negotiate with an authority without first recognizing that the other party is the proper authority with which to negotiate?

Such recognition paves the way for loans, gifts and credits to medicate the totally socialist economy of Red China until the same disease plus a violent act of the patient kills the doctor.

There is nothing wrong with bona fide trade. However, trade can be bona fide only when the other fellow has something to trade with. If the trend to adult juvenility keeps up, I suppose the time is not distant when the U.S. Chamber will be sponsoring delegations to Selma and trotting about the universities with sandwich boards of four-letter vocabulary.

Irving Berlin To Celebrate 77th Birthday

By HENRIETTA LEITH

NEW YORK (AP) — Irving Berlin will be 77 Tuesday and one of the people least interested in that fact is Irving Berlin.

"It leaves me cold," he said during a brief business trip to the city from the Catskill Mountain home where he spends much of his time.

Berlin will spend his birthday there, with some of his family around to help him celebrate quietly. He said he wasn't particularly looking forward to it.

"I'm looking much more forward to what I'm going to do after my birthday," he said. "The question is, are you going to be a crabby old man, or are you going to write another song?"

Berlin, who has been writing another song for more than half a century, wanted it understood that he doesn't have any intention of just being a crabby old man.

Recently, he said, he finished seven new songs for a movie, to be produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and called "Say It With Music." In the movie, he said, there also will be 25 old songs, including the title song, all by Irving Berlin.

Since he first sold a song for 33 cents in 1907 — "Marie From Sunny Italy" — Berlin has written the words and music for more than 900 songs. A high proportion of them are all-time hits.

Berlin doesn't know much about the new movie — "My job's already finished and it will be a big spectacular."

He is enthusiastic about a Broadway show in which he's involved and which might be produced next season.

"I can't say definitely," he says. "You can't sound off until you're pretty certain about it. Show business is very indefinite these days.

In between such special projects, Berlin enjoys the country — "It's wonderful — you just relax "and keeping in touch with the "very competent people" who run his very lucrative music publishing business.

Berlin said his health is "fine — all my vital organs function well." He doesn't show his age — "you don't unless you lose your hair or get thin, and I've been able to hold onto my hair."

He says his work doesn't come any harder than it did 40 years ago.

"That doesn't mean," he says, "that you sit down and write a hit — but I didn't do that 40 years ago, either. It all depends on how much talent you have and how you feel.

"If you're a good song writer, you write good songs. Sometimes one will be a hit."

The composer of "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Blue Skies," "Cheek to Cheek," "White Christmas," "God Bless America" and "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody" shows no concern about the popularity of rock 'n roll and similar trends.

Berlin says that at his age one is disturbed by the deaths of younger men, like his friend Edward R. Murrow who died at 57, but grateful that "I've had a break — "I've been able to go on a little bit longer."

"People don't pay much attention to age any more," he says. "There are people who pay you for what you do, and they don't give a damn whether you're 70 or 17, how long it took you to write the song, who inspired it. All they care about is, how good is it?"

Airline Co. Set to Have New Look

Central Airlines is going to have a new look.

President M. Lamar Muse announced this week that the Texas-based local service carrier has retained Ernest G. Mantz Associates to create a new corporate identification for the airline.

The program will involve a new company trade mark, a new series of corporate colors and the application of the trade mark and colors to Central's air fleet as well as all other forms of communication including timetables, baggage tags, ticket counters and uniforms, to name a few.

Central is timing the new look to introduce its jet-powered Dart Convair this fall.

The program is not only a product of Central's new administration, but a new attitude and a new approach to serving the public.

Ernest G. Mantz, president of Ernest G. Mantz Associates, said a strong, single corporate identity program creating visual unity will make the advertising dollar work more effectively and will build confidence in the corporate name.

Mantz estimates Central's program will take about a year and a half to complete.

A few of the other clients served by the Mantz firm include Burlington Industries, Frito-Lay, Morton Foods Division of General Mills, Wembley, Safeway Stores, Anderson Clayton, Freezer Queen Inc. and Furr Food Stores.

Mantz Associates maintain offices in Dallas and Mexico City.

Vicar Chooses Theater Over Church Position

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Sidney Lanier, a Protestant Episcopal vicar who has been actively interested in the city's theater world, has resigned from the ministry.

The resignation of Lanier, [illegible], was announced Sunday to the congregation of St. Clement's Episcopal church on West [illegible] street.

Lanier last week applied to Bishop Horace W. B. Donegan for renunciation of his holy orders.

Lanier will remain as president of the American Place Theater, which he helped found in [illegible]. With the bishop's blessing, he has experimented with weaving drama, mime and readings into the Holy Communion liturgy. Many theatre people are members of the congregation.

Lanier said Sunday that "I've resigned to free myself after [illegible] years in the active ministry. I'm not leaving the Church. The fundamental reason for the resignation is that I've just sort of had it after struggling with the establishment. I've reached the end of what I can do."

Top Government Officials to Report Incomes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has ordered 200 top government officials — including Cabinet members — to file statements of their financial interests with the Civil Service Commission.

An executive order issued Sunday also gave the Civil Service Commission authority to require similar statements from 2,000 lesser officials. These would be filed with the heads of their agencies.

The seven-page executive order which superseded several existing directives, set strict standards for 2.5 million civil servants limiting acceptance of gifts, entertainment and favors by executive branch personnel.

All statements will be kept confidential and not made public. The Civil Service Commissioner or the head of a department or agency, however, will make available to the President any information they feel he should have.

The order was the first directing the filing of statements by presidential appointees. Some congressional committees have asked for such information in connection with confirmation of nominees.

The order does not apply to Johnson but one official said he expects the President to file a statement because "I am confident it is his intention to do everything that is required of any other employe."

The financial reporting requirements will apply to key members of Johnson's staff. They will decide whether their subordinates should file statements.

In issuing the directive, Johnson praised "the unusually high standard of honesty, integrity and impartiality" of government employes but said:

"There are some whose duties on occasion place them in difficult or awkward situations, and thus the order today lays down general guidelines and standards of conduct as clearly as possible."

The order provides that "no employe shall solicit or accept, directly or indirectly, any gift, gratuity, favor, entertainment, loan, or any other thing of monetary value, from any person, corporation or group which—

Americans Puff Less But Frolic More

Smoking less, but drinking, gambling, playing, driving, entertaining and dolling up more, Americans paid more than $14.3 billion in excise taxes during calendar 1964 — $861 million more than the previous year, says Commerce Clearing House, national reporting authority on tax and business law.

Measured by such collections, they also bought more cars, snapped more camera shutters, and purchased more sporting equipment, major household goods, jewelry and luggage than they did in 1963.

Continuing a decline previously reflected in fiscal 1964 collection figures, tobacco tax revenue dropped about $48 million to a 1964 level of just about $2 billion. However, CCH notes that the $60 million drop in federal cigarette tax collections was somewhat offset by the more than $11 million increase in cigar tax collections.

And pipe smokers and snuff sniffers must have increased in number since their kinds of tobacco product sold well enough to increase tax revenue from this source by just under $1 million.

With collections for distilled spirits, wines and beer all registering gains, taxes on liquor and beer rose by $212 million to $3.7 billion in 1964. Federal gasoline taxes rose to $2.6 billion, up more than $60 million from 1963.

Sports-minded Americans gave to the government through their purchase of such goods more than $27 million in excise taxes, up $1 million from the previous year. Nor did the public ignore entertainment and sporting events. Tax collections for admissions to theatres, concerts, night clubs and the like were $92 million in 1964 compared with about $86 million the previous year, CCH reported.

Shutter-bugs paid $33.1 million in excise taxes on their purchase of cameras, lenses, film and projectors during the year, about $7.3 million more than the previous year.

Other pursuits notwithstanding, part of the U.S. public found time to gamble — to the tune of $400,000 in increased wagering tax collections which brought this figure to more than $5.8 million.

Spending more to make itself more glamorous, the American public paid approximately $19 million more in taxes on toiletries, bringing this figure to nearly $186 million, and $10 million more on jewelry, hiking the 1964 tax total from this source to $196 million.

But the nation's ladies didn't buy as many furs as before. Excise tax collections from this source dropped more than a half million dollars from the 1963 level of $30.1 million, CCH said.

All duded up, the nation packed its finery in new luggage which brought the government more than $80 million in tax revenue, up $5 million, and hopped into new cars, or old cars with new tires and other new equipment which produced excise tax revenue totaling $2.9 billion, up more than $200 million.

And American bedecked their residences with radios and television sets, refrigerators, freezers, air conditioners, and electric, gas and oil appliances worth nearly $380 million in tax revenue, up $23 million from 1963, CCH said.

Continental Readies New Air Fare

In June, Continental Airlines intends to introduce new family plan coach fares sharply reducing the cost of air travel for families traveling together, it was announced by Charles A. Bucks, vice president-sales.

With Civil Aeronautics Board approval, Continental will offer coach service on the following basis: Head of family, full fare; spouse or first child, 66 2-3 per cent of full fare; additional family members, 33 1-3 per cent of full fare.

The special rates will be in effect from noon Monday to noon Friday. Initially, the liberalized family plan will be effective on selected routes, including Chicago-Los Angeles Chicago-Kansas City, Chicago-Denver and Los Angeles, Phoenix, beginning June 3.

Starting June 18, the lower rates will be in effect throughout Continental's nine-state system.

From Friday midnight to Sunday noon, spouse and-or children may fly for 75 per cent of the adult first class or coach fare when accompanied by the head of the family paying full fare.

Postal Inspectors Must Know What Is Letter

By SAM CAMPBELL

They're having trouble over at the post office. The hot question is a double-barrel affair; namely, "when is a letter a letter and when is a letter not a letter?"

You think that's simple? You think that's not important? Well you have another think coming.

Consider for example that the post office has a legal monopoly on the carrying of letters. To preserve this monopoly and to keep out private competition, the postal inspectors must know right down to the gnat's chin whisker when a letter is and is not a letter.

To guide inspectors on this subject, the Office of the General Counsel of the United States Post Office Department has caused to be published a booklet titled "Restrictions on Transportation of Letters."

Page Six of this document sets forth the general nature of the restrictions as follows: "The intent of the Private Express Statutes is to confer a monopoly, with stated exceptions, on the Post Office Department over the transportation of letters for others. This monopoly was created prior to the adoption of the Constitution and has existed with varying provisions continuously in the United States from that time to the present."

The booklet (Page Six and Seven) defines a letter generally "as a message in writing and may be written in English, in a foreign language, or in a code. In addition to communications of a purely personal nature, the term letter "includes any matter conveying live, current information between the sender and the addressee."

Included under the term "elter" are such items as orders from a merchant to a wholesale dealer, bills, reports, applications, contest entries etc.

However — now the subject becomes more complex — all the materials designated aforesaid are NOT considered to be letters if they are (Page Nine) "exact copies of the items discussed forwarded to the same addressee, without the addition of any other information not appearing on the originals.'

If, on the other hand, the exact copies are forwarded to a different addressee, they have become letters once again; provided, however (Page 11), that if the matter is sent for filing or storage only and is not intended that the recipient will use it for its own benefit, it is not then a letter anymore.

Naturally a person can transport to the post office a letter that he writes. And it looks like you can skin by the postal regulations if you transport some friend's letter to the post office. However, if you sidestep the post office and take your friend's letter directly to the addressee, you run afoul of Title 18, U. S. C., section 1696 which is known as the "Special Messenger Section."

In that event (Page Four), "a postal inspector, customs officer, or United States marshal or his deputy, may seize at any time, letters and bags, packets or parcels containing letters which are being carried contrary to law on board any vessel or any post road." But you can sue to get them back. Two months after disposition of the final appeal, the Postmaster General has to return them if you win. You got him there.

Also the postal monopoly does not entirely preclude a company employe from transporting company letters (Page 16). However, this brings up the question of when is an employe an employe and when is he not an employe, discussion of which must be deferred until another day.

CAUTION: The foregoing is just a brief review of "Restrictions on Transportation of Letters" (U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., 15 cents). "Restrictions" in turn is merely a quick survey of the Private Express Statutes and judicial and departmental interpretations of same. So proceed at your own risk.

Some private messengers appear to be faring consistently better with the postal inspectors and some appear to be faring consistently worse. Just what the reason is for this difference can only be guessed at. Legal monopoly places a lot of power into a few hands, and there are no halos in the civil service either.

Irving Berlin To Celebrate 77th Birthday

By HENRIETTA LEITH

NEW YORK (AP) — Irving Berlin will be 77 Tuesday and one of the people least interested in that fact is Irving Berlin.

"It leaves me cold," he said during a brief business trip to the city from the Catskill Mountain home where he spends much of his time.

Berlin will spend his birthday there, with some of his family around to help him celebrate quietly. He said he wasn't particularly looking forward to it.

"I'm looking much more forward to what I'm going to do after my birthday," he said. "The question is, are you going to be a crabby old man, or are you going to write another song?"

Berlin, who has been writing another song for more than half a century, wanted it understood that he doesn't have any intention of just being a crabby old man.

Recently, he said, he finished seven new songs for a movie, to be produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and called "Say It With Music." In the movie, he said, there also will be 25 old songs, including the title song, all by Irving Berlin.

Since he first sold a song for 33 cents in 1907 — "Marie From Sunny Italy" — Berlin has written the words and music for more than 900 songs. A high proportion of them are all-time hits.

Berlin doesn't know much about the new movie — "My job's already finished and it will be a big spectacular."

He is enthusiastic about a Broadway show in which he's involved and which might be produced next season.

"I can't say definitely," he says. "You can't sound off until you're pretty certain about it. Show business is very indefinite these days.

In between such special projects, Berlin enjoys the country — "It's wonderful — you just relax "and keeping in touch with the "very competent people" who run his very lucrative music publishing business.

Berlin said his heatlh is "fine — all my vital organs function well." He doesn't show his age — "you don't unless you lose your hair or get thin, and I've been able to hold onto my hair."

He says his work doesn't come any harder than it did 40 years ago.

"That doesn't mean," he says, "that you sit down and write a hit — but I didn't do that 40 years ago, either. It all depends on how much talent you have and how you feel.

"If you're a good song writer, you write good songs. Sometimes one will be a hit."

The composer of "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Blue Skies," "Cheek to Cheek," "White Christmas," "God Bless America" and "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody" shows no concern about the popularity of rock 'n roll and similar trends.

Berlin says that at his age one is disturbed by the deaths of younger men, like his friend Edward R. Morrow who died at 57, but grateful that "I've had a break — "I've been able to go on a little bit longer."

"People don't pay much attention to age any more," he says. "There are people who pay you for what you do, and they don't give a damn whether you're 70 or 17, how long it took you to write the song, who inspired it. All they care about is, how good is it?"

Airline Co. Set to Have New Look

Central Airlines is going to have a new look.

President M. Lamar Muse announced this week that the Texas-based local service carrier has retained Ernest G. Mantz Associates to create a new corporate identification for the airline.

The program will involve a new company trade mark, a new series of corporate colors and the application of the trade mark and colors to Central's air fleet as well as all other forms of communication including timetables, baggage tags, ticket counters and uniforms, to name a few.

Central is timing the new look to introduce its jet-powered Dart Convair this fall.

The program is not only a product of Central's new administration, but a new attitude and a new approach to serving the public.

Ernest G. Mantz, president of Ernest G. Mantz Associates, said a strong, single corporate identity program creating visual unity will make the advertising dollar work more effectively and will build confidence in the corporate name.

Mantz estimates Central's program will take about a year and a half to complete.

A few of the other clients served by the Mantz firm include Burlington Industries, Frito-Lay, Morton Foods Division of General Mills, Wembley, Safeway Stores, Anderson Clayton, Freezer Queen Inc. and Furr Food Stores.

Mantz Associates maintain offices in Dallas and Mexico City.

Vicar Chooses Theater Over Church Position

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Sidney Lanier, a Protestant Episcopal vicar who has been actively interested in the city's theater world, has resigned from the ministry.

The resignation of Lanier, 42, was announced Sunday to the congregation of St. Clement's Episcopal church on West 46th street.

Lanier last week applied to Bishop Horace W. B. Donegan for renunciation of his holy orders.

Lanier will remain as president of the American Place Theater, which he helped found in 1963. With the bishop's blessing, he has experimented with weaving drama, mime and readings into the Holy Communion liturgy. Many theatre people are members of the congregation.

Lanier said Sunday that "I've resigned to free myself after 12 years in the active ministry. I'm not leaving the Church. The fundamental reason for the resignation is that I've just sort of had it after struggling with the establishment. I've reached the end of what I can do."

Top Government Officials to Report Incomes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has ordered 200 top government officials — including Cabinet members — to file statements of their financial interests with the Civil Service Commission.

An executive order issued Sunday also gave the Civil Service Commission authority to require similar statements from 2,000 lesser officials. These would be filed with the heads of their agencies.

The seven-page executive order which superseded several existing directives, set strict standards for 2.5 million civil servants limiting acceptance of gifts, entertainment and favors by executive branch personnel.

All statements will be kept confidential and not made public. The Civil Service Commissioner or the head of a department or agency, however, will make available to the President any information they feel he should have.

The order was the first directing the filing of statements by presidential appointees. Some congressional committees have asked for such information in connection with confirmation of nominees.

The order does not apply to Johnson but one official said he expects the President to file a statement because "I am confident it is his intention to do everything that is required of any other employe."

The financial reporting requirements will apply to key members of Johnson's staff. They will decide whether their subordinates should file statements.

In issuing the directive, Johnson praised "the unusually high standard of honesty, integrity and impartiality" of government employes but said:

"There are some whose duties on occasion place them in difficult or awkward situations, and thus the order today lays down general guidelines and standards of conduct as clearly as possible."

The order provides that "no employe shall solicit or accept directly or indirectly, any gift, gratuity, favor, entertainment, loan, or any other thing of monetary value, from any persons, any corporation or group which—

"(1) has, or is seeking to obtain, contractual or other business or financial relationships with an agency;

"(2) conducts operations or activities which are regulated by his agency;

"(3) has interests which may be substantially affected by the performance or non-performance of an official duty."

Americans Puff Less But Frolic More

Smoking less, but drinking, gambling, playing, driving, entertaining and dolling up more, Americans paid more than $14.3 billion in excise taxes during calendar 1964 — $661 million more than the previous year, says Commerce Clearing House, national reporting authority on tax and business law.

Measured by such collections, they also bought more cars, snapped more camera shutters, and purchased more sporting equipment, major household goods, jewelry and luggage than they did in 1963.

Continuing a decline previously reflected in fiscal 1964 collection figures, tobacco tax revenue dropped about $48 million to a 1964 level of just about $2 billion. However, CCH notes that the $59 million drop in federal cigarette tax collections was somewhat offset by the more than $11 million increase in cigar tax collections.

And pipe smokers and snuff sniffers must have increased in number since their kinds of tobacco product sold well enough to increase tax revenue from this source by just under $1 million.

With collections for distilled spirits, wines and beer all registering gains, taxes on liquor and beer rose by $212 million to $3.7 billion in 1964. Federal gasoline taxes rose to $2.6 billion, up more than $89 million from 1963.

Sports-minded Americans gave to the government through their purchase of such goods more than $27 million in excise taxes, up $1 million from the previous year. Nor did the public ignore entertainment and sporting events. Tax collections for admissions to theatres, concerts, night clubs and the like were $92 million in 1964 compared with about $86 million the previous year, CCH reported.

Shutter-bugs paid $33.1 million in excise taxes on their purchase of cameras, lenses, film and projectors during the year, about $7.3 million more than the previous year.

Other pursuits notwithstanding, part of the U.S. public found time to gamble — to the tune of $400,000 in increased wagering tax collections which brought this figure to more than $5.8 million.

Spending more to make itself more glamorous, the American public paid approximately $19 million more in taxes on toiletries, bringing this figure to nearly $186 million, and $10 million more on jewelry, hiking the 1964 tax total from this source to $196 million.

But the nation's ladies didn't buy as many furs as before. Excise tax collections from this source dropped more than a half million dollars from the 1963 level of $30.1 million, CCH said.

All duded up, the nation packbe its finery in new luggage which brought the government more than $80 million in tax revenue, up $5 million, and hopped into new cars, or old cars with new tires and other new equipment which produced excise tax revenue totaling $2.9 billion, up more than $269 million.

And American bedecked their residences with radios and television sets, refrigerators, freezers, air conditioners, and electric, gas and oil appliances worth nearly $350 million in tax revenue, up $23 million from 1963, CCH said.

Continental Readies New Air Fare

In June, Continental Airlines intends to introduce new family plan coach fares sharply reducing the cost of air travel for families traveling together, it was announced by Charles A. Bucks, vice president-sales.

With Civil Aeronautics Board approval, Continental will offer coach service on the following basis: Head of family, full fare; spouse or first child, 66 2-3 per cent of full fare; additional family members, 33 1-3 per cent of full fare.

The special rates will be in effect from noon Monday to noon Friday. Initially, the liberalized family plan will be effective on selected routes, including Chicago-Los Angeles Chicago-Kansas City, Chicago-Denver and Los Angeles, Phoenix, beginning June 3.

Starting June 18, the lower rates will be in effect throughout Continental's nine-state system.

From Friday midnight to Sunday noon, spouse and-or children may fly for 75 per cent of the adult first class or coach fare when accompanied by the head of the family paying full fare.

Postal Inspectors Must Know What Is Letter

By SAM CAMPBELL

They're having trouble over at the post office. The hot question is a double-barrel affair; namely, "when is a letter a letter and when is a letter not a letter?"

You think that's simple? You think that's not important? Well you have another think coming.

Consider for example that the post office has a legal monopoly on the carrying of letters. To preserve this monopoly and to keep out private competition, the postal inspectors must know right down to the gnat's chin whisker when a letter is and is not a letter.

To guide inspectors on this subject, the Office of the General Counsel of the United States Post Office Department has caused to be published a booklet titled "Restrictions on Transportation of Letters."

Page Six of this document sets forth the general nature of the restrictions as follows: "The intent of the Private Express Statutes is to confer a monopoly, with stated exceptions, on the Post Office Department over the transportation of letters for others. This monopoly was created prior to the adoption of the Constitution and has existed with varying provisions continuously in the United States from that time to the present."

The booklet (Page Six and Seven) defines a letter generally "as a message in writing and may be written in English, in a foreign language, or in a code. In addition to communications of a purely personal nature, the term letter "includes any matter conveying live, current information between the sender and the addressee."

Included under the term "eltter" are such items as orders from a merchant to a wholesale dealer, bills, reports, applications, contest entries etc.

However — now the subject becomes more complex — all the materials designated aforesaid are NOT considered to be letters if they are (Page Nine) "exact copies of the items discussed forwarded to the same addressee, without the addition of any other information not appearing on the originals.'

If, on the other hand, the exact copies are forwarded to a different addressee, they have become letters once again; provided, however (Page 11), that if the matter is sent for filing or storage only and is not intended that the recipient will use it for its own benefit, it is not then a letter anymore.

Naturally a person can transport to the post office a letter that he writes. And it looks like you can skin by the postal regulations if you transport some friend's letter to the post office. However, if you sidestep the post office and take your friend's letter directly to the addressee, you run afoul of Title 18, U. S. C., section 1696 which is known as the "Special Messenger Section."

In that event (Page Four), "a postal inspector, customs officer, or United States marshal or his deputy, may seize at any time, letters and bags, packets or parcels containing letters which are being carried contrary to law on board any vessel or any post road." But you can sue to get them back. Two months after disposition of the final appeal, the Postmaster General has to return them if you win. You got him there.

Also the postal monopoly does not entirely preclude a company employe from transporting company letters (Page 16). However, this brings up the question of when is an employe an employe and when is he not an employe, discussion of which must be deferred until another day.

CAUTION: The foregoing is just a brief review of "Restrictions on Transportation of Letters" (U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., 15 cents). "Restrictions" in turn is merely a quick survey of the Private Express Statutes and judicial and departmental interpretations of same. So proceed at your own risk.

Some private messengers appear to be faring consistently better with the postal inspectors and some appear to be faring consistently worse. Just what the reason is for this difference can only be guessed at. Legal monopoly places a lot of power into a few hands, and there are no halos in the civil service either.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dora Wales, later King Edward VII; this space to allow Dr. Paul V. This second part of Dr. West's column will appear in Monday's Gazette Telegraph).

By PAUL V. WEST

In a survey of "English Influence in the Early Life of Colorado Springs" made some years ago for the Historical Society of the Pikes Peak Region, a copy of which is in the files of the Pioneers' Museum, notes were made of some of the English residents.

Brief records of certain outstanding families are here presented. No claim is made that these are more important or more worthy of note than many others. The records of George Frederick Augustus Ruxton and Dr. William A. Bell, for instance, are not given because their stories are well-known, and they were not really settlers. Certain others are omitted for similar reasons.

One of the most interesting of the early immigrants was William Iles, who was born in Dorking, Surrey, in England in 1834. Information regarding him is derived from the interview of F. W. Cragin with him, as contained in the Cragin Collection in the Pioneers' Museum, except as otherwise noted. Iles was athletic, even as a boy, and always maintained this interest. At the age of 15 he bowled with H. Hope, who became Lord Beresford. He achieved fame as one of the world's best cricket players and teachers, with patronage among the nobility, including: the Prince of dropped when he came to the sons of Charles Buller, one of whom became Sir Redvers Henry Buller; the Princes Baden-Baden and Basil; and a Prince of Russia who became Grand Duke Nicholas. Iles himself was called "Lord Bennett," probably not officially, but in any case this title was uary 1st, 1872, Iles became the America.

Iles was operating the White Lion Hotel in London when he was persuaded by Dr. William Bell and General Palmer to come to Colorado Springs to manage a "big new hotel" in this thriving young metropolis. He was quite disillusioned when he arrived on April 17th, 1871 with his family and in company with Palmer and a friend named Lambert. The Iles occupied a log cabin, the only house then available, on Cucharras St. near Cascade Ave. Palmer had empowered Iles to buy English cutlery and linen for the prospective hotel before leaving London. Mrs. DeLano, Iles' daughter, told me that these apparently found a temporary home in the Log Cabin Hotel located near the site of the present Rio Grande Depot, for guests commented with surprise on the excellent table service there.

Five days after arriving, Iles took charge of the La Font Hotel in Manitou Springs until the larger Manitou House could be built. When the Colorado Springs Hotel, located at the southeast corner of Cascade Ave. and Pikes Peak Ave. was completed and opened for business on Jan- hotel, as prescribed by the Colo- Manager with W. Harry McIntire as his Assistant. After a short time, Iles became dissatisfied with his position, especially with the restrictions on the sale of spirituous liquors at the about eight years. Mrs. DeLano rado Springs Company, and resigned, being succeeded by his Assistant. McIntire was the father of Mrs. Marian McDonough of Palmer Lake.

Iles then filed on 160 Acres of land in Manitou Springs, a tract which included the Chief Spring and Rainbow Falls, and built an eleven-room home just west of the spring which he operated as a small hotel for a short time.

Republic. She became a dentist and practiced in the Colorado Springs area for many years. An older son, Harry was collection agent for the Out West paper in 1872, and worked in the engineering department of the D. & R. G. Railroad for a time. Later, he was connected with the Pueblo Chieftain, and then founded a large printing and publishing firm in Los Angeles. One daughter married George Baird. In early years, the Bairds had a ranch about four miles south of the city, just north of the Bates bridge, and west of Fountain Creek on the present Ft. Carson grounds. I remember, as a boy, seeing the old great house with a square lookout tower on top, which I imagined to be an Indian fort. It disappeared long ago. Another married W. B. Jenkins who had a farm covering much of the Ivywild district. The couple contributed the name Ivywild to the area. Their cupolaed house still stands, having been moved from Nevada Ave., just west of the Ivywild Pharmacy. Their daughter married L. A. Hemenway of Westcliff, brother of Mrs. J. W. Hagemeyer.

Another Englishman who came in the early 70's was Charles Stockbridge. A brother of his, Hugh, was also here, at least for a short time, for my brother, Homer, reported to me that he created a sensation by competing with a racehorse on the racetracks in Roswell north of the city, he riding an imported high-wheel bicycle. But he did not remember the outcome of the race. On his arrival, being without funds, Charles worked for a time at day labor. He soon opened a trading post and store on Tejon St., specializing in guns, ammunition, and tobacco. Homer West who was the chief authority for the facts regarding the family stated that it was a common sight to find Indians gathered at the store in large numbers, sometimes blocking the street, engaged in barter. Stockbridge later joined with another Englishman, Charles Elwell, in a liquor bottling business in Colorado City. Elwell built the old Howbert home at the northeast corner of Pikes Peak Ave. and Weber, torn down some years ago to make room for the Telephone building.

Ere long he retired from the firm, suffered financial losses and returned to England, after serving for a time as a coachman for General Palmer. Stockbridge, for a time in the 70's, lived just north of my parents' home at the northeast corner of Tejon and Monument Streets. Later he built a home, a fine one for that time, at the corner of Colorado Ave. and 26th St., now the Amarillo Motel. It was surrounded with a beautiful lawn which was decorated with a pond and a fountain. For a time he operated a drug store located on the north side of Huerfano (Colorado Ave. between Cascade Ave. and Tejon St., with medicines on sale downstairs and a convenient doctor upstairs who wrote prescriptions for those in need of spirituous liquors which could be purchased in the store.

S. E. Stockbridge, an employe of the Out West Printing Co. and the youngest and only surviving child, told me before his death a few years ago that his father, deciding that he had made enough money, made a six-month trip to England in 1887, and while there, made arrangements to purchase a magnificent estate on which to settle down. However, he died in 1888 and the deal was never completed.

There were thirteen Stockbridge children. Notable among these was Percy, who became a very famous marksman with a rifle. Even as a boy he practiced assiduously much to the annoyance of my mother on one occasion when a stray shot broke a pane of glass in the window of the house [illegible] of shooting to the sons of nobility at Cricklewood, England, a London suburb.

A daughter, Nellie, who once brought consternation when her fingers were caught in my mother's clothes wringer, married Charles R. Ferris, who became President of the Out West Printing Co. They later moved to California. Other children were scattered over the United States.

One of the most romantic characters who arrived during this early period was Francis Cholmondeley (pronounced Chumley) Thurston. He was born in London in 1838, was graduated from Old Trinity College, Cambridge, and lived chiefly at Sallington, Cornwall, according to F. W. Cragin, who interviewed him and who is the chief authority for these facts. He escaped being the Marquis of Cholmondeley by a hair, or rather by an heir. The holder of the title lay on his death bed, and at his death the title would have passed to Francis. But at this critical point the dying man fathered a son, and the title was lost. However, throughout his life here, he was, without any justification, generally called Lord Thurston. He fell into disfavor with his family because of his fond attachment to a Swiss governess. His problems were apparently resolved by migration to Colorado Springs which he reached June 20th, 1872.

Thurston at first worked at day labor for Dr. William Bell at the latter's farm in Manitou Park, then during the winter he worked at a sawmill in Queens Park in the upper Valley of Trout Creek. During the summer of 1873 he joined Governor Hunt on a trip to New Mexico, presumably in the interest of an extension of the D. & R. G. Railroad. The next winter he worked in a sawmill at Larkspur, which was reputed to be the largest in the Territory, employing 100 laborers and having an output of 25,000 feet of lumber per day. In 1874 he went with a Mr. Smith to Manitou Park and put in a crop of oats on shares, Dr. Bell's favorite method of promotion. That this venture was a success is indicated by the fact that during the winter Thurston bought a thirteenth interest in the Bergen Park Co., later changed to the Manitou Park Co.

Mrs. E. O. Wolcott in her book "Heritage of the Years" tells of riding up Ute Pass (she was then Mrs. Lyman K. Bass), I assume about 1877, with a man who is easily identified as Thurston. They were riding in a buckboard, he being asleep much of the time as they rode. She states that she aroused him to look at a sawmill. "Oh," he exclaimed, "I worked there one year with never a shoe on my feet. When one gets a good salary, there is no need for shoes." She goes on to say, "He had a heart of gold. On this trip we kept vigil two days and nights to save the life of a ranchman's wife in a lonely log house forty miles from a doctor. Alert and tender, but for him the exhausted husband would never have had the mother of his new-born babe restored to him."

In 1878, apparently when he had accumulated the means, this loyal Englishman married his Swiss governess, Elizabeth Fanny Fabre of Neuchatel, Switzerland, and they made their home in Manitou Park. Thurston sold his interest there about 1880 and moved to Colorado Springs, but soon bought a ranch south of Jimmy Camp, Southeast of the city. As a youth, I remember "Lord Thurston" very clearly on his occasional trips to the town of Fountain by horseback from up Franceville Way. He was long and bony and straight-seated in the saddle. With his reddish hair; ruddy complexion; sandy, bristly, straight moustache, prominent nose and piercing eyes; and clothed in a wide-brimmed hat, a varicolored vest, English riding breeches, and leather puttees, he made a memorable figure. He was usually accompanied by several dogs.

The late M. M. Slaton gave me some of his impressions of Thurston. He made butter on his ranch, putting it into a mold bearing the letters O. T. When asked what these meant, he replied, "Old Thurston." Hunters approached the ranch house one day, when Mrs. Thurston came out of the house and told them not to shoot any of their rabbits. When asked which were their rabbits, she exclaimed, "All of them."" Thurston created a dramatic impression when he drove into town in his buckboard behind a pair of spirited horses, with erect posture and cracking whip, at full speed. When he and Major McAllister met on the highway with their buggies, they would begin shouting at each other while at a distance and continue doing so until they were long passed. He spent a good deal of time in later years trying to develop a new-type of incubator, one of its features being that eggs rolled down an inclined plane.

Thurston bought a ranch, the Page ranch, in Fountain Valley, down near the Pueblo County line. Agnes Holmes told me that Mr. and Mrs. Thurston drove to the Springs from there one day in company with a daughter. On arriving home that evening they discovered they had left their daughter in the city and had to take the thirty mile trip to the city and back to bring her home. They moved to Colorado Springs, living for a time at the corner of E. Colorado Ave. and Boyer St. Thurston spent his later years at 2011 N. Tejon St. There were two daughters. The elder married Francis Muirhead and of the Faculty of Yale College in the Department of Physics.

Quite a number of Welsh immigrants settled in the Monument area, north of Colorado Springs. Among them was G. R. Gwillim who came about 1870. His half-brother, Richard Gwillim, settled first in Illinois, but finding that the climate there did not agree with his bronchial trouble, he came to Colorado. He arrived in 1871 on the first Denver and Rio Grande train from Denver, which carried other notable immigrants to the area. Being ignorant of the geography of the region and unaware of the distances, he did not wait for the train to reach Henry Station, as Monument was then called, but got off the train with his baggage at Greenland and started walking to his brother's home east of Monument. He did not reach it until the following day. Richard's younger brother, Tom, arrived a few years later.

Draft Call for 17,000 Issued by U.S. Office

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department issued a call Friday for 17,000 men to be inducted into the Army during June.

The Pentagon also said it expected 3,500 volunteers to supplement a total of 20,500 recruits needed for next month.

The quota marked another increase in a steady climb from a low of 3,000 for February.

The increased need for draftees has been attributed to a falling off in enlistments, lengthened training periods, and to increased needs for replacements in odd years because of a two-year cycle begun during the Berlin buildup of 1961.

Feeder Cattle Import Boost Is Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department predicted today imports of feeder type cattle from Canada and Mexico this year will be substantially larger than last year. But continued cutbacks in imports of beef are likely to help maintain cattle prices at more favorable levels than in 1964.

In a report on the livestock and meat situation, the department said there are large feeder cattle supplies in those countries because their exports were curtailed last year.

"With the recent improvement in U.S. feeder cattle prices and the expectation of continued favorable feeding margins, feeder cattle imports may be substantially above 1964 levels later this year," the report said.

Imports from Canada and Mexico totaled about 525,000 head last year, down more than 300,000 from 1963.

The department said prices of feed cattle — the quality slaughter supply — in the second quarter likely will average $4 or more a hundred pounds above the year earlier average of $21.12 for choice steers at Chicago. It added, however, that prices may decline slightly about mid year, especially if placements of feeder cattle in feed lots continue large this spring. Third quarter prices likely will average around year-earlier levels.

JUDGE INNOCENT

WATERLOO, Iowa (AP) — A municipal court judge was tried by a 6-member jury here and was found innocent. Judge Dan Howrey, 65, admitted he punched Ernest Seeman, 39, of Waterloo, in the nose outside his courtroom but explained it was in self-defense. The incident occurred when a suit by Seeman was being tried in Judge Howrey's court.

noted to me that he had a small curio shop by the road near his home, and then opened a taxidermy business in Colorado Springs which he conducted for a short time.

Iles moved to Denver in 1880 and engaged in real estate operations there. He established a cricket club that year in Denver, and organized another in Colorado Springs four years later. In 1905, at the age of 81, he played in a game of cricket in the Denver City Park. He died in 1906, with interment in the Evergreen Cemetery in Colorado Springs.

There were ten Iles children, of whom only one at this writing survives, Mrs. Gertrude DeLano, at the age of 96. She supplied most of the information about the family. In her youth Mrs. DeLano worked for the Outwest-Gazette Company, and later briefly for the Republic. She became a dentist and practiced in the Colorado Springs area for many years. Even as a boy he practiced assiduously much to the annoyance of my mother on one occasion when a stray shot broke a pane of glass in the window of the house and went through the birdcage. His verified stunts with his rifle are almost unbelievable. He would shoot a cigarette or a match out of his brother's mouth at some 15 paces, or light the match with a grazing shot. He exhibited his skill at a local theater, cutting threads which were barely visible, and splitting cards which were held edgewise to him.

Dire punishment awaited him one evening, however, when his father who was sitting in the yard smoking a cigar, saw the ashes fly from the end of his cigar. Looking quickly, he saw Percy dodge down behind the high-board fence. While still a young man he joined the Wild West Show of Buffalo Bill's where he won much acclaim. Later he went back to his birthplace, England. The late Arthur Perkins told me that he visited Percy there many years ago, and found him teaching the art of shooting to the sons of nobility at Cricklewood, England, a London suburb.

A daughter, Nellie, who once brought consternation when her fingers were caught in my mother's clothes wringer, married Charles B. Ferrin, who became President of the Out West Printing Co. They later moved to California. Other children were scattered over the United States.

However, throughout his life here, he was, without any justification, generally called Lord Thornton. He fell into disfavor with his family because of his fond attachment to a Swiss governess. His problems were apparently resolved by migration to Colorado Springs which he reached June 26th, 1872.

Thornton at first worked at day labor for Dr. William Bell at the latter's farm in Manitou Park, then during the winter he worked at a sawmill in Queens Park in the upper Valley of Trout Creek. During the summer of 1873 he joined Governor Hunt on a trip to New Mexico, presumably in the interest of an extension of the D. & R. G. Railroad. The next winter he worked in a sawmill at Larkspur, which was reputed to be the largest in the Territory, employing 100 laborers and having an output of 25,000 feet of lumber per day. In 1874 he went with a Mr. Smith to Manitou Park and put in a crop of oats on shares, Dr. Bell's favorite method of promotion. That this venture was a success is indicated by the fact that during the winter Thornton bought a thirteenth interest in the Bergen Park Co., later changed to the Manitou Park Co.

Mrs. E. O. Wolcott in her book "Heritage of the Years" tells of riding up Ute Pass (she was then Mrs. Lyman K. Bass), I assume about 1877, with a man who is easily identified as Thornton. They were riding in a buckboard, he being asleep much of the time as they rode. She states that she aroused him to look at a sawmill. "Oh," he exclaimed, "I worked there one year with never a shoe on my feet. When one gets a good callous, there is no need for shoes." She goes on to say, "He had a heart of gold. On this trip we kept vigil two days and nights to save the life of a ranchman's wife in a lonely log house forty miles from a doctor. Alert and tender, but for him the exhausted husband would never have had the mother of his new-born bab restored to him."

In 1878, apparently when he had accumulated the means, this loyal Englishman married his Swiss governess, Elizabeth Fanny Fabre of Neuchatel, Switzerland, and they made their home in Manitou Park. Thornton sold his interest there about 1900 and moved to Colorado Springs, but soon bought a ranch south of Jimmy Camp, Southeast of the city. As a youth, I remember "Lord Thornton" very clearly on his occasional trips to the town of Fountain by horseback from up Franceville Way. He was lean and bony and straight-seated in the saddle. With his reddish hair; ruddy complexion; sandy, bristly, straight moustache, prominent nose and piercing eyes; and clothed in a wide-brimmed hat, a varicolored vest, English riding breeches, and leather puttees, he made a memorable figure. He was usually accompanied by several dogs.

The late M. M. Sinton gave me some of his impressions of Thornton. He made butter on his ranch, putting it into a mold bearing the letters O. T. When asked what these meant, he replied, "Old Thornton." Hunters approached the ranch home one day, when Mrs. Thornton came out of the house and told them not to shoot any of their rabbits. When asked which were their rabbits, she exclaimed, "All of them."' Thornton created a dramatic impression when he drove into town in his buckboard behind a pair of spirited horses, with erect posture and cracking whip, at full speed. When he and Major McAllister met on the highway with their buggies, they would begin shouting at each other while at a distance and continue doing so until they were long passed. He spent a good deal of time in later years trying to develop a new-type of incubator, one of its features being that eggs rolled down an inclined plane.

Thornton bought a ranch, the Page ranch, in Fountain Valley, down near the Pueblo County line. Agnes Holmes told me that Mr. and Mrs. Thornton drove to the Springs from there one day in company with a daughter. On arriving home that evening they discovered they had left their daughter in the city and had to take the thirty mile trip to the city and back to bring her home. They moved to Colorado Springs, living for a time at the corner of E. Colorado Ave. and Royer St. Thornton spent his later years at 2011 N. Tejon St. There were two daughters. The elder married Francis Muirhead and of the Faculty of Yale College in the Department of Physics.

Quite a number of Welsh immigrants settled in the Monument area, north of Colorado Springs. Among them was G. R. Gwillim who came about 1870. His half-brother, Richard Gwillim, settled first in Illinois, but finding that the climate there did not agree with his bronchial trouble, he came to Colorado. He arrived in 1871 on the first Denver and Rio Grande train from Denver, which carried other notable immigrants to the area. Being ignorant of the geography of the region and unaware of the distances, he did not wait for the train to reach Henry Station, as Monument was then called, but got off the train with his baggage at Greenland and started walking to his brother's home east of Monument. He did not reach it until the following day. Richard's younger brother, Tom, arrived a few years later.

Draft Call for 17,000 Issued by U.S. Office

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department issued a call Friday for 17,000 men to be inducted into the Army during June.

The Pentagon also said it expected 9,000 volunteers to supplement a total of 26,000 recruits needed for next month.

The quota marked another increase in a steady climb from a low of 3,000 for February.

The increased need for draftees has been attributed to a falling off in enlistments, lengthened training periods, and to increased needs for replacements in odd years because of a two-year cycle begun during the Berlin buildup of 1961.

Feeder Cattle Import Boost Is Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department predicted today imports of feeder type cattle from Canada and Mexico this year will be substantially larger than last year. But continued cutbacks in imports of beef are likely to help maintain cattle prices at more favorable levels than in 1964.

In a report on the livestock and meat situation, the department said there are large feeder cattle supplies in these countris because their exports were curtailed last year.

"With the recent improvement in U.S. feeder cattle prices and the expectation of continued favorable feeding margins, feeder cattle imports may be substantially above 1964 levels later this year," the report said.

Imports from Canada and Mexico totaled about 515,000 head last year, down more than 300,000 from 1963.

The department said prices of feed cattle — the quality slaughter supply — in the second quarter likely will average $4 or more a hundred pounds above the year earlier average of $21.12 for choice steers at Chicago. It added, however, that prices may decline slightly about mid year, especially if placements of feeder cattle in feed lots continue large this spring. Third quarter prices likely will average around year-earlier levels.

JUDGE INNOCENT

WATERLOO, Iowa (AP) — A municipal court judge was tried by a 6-member jury here and was found innocent. Judge Ben Howrey, 65, admitted he punched Ernest Seeman, 50, of Waterloo, in the nose outside his courtroom but explained it was in self-defense. The incident occurred when a suit by Seeman was being tried in Judge Howrey's court.

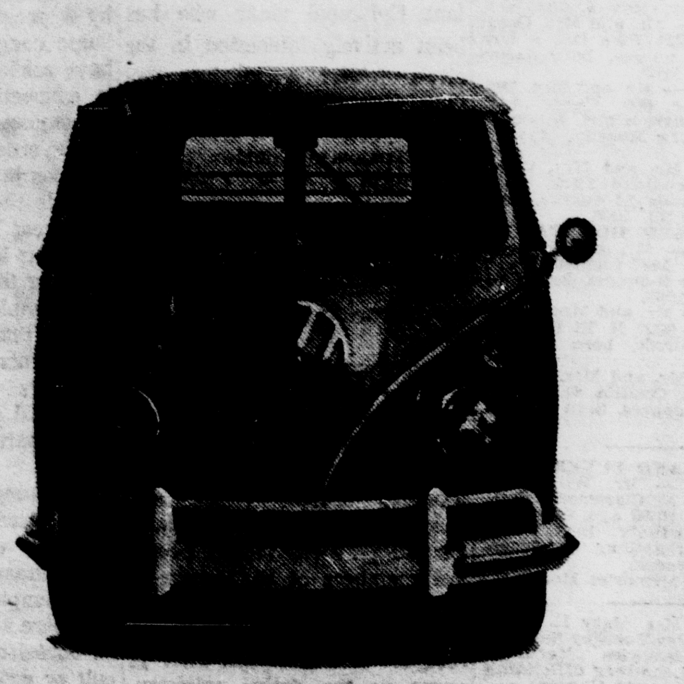
170 cubic feet of station wagon.



170 cubic feet of station wagon.

This picture may look odd.

But so are most conventional station wagons when you consider how little they hold.

The two above average about 85 cubic feet each. The VW holds twice that: 170.

And even if you did put two conventional wagons together you still couldn't carry the kind of things you can in a VW.

The Volkswagen has a 14-square-foot hole in the roof for sticking tall things out of.

And five big doors to stick things into.

On the inside, the VW has seats for 9 people and room for 28 cubic feet of luggage.

But on the outside, it's only a scant 9 inches longer than the VW Sedan.

And everywhere you go, the air-cooled VW engine is right there behind you getting 20 miles a gallon.

When you think about it, the Volkswagen Station Wagon not only holds a pile, it can also save you one.

WASHINGTON — (Special to the Gazette Telegraph) — Congressman Wright Patman of Texas has requested the Department of Defense to look into what he termed "loan shark operations" of the Federal Services Finance Corporation, FSFC. In his letter to Secretary McNamara the Texas congressman claimed that the company engaged in "improper and probably illegal operations in loans to service men," and urged the Department to declare the organization "off limits" insofar as any personal representatives on post were concerned.

Maj. Gen. George Olmsted immediately issued a statement that "There is no truth whatsoever to Mr. Patman's statement that the Federal Services Finance Corporation is part of the Financial General Corporation." He further noted that Patman was being irresponsible in charging the FSFC with being linked with Finance General Corporation, a bank holding company.

General Olmsted graduated in the West Point class of 1922 but resigned the next year. Later he attain the rank of major general in the Army Reserve.

The Army is in for trouble with Congress due to the recent report from the comptroller general on the Army's use of soldiers for non-military duties. The report claimed that officers and men were used to fill full time jobs running hobby shops, clubs and bowling alleys. The report said that 368 officers and 1,984 men had been so assigned.

Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara will go to bat in Congress for a substantial pay raise for the military. Reliable sources tell me that for the past few weeks he has been making an intense study of the history of military pay and is determined, now that he is convinced of the inadequate military pay rate, to become a salesman when he appears before the Congressional committees on the 1965 pay measure.

Just how much he will ask for is not known. If he can work out some measure to brake the rising cost of military retired pay he might support a ten per cent increase. This raises an interesting question of whether he is coming out later for a full 30-year career rather than continuation of the optional 20-year retirement.

Hopes of military retirees that Congress might give some relief on taxes paid for retired servicemen were dashed last week when the Treasury Department asked Congress to delay an action it might have in mind for relief.

If the Air Force should be called upon to act fast to move more airmen into Viet Nam, there would be only hours to get ready and to go. This means that airmen at the bottom of the roster for overseas duty might be among the first to go.

As things now stand the Air Force may take on another overseas airlift in September as part of the NATO maneuvers. This will be the one that had been scheduled in 1964.

This focuses attention on an article in Wednesday's issue of "Army Times" concerning the status of Title III retired Reservists. This article first appeared here in 1964. The Department of Defense and the government budget planners are studying the subject of the rather expensive reservists. [illegible]

Work Underway Again On Homestake Project

(Editor's Note: This is the latest progress report on the $90 million Homestake Water Project to transport Western Slope water to Colorado Springs and Aurora.)

South Park sod was torn up again last week as work resumed on installation of 30 miles of 66-inch pipe.

This line will carry Homestake water from the Arkansas River diversion point over Trout Creek Pass to a point near Eleven Mile Reservoir.

About 8,000 feet of the 66-incher were installed across South Park last fall before the ground froze.

Installation of the line has started through the 1,800-foot Little Annie Tunnel. Further east, Goddard Tunnel, which will be a mile long, is 52 per cent bored.

A bridge for the project was completed last week across the Arkansas River. The [illegible] structure is the only one in the area strong enough to support heavy construction loads being moved to the east side of the river, officials said.

Trucks which were transporting 13 and 17-ton joints of reinforced concrete pipe were fording the river throughout the winter.

The fording method was discontinued when heavy runoff began in the Arkansas River. The new bridge is [illegible] feet wide and 60 feet long.

It is named "Josephine" after Mrs. Josephine Frost, holder of mining claims on the east side of the river [illegible]

The 5.5-mile Homestake Tunnel through the Continental Divide is 60 per cent completed.

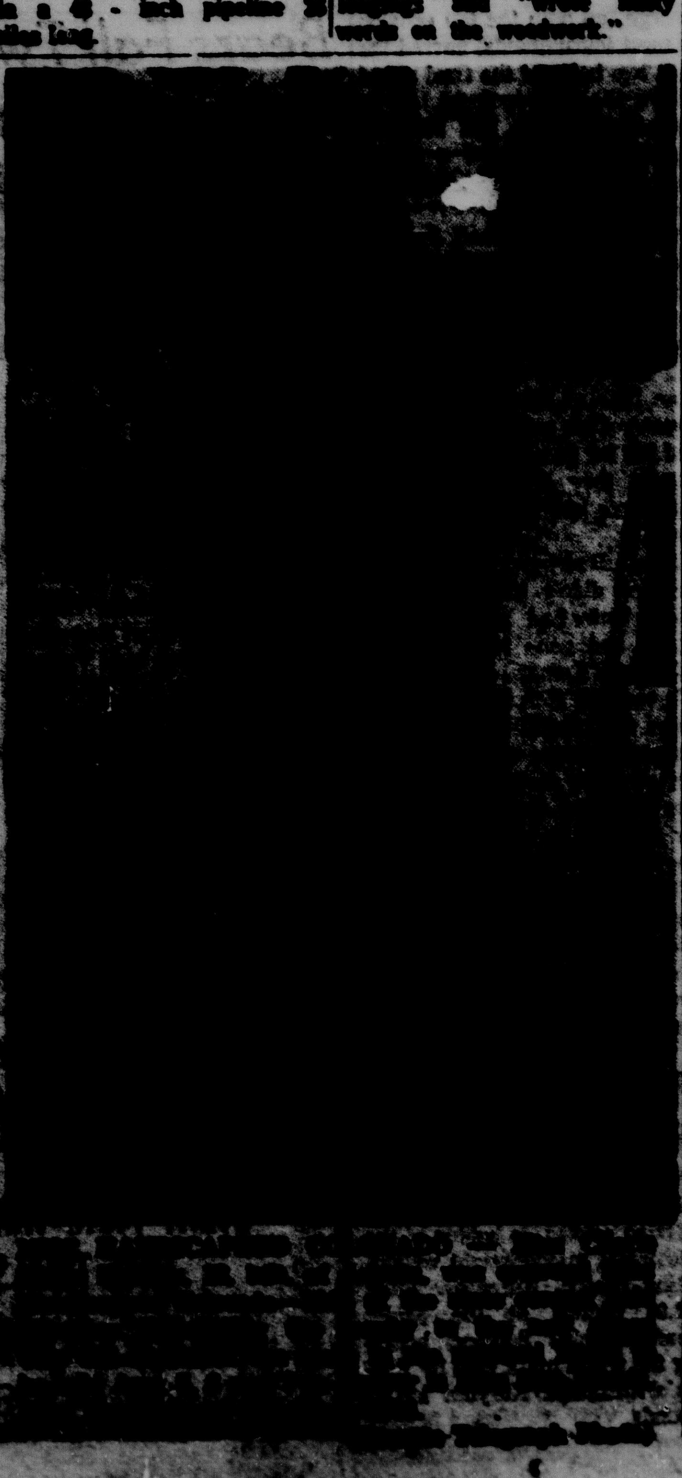
Utilities officials report that 300 workers are on the job. This does not include workers being mobilized on the Lower Homestake operation.

This phase will bring Colorado Springs' share of the water from a point near Eleven Mile Reservoir to reservoirs near the city, via a 48-inch pipeline 28 miles long.

Boys Cause $2,000 Damage To School Here

Two boys, one aged nine and the other ten, caused $2,000 damage to the Chamberlin School, 2400 Slater Avenue, the Sheriff's Department reported Sunday.

According to Deputy Sheriff Bob Snuggs, the pair broke into the building, started several fires in different rooms, poured glue, bleach and ink on the floors and left the place "a complete mess." They also rifled people's personal belongings and "wrote nasty words on the woodwork."



Evans Proposes Fossil Beds Nat'l. Monument

Congressman Frank E. Evans (D-Colo.) said he would introduce a bill today to create a 6,000-acre national monument near Florissant.

The proposed Florissant Fossil Beds National Monument would be 35 miles west of Colorado Springs.

The bill would allow the Secretary of the Interior to acquire the land by donation, purchase, or exchange.

The monument would be in Teller County.

Evans said, "This area is nationally known for its outstanding collection of insect and leaf fossils and petrified trees.

"With the passage of this bill, the rich natural history of this area could be interpreted by park naturalists in popular language for the visitor. Conducted auto tours, nature walks and campfire programs would enable those interested to have memorable experiences."

"The establishment of this monument would also be economically helpful to nearby communities of Florissant, Lake George, Divide and Woodland Park, as well as Manitou Springs and Colorado Springs.

Creation of the monument was recommended by the Interior Department in 1962, Evans said. In 1964 a bill was introduced into Congress, but no action was taken.

Gonzales Will Speak to Young Dems

Rudolph Gonzales will speak Tuesday to the El Paso County Young Democrats on the problems and political power of persons with Spanish surnames in Colorado.

Gonzales is a director of the Denver War on Poverty and the Job Opportunity Center in Denver and is on the President's National Citizens Committee for Community Relations.

He is also a director of LARAZA, an organization to further the progress of Spanish Americans in the same way the Urban League is dedicated to the advancement of Negroes, a Young Democrat said.

The meeting will be 8 p.m. is the First Congregational Church, Tejon and St. Vrain Streets.

The public is invited.

Redeemer Students Have Real Field Day

Students of Redeemer Lutheran School had a field day in Denver Friday — literally and figuratively.

A major event was held in Sloan's Park, and included students of Lutheran schools from all over Colorado.

Two bus loads of Redeemer children, the entire student body of about 80, made the trip, and came home with what Principal Charles Muhlenbruck called a "clean sweep."

Outstanding was the winning of the relay race, which is the most popular event in the annual field day meet. Redeemer Lutheran won it again as was the case last year — this makes the sixth relay win out of nine attempts.

The next honor the youngsters brought back was the winning of the Over-all in the Class C Division with a total of [illegible] points. Classes A, B, and C represent the size of school competing. Redeemer Lutheran won more races and events than any other school of its size.

The students did particularly well in the 50 and 75-yard dashes, and in the high jump.

Language Labs Will Go Into Junior Highs Here

Language laboratories will be installed and ready for use in two junior high schools by September, according to Dr. Arthur R. Olson, deputy superintendent of the Colorado Springs Public Schools.

He said present plans call for similar installations in two additional schools the following year and in the remaining two junior highs by September 1967.

The junior high laboratories will differ from those that have been in operation at Wasson and Palmer High Schools since 1960. Instead of fixed installations, the junior high laboratories will be mobile and can be used in any of six specially prewired classrooms in the two schools.

When a teacher wants to use the laboratory, he will simply roll a console into his classroom. Microphones and earphones for every student are stored in the console which also contains a tape recorder, microphone, and earphones for the teacher's use.

The six language classrooms will have an outlet for earphones and microphones at each student's chair. From the console, teachers can play taped lessons and listen or talk with individual students. Teachers can give individual help while the class continues its oral-aural practice.

Dr. Olson said pre-wiring the classrooms makes it unnecessary to run a maze of wires from the console to the students and thus eliminates confusion and saves class time. When the earphones and microphones are stored in the console, the classroom can be used as any other academic classroom.

Unlike a fixed installation, the mobile equipment does not have individual student booths, but Dr. Olson said the earphones have a high degree of acoustical isolation, and a noise cancelling microphone minimizes the pickup of extraneous noise.

Four and a half years of experience with language laboratories at the two high schools has shown that laboratories are effective in promoting the mastery of communication in a foreign language. In a traditional language class, Dr. Olson said, a student can speak individually for only a limited time as everyone in the class must have a chance to speak.

He said experience has also shown that the optimum length of time for using a language laboratory is about 20 minutes, three times a week. This means every student has at least an hour of speaking and listening practice a week, and this is far more practice than a student gets in the traditional classroom situation.

State Osteopaths To Discuss PKU At Confab Here

More Than Half Of Cadets Take Pilot Training

Of the 518 members of the Class of 1965 now scheduled to graduate June 9, 323 will enter pilot training. Twenty-nine grads are heading for navigator training.

In addition, 11 will enroll in Air Force Institute of Technology (AFIT) regular study programs and 14 are scheduled to enter seven-month programs leading to Masters Degrees at Georgetown, Purdue, or the University of California.

Four graduates are to enter medical school, one is going to law school, 22 will take further study under various scholarships, 26 head for directed duty assignments, and 36 will begin technical training.

Two graduates will not be commissioned because of medical reasons and two others have applied for commissions in the Marine Corps.

(Editor's Note: This is the latest progress report on the $60 million Homestake Water Project to transport Western Slope water to Colorado Springs and Aurora.)

South Park sod was torn up again last week as work resumed on installation of 50 miles of 66 - inch pipe.

This line will carry Homestake water from the Arkansas River diversion point over Trout Creek Pass to a point near Eleven Mile Reservoir.

About 8,000 feet of the 66-incher were installed across South Park last fall before the ground froze.

Installation of the line has started through the 1,800 - foot Little Annie Tunnel. Further east, Goddard Tunnel, which will be a mile long, is 51 per cent bored.

A bridge for the project was completed last week across the Arkansas River. The $18,000 structure is the only one in the area strong enough to support heavy construction loads being moved to the east side of the river, officials said.

Trucks which were transporting 13 and 17 - ton joints of reinforced concrete pipe were fording the river throughout the winter.

The fording method was discontinued after heavy runoff began in the Arkansas River. The new bridge is 10 feet wide and 60 feet long.

It is named "Josephine" after Mrs. Josephine Frost, holder of mining claims on the east side of the river where the bridge touches.

She did informal "ribbon cutting" honors last week, using a pair of pliers to snip a steel band to open the bridge.

The Homestake Project includes a pumping station and housing for personnel near the new bridge. At this point Homestake water dumped in the Arkansas upstream will be diverted into the 66-incher.

The 5.5. - mile Homestake Tunnel through the Continental Divide is 80 per cent completed.

Utilities officials report that 390 workers are on the job. This does not include workers being mobilized on the Lower Homestake operation.

This phase will bring Colorado Springs' share of the water from a point near Eleven Mile Reservoir to reservoirs near the city, via a 48 - inch pipeline 26 miles long.

Boys Cause $2,000 Damage To School Here

Two boys, one aged nine and the other ten, caused $2,000 damage to the Chamberlin School, 2400 Slater Avenue, the Sheriff's Department reported Sunday.

According to Deputy Sheriff Bob Smuggs, the pair broke into the building, started several fires in different rooms, poured glue, bleach and ink on the floors and left the place "a complete mess." They also ruined people's personal belongings and "wrote nasty words on the woodwork."

Evans Proposes Fossil Beds Natl. Monument

Congressman Frank E. Evans (D-Colo.) said he would introduce a bill today to create a 6,000-acre national monument near Florissant.

The proposed Florissant Fossil Beds National Monument would be 35 miles west of Colorado Springs.

The bill would allow the Secretary of the Interior to acquire the land by donation, purchase, or exchange.

The monument would be in Teller County.

Evans said, "This area is nationally known for its outstanding collection of insect and leaf fossils and petrified trees.

"With the passage of this bill, the rich natural history of this area could be interpreted by park naturalists in popular language for the visitor. Conducted auto tours, nature walks and campfire programs would enable those interested to have memorable experiences."

"The establishment of this monument would also be economically helpful to nearby communities of Florissant, Lake George, Divide and Woodland Park, as well as Manitou Springs and Colorado Springs.

Creation of the monument was recommended by the Interior Department in 1962, Evans said. In 1964 a bill was introduced into Congress, but no action was taken.

Gonzales Will Speak to Young Dems

Rudolph Gonzales will speak Tuesday to the El Paso County Young Democrats on the problems and political power of persons with Spanish surnames in Colorado.

Gonzales is a director of the Denver War on Poverty and the Job Opportunity Center in Denver and is on the President's National Citizens Committee for Community Relations.

He is also a director of LARAZA, an organization to further the progress of Spanish Americans in the same way the Urban League is dedicated to the advancement of Negroes, a Young Democrat said.

The meeting will be 8 p.m. is the First Congregational Church, Tejon and St. Vrain Streets.

The public is invited.

Redeemer Students Have Real Field Day

Students of Redeemer Lutheran School had a field day in Denver Friday — literally and figuratively.

A major event was held in Sloan's Park, and included students of Lutheran schools from all over Colorado.

Two bus loads of Redeemer children, the entire student body of about 90, made the trip, and came home with what Principal Charles Muhlenbruck called a "clean sweep."

Outstanding was the winning of the relay race, which is the most popular event in the annual field day meet. Redeemer Lutheran won it again as was the case last year — this makes the sixth relay win out of nine attempts.

The next honor the youngsters brought back was the winning of the Over-all in the Class C. Division with a total of 208½ points. Classes A., B. and C. represent the size of school competing. Redeemer Lutheran won more races and events than any other school of its size.

The students did particularly well in the 50 and 75-yard dashes, and in the high jump.

License Request On Manitou Council Agenda

The application of Larry Chancellor for a license to operate a motorcycle rental at 107 Manitou Ave. will be considered Tuesday by the Manitou Springs City Council.

In a straw vote at its last session, the council said they thought Chancellor's business would be objectionable.

Four other licenses are on the agenda, including amusement licenses for Jack W. Kerns, Arcade Amusements; and Forrest B. Flectchall, Eddie's Amusement.

Both licenses would be for the Arcade area in downtown Manitou.

When the agenda was made, Fletchall's application was not yet filed.

The meeting will be 3 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

Language Labs Will Go Into Junior Highs Here

Language laboratories will be installed and ready for use in two junior high schools by September, according to Dr. Arthur R. Olson, deputy superintendent of the Colorado Springs Public Schools.

He said present plans call for similar installations in two additional schools the following year and in the remaining two junior highs by September 1967.

The junior high laboratories will differ from those that have been in operation at Wasson and Palmer High Schools since 1960. Instead of fixed installations, the junior high laboratories will be mobile and can be used in any of six specially prewired classrooms in the two schools.

When a teacher wants to use the laboratory, he will simply roll a console into his classroom. Microphones and earphones for every student are stored in the console which also contains a tape recorder, microphone, and earphones for the teacher's use.

The six language classrooms will have an outlet for earphones and microphones at each student's chair. From the console, teachers can play taped lessons and listen or talk with individual students. Teachers can give individual help while the class continues its oral-aural practice.

Dr. Olson said pre-wiring the classrooms makes it unnecessary to run a maze of wires from the console to the students and thus eliminates confusion and saves class time. When the earphones and microphones are stored in the console, the classroom can be used as any other academic classroom.

Unlike a fixed installation, the mobile equipment does not have individual student booths, but Dr. Olson said the earphones have a high degree of acoustical isolation, and a noise cancelling microphone minimizes the pickup of extraneous noise.

Four and a half years of experience with language laboratories at the two high schools has shown that laboratories are effective in promoting the mastery of communication in a foreign language. In a traditional language class, Dr. Olson said, a student can speak individually for only a limited time as everyone in the class must have a chance to speak.

He said experience has also shown that the optimum length of time for using a language laboratory is about 20 minutes, three times a week. This means every student has at least an hour of speaking and listening practice a week, and this is far more practice than a students gets in the traditional classroom situation.

State Osteopaths To Discuss PKU At Confab Here

A conference of the Colorado Osteopathic Association — covering Phenylketonuria (PKU), the veneral diseases and pediatrics — will open Thursday in the Broadmoor Hotel.

PKU, an infant disease which recently attracted nationwide attention and was the subject of a new Colorado law, will be first on the agenda at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Col. George V. Fagan, library director, thanked the youngsters for their participation in the contest and the Douglas and Pine Valley Schools and their PTA's for their support.

More Than Half Of Cadets Take Pilot Training

Of the 518 members of the Class of 1965 now scheduled to graduate June 9, 323 will enter pilot training. Twenty - nine grads are heading for navigator training.

In addition, 11 will enroll in Air Force Institute of Technology (AFIT) regular study programs and 14 are scheduled to enter seven-month programs leading to Masters Degrees at Georgetown, Purdue, or the University of California.

Four graduates are to enter medical school, one is going to law school, 22 will take further study under various scholarships, 26 head for directed duty assignments, and 56 will begin technical training.

Two graduates will not be commissioned because of medical reasons and two others have applied for commissions in the Marine Corps.

This year's class is the largest since the first diploma was issued in 1959.

Including the Class of 1965, the Academy will have graduated 2,465 in its seven senior classes.

Legislative Investigation Set for State Prep Sports

By [illegible]
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP)—A legislative investigation of high school sports in Colorado, voted by the state's lawmakers after they appropriated a record $[illegible] million for public school aid, will be organized this week.

The committee to make the investigation will be chosen by the Legislative Council at a meeting just prior to the formal closing session of the legislature Thursday afternoon.

The lawmakers were directed, in the authorizing resolution's final version, to study how much in public funds is being expended on interscholastic athletic programs.

The resolution is worded so broadly that the committee will have authority to go into almost any phase of high school athletics. It was a revised draft of one originally offered by Sen. Edwin S. Lamm, R-Grand Junction.

Listed as among the things "the committee appointed to conduct this study may want to consider" are:

"Amount of school time directly or indirectly devoted to interscholastic athletic programs;

"The additional cost of transportation necessitated by these programs;

"The number of children participating in these programs in proportion to the total number of students enrolled in the public school system;

"The relationship in both cost and in area required of facilities constructed for interscholastic athletics and the areas constructed for the general physical education of all students;

"The number of additional teachers required and the amount of additional compensation paid on account of these programs."

Ray Ball, assistant commissioner of the Colorado High School Activities Association, told a reporter he thinks the study is a good one and predicted the lawmakers will be surprised at the small number of tax dollars involved.

Ball said that the principal amount probably is in additional compensation paid to teachers who are assigned coaching duties. He noted that all coaches are qualified teachers carrying on full schedules of class instruction.

In many districts, Ball said, interscholastic athletics are not only self-supporting but help finance other activities.

Ball said the information which the committee needs should be available in the individual school districts.

A survey made two years ago by the association showed that more than 30,000 boys—out of about 50,000 enrolled in high schools—participate in the interscholastic sports program, he reported. It listed 9,120 youths as participating in regular 11-man football at 153 schools and 1,176 others in the eight-man football played at 40 smaller schools.

The survey indicated these participants in other sports, but there are many duplications because many boys participate in several sports: basketball 228 schools, 9,120 youths; track 228 schools, 8,000; baseball 17 schools, 4,250; wrestling 132 schools, 3,300; gymnastics 21 schools, 1,050; cross country 80 schools, 1,008; tennis 53 schools, 736; and swimming 26 schools, 780.

The activities association — with headquarters at Aurora — was mentioned specifically in the resolution. Ball says its staff consists of Glen Wilson, former superintendent at Greeley and himself and three clerical employes. Ball formerly was a principal in Jefferson County schools. The association handles numerous other activities in addition to athletics.

Missouri Nears Crown; Buff Nine Rained Out

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Missouri's defending Big Eight baseball champs and 1964 NCAA runners-up, supposedly diminished by graduation, are headed for a title series with Iowa State May 21-22 at Ames because they find new ways to win and new help every week.

Hi Simmons, veteran Missouri coach, may get his fourth straight league crown and 11th in 28 seasons. But he says it won't be due to coaching.

"I'm just sitting back and enjoying it," Simmons said. "I've been around long enough to learn that when you have a winning spirit like this club has, it's better to do as little coaching as possible."

Missouri completed a series sweep Saturday at Columbia by taking two from Kansas, 8-6 after spotting Kansas a 6-0 lead, and 1-0 in a rare double one-hitter, broken up by Bob Robben's sixth inning two-out single.

Iowa State, coached by another crafty veteran, Cap Timm, is making a surprising run for the title with an underrated club. The Cyclones kept pace with a 9-1 victory at Ames, completing a sweep over Oklahoma.

Missouri has an 11-3 record, Iowa State 10-4, Nebraska 8-5, Oklahoma State 8-7, Kansas 7-8, Colorado 5-8, Oklahoma 5-10 and Kansas State 2-11. This Friday and Saturday, Iowa State is at Oklahoma State, Kansas at Kansas State, Colorado at Missouri and Oklahoma at Nebraska. Iowa State obviously has the toughest job of the two contenders.

Colorado shut out Nebraska 2-0 behind Richard Frank's four-hitter in the other game Saturday. K-State-Colorado at Boulder was rained out.

Boston Ban Becoming Bonanza

From Gov. John H. Reed on down, leading public figures and businessmen welcome the world championship event with open arms. Some other citizens still can't figure how the community of 41,000 suddenly is a focal point of the sports world.

It happened of course when legal entanglements and an effort to have the bout banned in Boston left Inter-Continental Promotions, Inc. and Sportsvision, which handles the closed circuit television rights, too little time. They could afford no more uncertainties.

So they decided between Bangor and Lewiston, settling on the latter which is closer to Boston, 140 miles to the south. The site, instead of Boston Garden with its 13,909 capacity, is the Lewiston Youth Center where fire laws restrict seating to 3,000 but efforts are being made to expand it to slightly over 5,000.

One Inter-Continental spokesman says Dist. Atty. Garrett Byrne in Boston who sought an injunction banning the fight "may have done us a big favor. It looks as though we'll do better financially here than in Boston."

The spokesman said the rent of the building is $225,000 less than in Boston and the taxes $118,000 lower. Tickets with a $50 top were scaled for a $900,000 house in Boston and with a $100 top for about $330,000 here.

"With the fight out of Boston we open up another big city for the closed circuit TV, and that's where we'll make our money," the spokesman continued.

"Lewiston could become the fight capital," said Bob Nilon, Inter-Continental president. "The area is perfect, expenses low and running a fight here you have every major U.S. city wide open for the closed circuit TV."

While state officials estimated the fight will mean $1 million or more in business and publicity, some folks wondered how to house and feed the many visitors expected.

Problems which must be dealt with quickly are the printing of tickets for an arena Inter-Continental hadn't seen before the weekend, the securing of a large enough ring and the boxing commission's problem of selecting a referee.

Back in Boston, promoter Sam Silverman, who lost out on the live fight, announced he'll be running closed-circuit TV in five New England cities — Boston Arena plus Lynn, Lowell, Worcester and Hartford, Conn.

Liston plans to remain at his suburban Dedham training camp south of Boston for at least another week before moving to Poland Spring House, about 10 miles from Lewiston.

Clay did not work out Sunday at Chicopee, Mass., but will resume today. He's done 118 sparring rounds to date in preparation for the rematch.

Kadets, Las Animas Launch Quest for State Prep Titles

By TOM [illegible]
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Air Academy High launches the bid of area schools for statewide honors this afternoon when the champions of the Will Rogers League meet Southern League winner, Las Animas, in the opening round of the AAA baseball tournament at Runyon Field in Pueblo.

The Academy High — Las Animas battle, which is scheduled for 3:45 p.m. at the neutral site in the Steel City, is only the first of a number of state-level competitions which will involve local teams this week. In fact, the winner of this afternoon's game will move on to the quarter-finals of the AAA baseball playoffs with its second opponent being South Central League champion Palmer in a contest at Memorial Park Saturday.

Also coming up this weekend are the state track meets. Colorado Springs will have athletes entered in both the AAA and AA divisions Saturday at Boulder. St. Mary's will be shooting for its first State Parochial Championship at Golden Friday. In addition, Patty Jewett Municipal Course will host the state high school golf tournament Friday and Saturday.

While these teams are chasing after state titles, a number of others will be winding up their spring activity during the current week. Tuesday will see the conclusion of the regular South Central League season with Palmer attempting to wrap up an unbeaten campaign in a battle with second-place Centennial in Pueblo.

At the same time Wasson will be out to conclude its season on a successful note when [illegible] Park's Thunderbirds host Pueblo East at Memorial Park. That game is scheduled for 3:[illegible] and Wasson will take the field with an overall record of 9-7. A Centennial defeat would [illegible] and a Centennial defeat would give Wasson a second place tie in the final SCL standings.

Will Rogers clubs have completed their conference season but a couple have non-league contests awaiting this week. Cheyenne Mountain hosts St. Mary's at 4 p.m. today and Fountain Valley Tuesday to put the lid on its schedule. Academy High follows today's playoff game with a home field start against St. Mary's Wednesday afternoon. Harrison, Widefield, and Canon City have already concluded their seasons. St. Mary's will then end its schedule in a Saturday bout [illegible] Regis High of Denver.

The weekend will also see the local area's two collegiate squads put the wraps on their seasons. The Air Force Academy, rained out of a doubleheader at CSU Saturday and a single game at Wyoming Sunday, will not reschedule these contests. Instead Tuesday's home field battle with CC, a Wednesday trip to Denver U., and a weekend as host to Southern Colorado for a twin bill Saturday and Wyoming for one game Sunday will wind up the Falcons 1965 work.

CC, riding the crest of a nine-game winning streak, opens a busy final week as host to Southern Colorado today in a 3 p.m. clash at Memorial Park. Tuesday the Tigers are scheduled for their return meeting with the Air Force at the Academy, Thursday they travel to Regis, and they then conclude by tangling with New Mexico Highlands in a Saturday doubleheader and Sunday single game.

The AAA and AA state track meets will both be run throughout the day Saturday at Boulder. Wasson's South Central League champions will send 14 athletes into the AAA competition while Palmer qualified two. Cheyenne Mountain, champ of the Will Rogers League, will lead that conference's contingent into the AAA meet, although Canon City, Widefield, and Academy High will also have large sizeable representations.

Fountain, winner of the Pikes Peak League title, qualified 16 and Manitou Springs three for the AA meet. And St. Mary's, a local power throughout the season, will undoubtedly be favored to capture the Private Schools Meet at Golden Friday.

Knudson Leads Colonial Mudders by One Stroke

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — George Knudson, the Canadian who may become the fifth man to lead the $100,000 Colonial National Golf Tournament all the way, went out today in the rain-plagued tournament boasting a one-stroke bulge over Bruce Crampton and Tony Lema.

The final round was postponed Sunday because of a one-half inch rain accompanied by lightning.

Knudson was neither helped nor hurt by the postponement. Entering the final round with a one-under-par 209 [illegible] holes, George, up with the top echelon in most tournaments, parred the first two holes of the final round before the postponement.

Crampton, who had 210, did the same and stayed a stroke back. But Lema took a bogey on the second hole.

Only 17 players had finished the final round when it was postponed after two stops. Among the finishers were Tommy Aaron and Chris Blocker, who had one-over-par 71 over the 7,100-yard Colonial Country Club course. But Aaron had 288 for 54 holes and Blocker [illegible]. So they weren't regretful that there had been a postponement.

Juan Rodriguez and Doug Sanders didn't like it though. They both had picked up a stroke and gone into a tie for third with Lema.

It was the fifth time in the [illegible] years of Colonial for play to be stopped because of the weather but all were played out. It also was the first time of the year for a round to be postponed on the tour.

The last tournament to be halted by rain [illegible]

Prospects were considered good that the tournament can be played out today although there was a hint of showers this afternoon. If it is postponed again, the final round will be played Tuesday.

Meadows Moves Post Time Back to 3:30 P.M.

Pikes Peak Meadows moves into its first full week of racing on Tuesday afternoon after a successful opening on Friday and Saturday. Racing will be conducted on a Tuesday through Saturday basis for the balance of the season until June 30.

In order to better accommodate racing patrons, general manager John Sidenberg announced that beginning on Tuesday the track would go to a twilight racing program. Post time for the first race each weekday will be 3:30 p.m. Post time for Saturday and holidays will remain at 2 p.m.

Eight races are planned during the week, with nine races programmed on Saturdays and holidays. During the week, Twin Quin wagering will be conducted on the fifth and sixth races each afternoon, and on the sixth and seventh on Saturdays.

Featured for Tuesday will be the Penrose Purse for 4-year-olds and up sprinting 5½ furlongs. Eight horses are entered with Iron Abbey looming as a possible favorite. Iron Abbey will van in for the race from La Mesa Park in Raton. Louis Sisneros is slated to ride.

Other powers are expected to be Flects Fist, who recorded a pair of wins at Turf Paradise this spring, and Fleet Pie who scored three wins at the Phoenix track. Flects Fist will be ridden by jockey Lyle Murray, while Fleet Pie will be handled by apprentice Tommy Ancher. Ancher picked up two wins on opening day at the Meadows.

Rounding out the field are Hot Prospect, Wedded Unger, Jill Ran, Gill, and Miss Pun Pan.

In addition to the feature, there are seven other good races on the card.

Special buses leave the Continental Trailways bus station for the track each race day at 12:30 p.m. The new thoroughbred track is located midway between Colorado Springs and Pueblo, just off Highway 85-87.

Bears Fall Twice to Indy, Tacoma Holds Division

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indianapolis and Oklahoma City moved into the lead in the Eastern Division of the Pacific Coast League Sunday by a few percentage points when Indianapolis beat Denver twice, 6-4 and 3-1.

Tacoma managed to keep its slim hold on first place in the Western Division while the Giants and second-place Portland split a doubleheader, Tacoma winning the first 4-3, and Portland taking the nightcap [illegible].

Elsewhere around the circuit, Seattle won two from Hawaii, [illegible] and 5-4; Spokane beat Vancouver 3-[illegible]; Arkansas and Salt Lake City played a 3-3 seven-inning tie, called because of rain, and San Diego at Oklahoma City was postponed because of rain.

Indianapolis broke a four-game losing streak, coming from behind twice to whip the Denver Bears. In the opener, the Indians scored three times in the seventh and three more times in the eighth.

Buddy Bradford banged a two-run homer, and Gary Johnson helped pitcher Dave [illegible] with another.

In the nightcap, the Indians got all their runs in the fourth. Johnson doubled, pitcher Bill Fischer and Marv Staehle each singled, and then Dick Kenworthy doubled in Fischer and Staehle.

Legislative Investigation Set for State Prep Sports

By GORDON G. GAUSS
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP)—A legislative investigation of high school sports in Colorado, voted by the state's lawmakers after they appropriated a record $70 million for public school aid, will be organized this week.

The committee to make the investigation will be chosen by the Legislative Council at a meeting just prior to the formal closing session of the legislature Thursday afternoon.

The lawmakers were directed, in the authorizing resolution's final version, to study how much in public funds is being expended on interscholastic athletic programs.

The resolution is worded so broadly that the committee will have authority to go into almost any phase of high school athletics. It was a revised draft of one originally offered by Sen. Edwis S. Lamm, R-Grand Junction.

Listed as among the things "the committee appointed to conduct this study may want to consider" are:

"Amount of school time directly or indirectly devoted to interscholastic athletic programs;

"The additional cost of transportation necessitated by these programs;

"The number of children participating in these programs in proportion to the total number of students enrolled in the public school system;

"The relationship in both cost and in area required of facilities constructed for interscholastic athletics and the areas constructed for the general physical education of all students;

"The number of additional teachers required and the amount of additional compensation paid on account of these programs."

Ray Ball, assistant commissioner of the Colorado High School Activities Association, told a reporter he thinks the study is a good one and predicted the lawmakers will be surprised at the small number of tax dollars involved.

Ball said that the principal amount probably is in additional compensation paid to teachers who are assigned coaching duties. He noted that all coaches are qualified teachers carrying on full schedules of class instruction.

In many districts, Ball said, interscholastic athletics are not only self-supporting but help finance other activities.

Ball said the information which the committee needs should be available in the individual school districts.

A survey made two years ago by the association showed that more than 10,000 boys—out of about 50,000 enrolled in high schools—participate in the interscholastic sports program, he reported. It listed 9,120 youths as participating in regular 11-man football at 153 schools and 1,176 others in the eight-man football played at 49 smaller schools.

The survey indicated these participants in other sports, but there are many duplications because many boys participate in several sports: basketball 228 schools, 9,120 youths; track 228 schools, 8,000; baseball 17 schools, 4,250; wrestling 132 schools, 3,300; gymnastics 21 schools, 1,050; cross country 80 schools, 1,003; tennis 53 schools, 795; and swimming 26 schools, 780.

The activities association — with headquarters at Aurora — was mentioned specifically in the resolution. Ball says its staff consists of Glen Wilson, former superintendent at Greeley and himself and three clerical employes. Ball formerly was a principal in Jefferson County schools. The association handles numerous other activities in addition to athletics.

Missouri Nears Crown; Buff Nine Rained Out

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Missouri's defending Big Eight baseball champs and 964 NCAA runners-up, supposedly demolished by graduation, are headed for a title series with Iowa State May 21-22 at Ames because they find new ways to win and new help every week.

Hi Simmons, veteran Missouri coach, may get his fourth straight league crown and 11th at 26 seasons. But he says it won't be due to coaching.

"I'm just sitting back and enjoying it," Simmons said. "I've been around long enough to learn that when you have a winning spirit like this club has, it's better to do as little coaching as possible."

Kansas State	2	11	.154	3	15

Missouri completed a series sweep Saturday at Columbia by taking two from Kansas, 8-6 after spotting Kansas a 6-0 lead, and 1-0 in a rare double one-hitter, broken up by Bob Robben's sixth inning two-out single.

Iowa State, coached by another crafty veteran, Cap Timm, is making a surprising run for the title with an underrated club. The Cyclones kept pace with a 9-1 victory at Ames, completing a sweep over Oklahoma.

Missouri has an 11-3 record, Iowa State 10-4, Nebraska 8-5, Oklahoma State 8-7, Kansas 7-8, Colorado 5-8, Oklahoma 5-10 and Kansas State 2-11. This Friday and Saturday, Iowa State is at Oklahoma State, Kansas at Kansas State, Colorado at Missouri and Oklahoma at Nebraska. Iowa State obviously has the toughest job of the two contenders.

Colorado shut out Nebraska 2-0 behind Richard Frank's four-hitter in the other game Saturday. K-State-Colorado at Boulder was rained out.

Boston Ban Becoming Bonanza

From Gov. John H. Reed on down, leading public figures and businessmen welcome the world championship event with open arms. Some other citizens still can't figure how the community of 41,000 suddenly is a focal point of the sports world.

It happened of course when legal entanglements and an effort to have the bout banned in Boston left Inter-Continental Promotions, Inc. and Sportsvision, which handles the closed circuit television rights, too little time. They could afford no more uncertainties.

So they decided between Bangor and Lewiston, settling on the latter which is closer to Boston, 140 miles to the south. The site, instead of Boston Garden with its 13,909 capacity, is the Lewiston Youth Center where fire laws restrict seating to 3,000 but efforts are being made to expand it to slightly over 5,000.

One Inter-Continental spokesman says Dist. Atty. Garrett Byrne in Boston who sought an injunction banning the fight "may have done us a big favor. It looks as though we'll do better financially here than in Boston."

The spokesman said the rent of the building is $225,000 less than in Boston and the taxes $116,000 lower. Tickets with a $50 top were scaled for a $400,000 house in Boston and with a $100 top for about $330,000 here.

"With the fight out of Boston we open up another big city for the closed circuit TV, and that's where we'll make our money, the spokesman continued.

"Lewiston could become the fight capital," said Bob Nilon, Inter-Continental president. "The area is perfect, expenses low and running a fight here you have every major U.S. city wide open for the closed circuit TV."

While state officials estimated the fight will mean $1 million or more in business and publicity, some folks wondered how to house and feed the many visitors expected.

Problems which must be dealt with quickly are the printing of tickets for an arena Inter-Continental hadn't seen before the weekend, the securing of a large enough ring and the boxing commission's problem of selecting a referee.

Back in Boston, promoter Sam Silverman, who lost out on the live fight, announced he'll be running closed-circuit TV in five New England cities — Boston Arena plus Lynn, Lowell, Worcester and Hartford, Conn.

Liston plans to remain at his suburban Dedham training camp south of Boston for at least another week before moving to Poland Spring House, about 10 miles from Lewiston.

Clay did not work out Sunday at Chicopee, Mass., but will resume today. He's done 108 sparring rounds to date in preparation for the rematch.

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Air Academy High launches the bid of area schools for statewide honors this afternoon when the champions of the Will Rogers League meet Southern League winner, Las Animas, in the opening round of the AAA baseball tournament at Runyon Field in Pueblo.

The Academy High — Las Animas battle, which is scheduled for 3:45 p.m. at the neutral site in the Steel City, is only the first of a number of state-level competitions which will involve local teams this week. In fact, the winner of this afternoon's game will move on to the quarter-finals of the AAA baseball playoffs with its second opponent being South Central League champion Palmer in a contest at Memorial Park Saturday.

Also coming up this weekend are the state track meets. Colorado Springs will have athletes entered in both the AAA and AA divisions Saturday at Boulder. St. Mary's will be shooting for its first State Parochial Championship at Golden Friday. In addition, Patty Jewett Municipal Course will host the state high school golf tournament Friday and Saturday.

While these teams are chasing after state titles, a number of others will be winding up their spring activity during the current week. Tuesday will see the conclusion of the regular South Central League season with Palmer attempting to wrap up an unbeaten campaign in a battle with second-place Centennial in Pueblo.

At the same time Wasson will be out to conclude its season on a successful note when Gib Funk's Thunderbirds host Pueblo East at Memorial Park. That game is scheduled for 3:45 and Wasson will take the field with an overall record of 9-7. a Centennial defeat would and a Centennial defeat would give Wasson a second place tie in the final SCL standings.

Will Rogers clubs have completed their conference season but a couple have non-league contests awaiting this week. Cheyenne Mountain hosts St. Mary's at 4 p.m. today and Fountain Valley Tuesday to put the lid on its schedule. Academy High follows today's playoff game with a home field start against St. Mary's Wednesday afternoon. Harrison, Widefield, and Canon City have already concluded their seasons. St. Mary's will then end its schedule as a Saturday host to Regis High of Denver.

The weekend will also see the local area's two collegiate squads put the wraps on their seasons. The Air Force Academy, snowed out of a doubleheader at CSU Saturday and a single game at Wyoming Sunday, will not reschedule those contests. Instead Tuesday's home field battle with CC, a Wednesday trip to Denver U., and a weekend as host to Southern Colorado for a twin bill Saturday and Wyoming for one game Sunday will wind up the Falcons 1965 work.

CC, riding the crest of a nine-game winning streak, opens a busy final week as host to Southern Colorado today in a 3 p.m. clash at Memorial Park. Tuesday the Tigers are scheduled for their return meeting with the Air Force at the Academy, Thursday they travel to Regis, and they then conclude by tangling with New Mexico Highlands in a Saturday doubleheader and Sunday single game.

The AAA and AA state track meets will both be run throughout the day Saturday at Boulder. Wasson's South Central League champions will send 14 athletes into the AAA competition while Palmer qualified two. Cheyenne Mountain, champ of the Will Rogers League, will lead that conference's contingent into the AAA meet, although Canon City, Widefield, and Academy High will also have large sizeable representations.

Fountain, winner of the Pikes Peak League title, qualified 16 and Manitou Springs three for the AA meet. And St. Mary's, a local power throughout the season, will undoubtedly be favored to capture the Private Schools Meet at Golden Friday.

Meadows Moves Post Time Back to 3:30 P.M.

Pikes Peak Meadows moves into its first full week of racing on Tuesday afternoon after a successful opening on Friday and Saturday. Racing will be conducted on a Tuesday through Saturday basis for the balance of the season until June 30.

In order to better accommodate racing patrons, general manager John Sidenberg announced that beginning on Tuesday the track would go to a twilight racing program. Post time for the first race each weekday will be 3:30 p.m. Post time for Saturday and holidays will remain at 2 p.m.

Eight races are planned during the week, with nine races programmed on Saturdays and holidays. During the week, Twin Quin wagering will be conducted on the fifth and sixth races each afternoon, and on the sixth and seventh on Saturdays.

Featured for Tuesday will be the Penrose Purse for 4-year-olds and up sprinting 5½ furlongs. Eight horses are entered with Iron Abbey looming as a possible favorite. Iron Abbey will van in for the race from Le Mesa Park in Raton. Louis Sisneros is slated to ride.

Other powers are expected to be Fleets Fist, who recorded a pair of wins at Turf Paradise this spring, and Fleet Pie who scored three wins at the Phoenix track. Fleets Fist will be riden by jockey Lyle Murray, while Fleet Pie will be handled by apprentice Tommy Anacker. Anacker picked up two wins on opening day at the Meadows.

Rounding out the field are Hot Prospect, Wedded Ungus, Jill Ran, Gill, and Miss Pan Pan.

In addition to the feature, there are seven other good races on the card.

Special buses leave the Continental Trailways bus station for the track each race day at 12:30 p.m. The new thoroughbred track is located midway between Colorado Springs and Pueblo, just off Highway 85-87.

Knudson Leads Colonial Mudders by One Stroke

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — George Knudson, the Canadian who may become the fifth man to lead the $100,000 Colonial National Golf Tournament all the way, went out today in the rain-plagued tournament boasting a one-stroke bulge over Bruce Crampton and Tony Lema.

The final round was postponed Sunday because of a one-half inch rain accompanied by lightning.

Knudson was neither helped nor hurt by the postponement. Entering the final round with a one-under-par 209 for four holes, George, up with the top echelon in most tournaments, parred the first two holes of the final round before the postponement.

Crampton, who had 210, did the same and stayed a stroke back. But Lema took a bogey on the second hole.

Only 17 players had finished the final round when it was postponed after two stops.

Among the finishers were Tommy Aaron and Chris Blocker, who had one-over-par 71 over the 7,100-yard Colonial Country Club course. But Aaron had 228 for 54 holes and Blocker 26. So they weren't regretful that there had been a postponement.

Juan Rodriguez and Doug Sanders didn't like it though. They both had picked up a stroke and gone into a tie for third with Lema.

It was the fifth time in the 20 years of Colonial for play to be stopped because of the weather but all were played out. It also was the first time of the year for a round to be postponed on the tour.

The last tournament to be halted by rain was in May of 1964 when the Olahoma City Open was put off for two days and the last two rounds were made up in a single day.

Prospects were considered good that the tournament can be played out today although there was a hint of showers this afternoon. If it is postponed again, the final round will be played Tuesday.

Knudson led the first round with a 68, was tied for the lead at the halfway mark with 139 and shot back ahead Saturday with a 70.

Bears Fall Twice to Indy, Tacoma Holds Division

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indianapolis and Oklahoma City moved into the lead in the Eastern Division of the Pacific Coast League Sunday by a few percentage points when Indianapolis beat Denver twice, 8-4 and 3-1.

Tacoma managed to keep its slim hold on first place in the Western Division when the Giants and second-place Portland split a doubleheader, Tacoma winning the first 4-1, and Portland taking the nightcap 7-3.

Elsewhere around the circuit, Seattle won two from Hawaii, 5-1 and 5-0; Spokane beat Vancouver 3-; Arkansas and Salt Lake City played a 3-3 seventh-inning tie, called because of rain, and San Diego at Oklahoma City was postponed because of rain.

Indianapolis broke a four-game losing streak, coming from behind twice to whip the Denver Bears. In the opener, the Indians scored three times in the seventh and three more times in the eighth.

In the nightcap, the Indians got all their runs in the fourth. Johnson doubled, pitcher Bill Fischer and Marv Staehle each singled, and then Dick Kenworthy doubled in Fischer and Staehle.

Englewood Racer Cops Race at Sportsman's

Englewood's Cal Chambers finally got the breaks Sunday afternoon at Sportsman's Raceway Park, and won the main event for the modified stock cars.

Bob Moberly, who had won the modified mains the first two weeks of racing at SRP, dropped out with engine trouble with five laps to go. Russ Holtz, making his first appearance at SRP with a brand new car, led the first 13 of the 15 lap main, but then the entire rear end of his car went out, and he retired to the infield, giving the win to Chambers.

Pueblo's Ronnie McDowell was a busy driver all afternoon, driving cars in both the modified and the semi-late model divisions. He took a third in the modified main, then jumped into his late model car, and came home in second place behind Del Moore, who has collected the top money in all the late model mains this season.

Both the slow modified and late model events had to be restarted before the first lap was completed. On the first lap of the modified losers, Gary Ager rolled over as he came out of the west turn after rolling over the wheels of another car.

In the first lap of the late model losers, Jerry Lauman plowed broadside into a car driven by Dick Moore on the backstretch. Lauman was taken to St. Francis Hospital for treatment of chest and head injuries, but was released a short time later.

Stock car racing switches to Saturday nights at SRP next weekend, with the time trials scheduled for 7 p.m., and the races at 8.

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

It figured. Soon as Baltimore Manager Hank Bauer needed a pinch hitter he called on Brooks Robinson, the guy with the Most Valuable Thumb in the American League.

Batting with a broken right thumb that is expected to keep him out of the starting line-up for about 10 days, Robinson slapped a pinch-hit single in the 12th inning and scored the winning run as the Orioles completed a doubleheader sweep by edging Detroit 5-4 Sunday.

The Orioles had won the opener 7-1 with Robinson playing four innings before he finally submitted his swollen and discolored right thumb to X rays that revealed a fracture between the knuckles of the finger.

The Most Valuable Player in the AL last season when he hit .317 with 28 homers and 118 runs batted in, Robinson suffered the break when he was hit on the hand by a Hank Aguirre pitch in Saturday's game against the Tigers.

"The doctor told me it would take 10 days for the swelling to go down," said Robinson, "and that it would be up to me to play when I felt I could."

Robinson felt he could pinch hit in the 12th and stroked a one-out single off Fred Gladding. He moved to second when Gladding hit Paul Blair with a pitch and scored on Norm Siebern's single.

Another part-timer, Fred Whitfield, lashed seven hits in nine at-bats and drove in three runs in each game as Cleveland defeated Boston twice, 9-4 and 10-7. Elsewhere, Washington edged the New York Yankees 5-4, Minnesota belted the Chicago White Sox 6-1 and Los Angeles Angels downed Kansas City 5-3.

In the National League, Cincinnati defeated Pittsburgh 5-3, San Francisco whipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-3, Philadelphia beat St. Louis 4-2 and the others split. Milwaukee downed the New York Mets 8-2 before losing 5-4 and the Chicago Cubs walloped Houston 7-1 after the Astros took the opener 11-5.

The Orioles won the opener behind the six-hit pitching of Milt Pappas, who was making only his second start since injuring his knee April 19. Boog Powell drove in three runs with a homer and two sacrifice flies.

The Tigers pulled out to a 4-2 lead in the nightcap on two-run homers by Al Kaline and Willie Horton before the Orioles tied it in the seventh when Jim Northrup misjudged Luis Aparicio's liner that went for a triple.

The Indians collected 32 hits in the twinbill against the Red Sox with Whitfield, who is platooned at first base, collecting a single, double and triple in the opener and a double and two singles in the nightcap while raising his average 121 points to .429.

Whitfield recovered considerable support in the batting department in the second game with Rocky Colavito and winning pitcher Sonny Siebert slamming homers. Tony Conigliaro hit two for Boston, his sixth and seventh, while Lee Thomas contributed one.

The Senators snapped a 2-2 tie in the seventh on Don Zimmer's sacrifice fly with the bases loaded but scored the eventual deciding run in the eighth on two walks issued by Hal Reniff, a hit batter by Gil Blanco and a dropped third strike by Bob Schmidt.

Whitey Ford was tagged with the loss, only his second to the Senators in five years. It also was the first time since 1960 that Washington had won a four-game series from the Yankees.

Camilo Pascual won his fourth game without a loss for the Twins, checking the White Sox on seven hits and also hitting a homer. Ziol Versalles added another homer for Minnesota. A pinch-hit single in the seventh inning by Moose Skowron produced the Chicago run.

Jose Cardenal was the key for the Angels, slamming a homer and single and also stealing home. Fred Newman brought his record to 4-1 with Bob Lee's relief help as Los Angeles won its seventh game in the last eight.

Injured Robinson Paces Red Victory

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

It figured. Soon as Cincinnati Manager Dick Sisler needed a pinch hitter he called on Frank Robinson, the guy with the Most Valuable Thumb in the National League.

Batting with a badly injured left thumb that has turned him into a part-time player, Robinson rapped a pinch single with the bases loaded in the ninth inning Sunday, driving in two runs and giving the Reds a 5-3 victory over Pittsburgh.

The Cincinnati slugger batted — for the first time since Friday night — despite a badly swollen left hand stemming from the thumb injury he suffered a week ago against the New York Mets in the first game of a doubleheader.

Robinson, the National League's Most Valuable Player in 1961, jammed the thumb diving back to first base before being picked off by Jack Fisher in the fourth inning. He left the game for a pinch-hitter in the fifth.

The 29-year-old Robinson sat out last Tuesday's game, played Wednesday but had to leave in the seventh inning of Thursday's contest against Los Angeles because his hand bothered him too much and he couldn't grip the bat properly.

He played again Friday and aggravated the injury when he tried to hold back on a swing. Scheduled to start Saturday, he was pulled from the line-up at the last minute. His insertion into the line-up Sunday came at the last minute, too — much to the anguish of the Pirates.

Elsewhere in the NL, Chicago whipped Houston 7-1 after losing 11-5, Milwaukee dropped New York 8-2 before bowing 5-4, Philadelphia trimmed St. Louis 4-2 and San Francisco defeated Los Angeles 6-3.

In the American League, Baltimore swept Detroit 7-1 and 5-4 in 12 innings, Washington edged New York 5-4, Minnesota whipped Chicago 6-1, Cleveland outslugged Boston 9-4 and 10-7 and Los Angeles beat Kansas City 5-3.

Robinson's winning hit climaxed the three-run rally that wiped out a 3-2 Pittsburgh lead. Pinch hitter John Edwards singled across the tying run before Al McBean walked Leo Cardenas, filling the bases. Bob Veale replaced McBean, and Robinson drove in Marty Keough and Edwards.

Ernie Banks homered twice and increased his major league leading runs batted in total to 32 in Chicago's second-game triumph. Glenn Beckert and Don Landrum also homered for the Cubs.

Denver Gal Ties Record In WIBC Tournament

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Attention shifts from the regular Woman's International Bowling Congress Tournament competition today to the opening action in the fourth annual Queen's Tournament.

But before going into the Queen's, many of the nation's best woman bowlers made their presence known during the weekend with a Denver, Colo., kegler, Betty Remmick, earning herself a spot among the WIBC all-time record-holders.

The pert bowling instructor rolled games of 235-224-253 for a 712 series in her doubles. It led the way as she and Mary Ann White took the Division I doubles lead with a 1263.

The 712 series tied for the all-time high three-game set in the 48-year history of the tournament. The 1263 total was just one pin short of the all-time high winning score set in 1955 by Wylie Ryskamp and Marian Ladewig of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Sunday's action saw Donna Zimmerman of the Pickwick Recreation team of Los Angeles take the lead in Division I all-events with an 1833 pinfall for her nine games.

But it was a top day especially for Division II, with new leaders emerging in the team, doubles and singles events.

In the singles, Shirley Banks of Richmond, Calif., a member of the Albany Bowl team, gained the lead with a 604.

In the doubles, Suda Bailey and Robbi Tanner of Little Rock, Ark., had 1101 to take over the lead.

Denver Gal Ties Record In WIBC Tournament

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Attention shifts from the regular Woman's International Bowling Congress Tournament competition today to the opening action in the fourth annual Queen's Tournament.

But before going into the Queen's, many of the nation's best woman bowlers made their presence known during the weekend with a Denver, Colo., kegler, Betty Remmick, earning herself a spot among the WIBC all-time record-holders.

The pert bowling instructor rolled games of 235-224-253 for a 712 series in her doubles. It led the way as she and Mary Ann White took the Division I doubles lead with a 1263.

The 712 series tied for the all-time high three-game set in the 48-year history of the tournament. The 1263 total was just one pin short of the all-time high winning score set in 1955 by Wylie Ryskamp and Marian Ladewig of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Sunday's action saw Donna Zimmerman of the Pickwick Recreation team of Los Angeles take the lead in Division I all-events with an 1833 pinfall for her nine games.

But it was a top day especially for Division II, with new leaders emerging in the team, doubles and singles events.

In the singles, Shirley Banks of Richmond, Calif., a member of the Albany Bowl team, gained the lead with a 604.

NEW TREATMENTS FOR DYSMENORRHEA

More than 120 preparations are available to relieve menstrual distress. This does not include the hot water bottle or aspirin, which may be the most popular. Muscle relaxants and tranquilizers are in the limelight at the present time. Examples include diazepam (Valium) and chlordiazepoxide (Librium), reported to be effective when anxiety coexists.

Menstrual pain (Dysmenorrhea) is common. In some instances the symptom is secondary to a pelvic disorder such as infection, uterine displacement, tumors, and lesions of the bladder or rectum. In the majority there is no demonstrable cause and the reason for distress is not clear (primary dysmenorrhea).

There is considerable pelvic congestion and pressure during the menstrual period. A certain amount of discomfort is normal. Consideration is given to the fact that some women are more sensitive to pain. The highstrung, supersensitive girl is more likely to be bothered than the phlegmatic and well adjusted. Mother also enters the picture if she is anxiety-ridden and passes along the idea that women are unwell during menstruation.

We do not want to give the impression that primary dysmenorrhea is all in the mind. The severity of pain is influenced by a variety of physical and psychic factors, including the state of health, fatigue ,and emotional disturbances. Some days a person can take pain better than other days. This holds true so long as disiress is slight to moderate.

It is little consolation when certain hormones are causing painful contractions or the uterine muscles are forced to work harder as a result of a narrowed opening. In all probability, this takes place when pain is colicky, crampy, labor-like, or aching.

Most women get along best when they remain physically fit and are active at this time.

Dr. Van Dellen will send leaflet on menstrual irregularities if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Assassination Evidence to Be Safeguarded

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is drafting legislation to put key evidence in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy — including the murder rifle — into the National Archives for permanent safe-keeping.

The department has not yet decided which items of evidence it wants to retain in government hands.

An authoritative source said that they certainly would include the mail-order rifle used by Lee Harvey Oswald to shoot Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

"We want it always to be in hands responsible to the government, so that no questions as to its authenticity can be raised if, for instance, the investigation is ever reopened," the informant said.

The murder weapon and other prime evidence are currently in an FBI storage vault.

The government also will retain the pistol Oswald used in the fatal shooting of Dallas policeman J. D. Tippitt on the day of Kennedy's assassination.

A gun collector has offered Oswald's widow Marina $10,000 for the two weapons.

In its report, the now-disbanded Warren Commission which investigated the Kennedy assassination requested the Justice Department to decide what to do with the evidence accumulated during the 10-month probe.

The Justice Department plans to base its proposal solely on the proposition that it is in the national interest to make absolutely secure the key physical evidence in the assassination.

"We think physical evidence relating directly to the crime itself should be preserved under absolute security so that the public may always be assured of its nature and character," the official said.

The legislation also would permit persons whose property is claimed by the federal government to sue in federal court for compensation.

"People are entitled to be paid for it," the source said. "The courts will determine how much. But it's horrible to imagine that the instruments of such a heinous crime could result in a windfall to anyone."

Harbors of Viet Nam Will Be Dredged Deeper

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington has put in a rush order for dredges to deepen the waters of nine ports in South Viet Nam.

The Viet Cong guerrillas are responsible for this urgency in what was originally a more leisurely project to broaden Viet Nam's ability to berth seagoing vessels.

With the Communist guerrillas cutting the main coastal railroad and highway and supply needs of U.S. forces soaring, what started as a transportation study aimed toward long-range improvement of the country's economy now bears the label "crash program."

Ports earmarked for dredging include Saigon and Da Nang — the only South Vietnamese cities now able to handle ocean ships — plus Hue, Qui Nhon, Cuang Ngai, Nha Trang, Vung Tau, Can Tho and Cam Ranh.

U.S. planners figure that by getting supplies to these towns rimming the 800-mile coast of the long, narrow country, most of the nation's population can be serviced without extensive use of the more hazardous long-distance arteries inland. In terms of the volume that cargo craft can carry, it has been estimated that one cargo vessel the size of a Liberty ship can transport as much as was ferried by the whole Berlin airlift in 1948-49, at a third the cost.

According to U.S. officials today:

The Ellicott Machine Corp. of Baltimore has been awarded a $1.6-million contract for five dredges because it was the only dredge-building concern in this country found able to deliver within 30 to 60 days.

A $[illegible] contract has been negotiated with Daniel, Mann, Johnson and Mendenhall, Inc., of Los Angeles for a survey on improving South Vietnamese port facilities to be completed in six months.

Transportation Consultants Inc. of Washington, D.C. has received a $[illegible] award to study all of South Viet Nam's transportation facilities — waterways, rail, highway and air — during the next [illegible] months.

Harbors of Viet Nam Will Be Dredged Deeper

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington has put in a rush order for dredges to deepen the waters of nine ports in South Viet Nam.

The Viet Cong guerrillas are responsible for this urgency in what was originally a more leisurely project to broaden Viet Nam's ability to berth seagoing vessels.

With the Communist guerrillas cutting the main coastal railroad and highway and supply needs of U.S. forces soaring, what started as a transportation study aimed toward long-range improvement of the country's economy now bears the label "crash program."

Ports earmarked for dredging include Saigon and Da Nang — the only South Vietnamese cities now able to handle ocean ships — plus Hue, Qui Nhon, Cuang Ngai, Nha Trang, Vung Tau, Can Tho and Cam Ranh.

U.S. planners figure that by getting supplies to these towns rimming the 800-mile coast of the long, narrow country, most of the nation's population can be serviced without extensive use of the more hazardous long-distance arteries inland. In terms of the volume that cargo craft can carry, it has been estimated that one cargo vessel the size of a Liberty ship can transport as much as was ferried by the whole Berlin airlift in 1948-49, at a third the cost.

According to U.S. officials today:

The Ellicott Machine Corp. of Baltimore has been awarded a $1.6-million contract for five dredges because it was the only dredge-building concern in this country found able to deliver within 30 to 60 days.

A $300,000 contract has been negotiated with Daniel, Mann, Johnson and Mendenhall, Inc., of Los Angeles for a survey on improving South Vietnamese port facilities to be completed in six months.

Transportation Consultants Inc. of Washington, D.C. has received a $200,000 award to study all of South Viet Nam's transportation facilities — waterways, rail, highway and air — during the next 12 months.

How much the over-all program will cost is still a matter of guesswork. It could come to $5 million in the next six months. Beyond that, the port and waterway improvement work could go on as long as 5 or 10 years.

PUT LIGHT ON CRIME

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Do bright street lights help to decrease crime? Jacksonville police authorities are hoping it does.

Six months ago the city completed a project of installing more than 1,000 extra-bright street lamps in the city — mostly in the downtown area.

Traffic accidents, burglary, robbery, mugging, shoplifting and purse snatching in the Main Street area have shown a slight decrease since installation of the lights.

School Districts Told To Keep Taxes Down

DENVER (UPI) — Colorado Education Commissioner Byron Hansford called upon the state's school districts Friday to show that they can put adequate revenues to good use as well as keep property taxes down.

"The Legislature acted in good faith and we must demonstrate good faith," he said.

The 1965 Legislature approved measures which will give the state $22.5 million in new state money for use next year.

Hansford, speaking to more than 100 county and district school superintendents, said the new appropriation would up the share of public school expense paid by the state from 23 to 30 per cent.

He said educators throughout Colorado should be congratulated for convincing the public and the legislators that more money for education was essential.

GETS THE POINT

VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP) — Joseph Gately, 25, was truly "nailed" on a burglary charge here. A passerby heard a cry for help from the roof of a cocktail bar and called police. The officers climbed to the roof and discovered Gately wedged some three feet down in a vent, with his legs dangling inside the bar. He was impaled on some nails and unable to move.

Japanese Golfer Picked As Pen Pal for Ike

By KO SHIOYA

TOKYO (AP) — Hirozo Hirano, 75, a Japanese golfer, was delighted to learn that a computer at the New York World's Fair had picked him as a pen pal for a 74-year-old American golfer, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Hirano said he plans to write Eisenhower right away.

"I'm completely bewildered by it all," he said. "But it's certainly a great honor to have Mr. Eisenhower as a pen pal. I must write to him immediately."

Hirano spent 20 years managing golf courses in Japan before retiring in 1964. He said he had recently written to a pen friend association in the United States asking to be introduced to American pen pals. He said he saw the name of the association in a magazine but did not remember its address.

"In that letter," Hirano explained, "I wrote that I like golf. I hear Mr. Eisenhower is a long hitter. I'd like to play a round with him some day."

Hirano said that for three years he was manager of the Koganei Country Club near Tokyo which at the time was used by American occupation forces.

"I used to know a lot of Americans there," he said.

"In America, it seems everybody receives the same treatment at golf clubs. But in Japan important people expect favors. I must write Mr. Eisenhower right away and talk about golf.

"Imagine — being picked by a computer!"

Rhodesia Reported Nearing Independence

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Prime Minister Ian Smith's all-white government swept Friday's legislative election here, bringing this autonomous colony a step nearer to a possible declaration of independence from Britain.

Smith's Rhodesian Front party was sure of at least 46 of the 50 white seats in the new legislature. Computer forecasts indicated that government candidates will win the other four seats as well.

It appeared that the only opposition to Smith's plans in the new legislature would come from the men chosen to fill its 15 African seats in Friday's voting.
